

Henry-Bolton Wedding Smart Social Event at Jamestown

Jamestown, Jan. 30.—A wedding of state importance was solemnized last evening in the Presbyterian church of this city in a beautiful and impressive ceremony, when M. Evangelina Bolton and Frank Sumner Henry plighted their troth at an altar of roses and ferns.

Just preceding the ceremony Mrs. W. T. Craswell, of Valley City, sang in a most pleasing manner "O Promise me," accompanied by Prof. Bonney.

To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Prof. Bonney, the bride party approached the altar. The ushers, James W. Nielson, Charles W. Nelson, Vincent Quingy and William Aylmer, were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Iona Bolton, who was followed by the matron of honor, Mrs. L. W. Bohn, and the bridesmaid, Miss Mand O'Donnell.

Preceded by little Em Donnelly and Dorothy Edwards carrying baskets of roses the bride entered on her father's arm. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Capt. D. S. Ritchie.

The beautiful ring ceremony was read by Rev. G. W. Simon, after which they knelt on a pink satin cushion while Rev. Simon offered the prayer.

The flower girls preceded the bride and groom as they left the church, scattering rose leaves.

After the ceremony, Mrs. Craswell sang "I Love You Truly."

The altar was a mass of ferns and roses. At each end stood tall baskets of pink roses, the handles of the baskets being tied with large tulle bows.

A reception in the parlors of the church, which were beautifully decorated with pink roses and ferns, followed the ceremony. In the center of the room was a bower of flowers, under which was a table which held the bride's cake.

The bride was charming in a beautiful creation of tulle over satin with a bodice of pearls. The tulle veil was caught with a band of pearls.

She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Iona Bolton, maid of honor, wore pink satin veiled with chiffon, with rosebud trimmings.

She carried pink roses. Mrs. L. W. Bohn, matron of honor, and Miss Maude O'Donnell wore pink tulle with large pink tulle hats and wore silver slippers.

They also carried pink roses. The flower girls wore dainty white embroidery with pink sashes and carried baskets of pink roses.

Mrs. Bolton, mother of the bride, wore taupe velvet, hand embroidered. Mrs. E. H. Vesperman wore black tulle over satin with iridescent trimmings, and wore a large black hat.

Mrs. W. T. Craswell wore yellow tulle. Miss Tess Henry wore white chiffon embroidered in colors. Miss Laura Sanderson wore green mes-saline veiled in black chiffon.

Mrs. Oscar Seiler wore blue satin and lace. Mrs. Bert Nerling wore blue tulle over satin. Mrs. Harold Jacobson wore black chiffon over tulle.

Mrs. James Campbell wore grey charmeuse. Mrs. Halvor Sundahl wore pink crepe de chine. Mrs. E. J. Rhodes wore white tulle.

After the reception and supper, a dancing party was given in the club rooms of the Elks lodge.

Major and Mrs. Henry left last night for Minneapolis where Major Henry will be mustered out with the regiment. From there they will visit eastern points.

Mrs. Henry is the charming daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Bolton of this city. She is popular in social circles here and also in the capital city where she practiced her profession as a doctor of osteopathy.

Major Henry is state land commissioner and is prominent in state affairs. He is a major in the North Dakota regiment of the national guard.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. L. Vesperman, Mrs. Harold Jacobson, and Miss Tess Henry of Bismarck; A. J. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Craswell, A. S. Sigurdson, Thomas Collins, ex-Governor and Mrs. Frank White and the Misses Mae Belle Henry, Gladys Henry, Mina Nielson and Jeanette Westergaard of Valley City; Miss Georgetta Henry of New Rockford, and Mrs. Margaret Reese of Max.

Neighbors Found Boys' Gentlemen and Friends

The Times-Record recently printed an appreciation of the conduct and many qualities of the North Dakota boys from the citizens of Mercedes, Texas. Now here comes a letter from their nearest neighbor which tells in a much more intimate way of their doings in their spare time at the border.

It's the kind of a letter that will make their friends proud of them and is welcome on that account. The letter follows:
Editor Times-Record:

Dear Sir: Now that the North Dakota boys are going home, we want to let the home folks know how they behaved themselves down here in Texas. Since the writer was the nearest neighbor and saw more of them than anyone else, he is better able to give a correct report than anyone else.

When the boys came and cleared up the ground adjoining our farm and set up their camp, we began to get acquainted right away. They came over and looked at our few palms and a few shrubs not found in the north and asked, "What is this or that?"

And they got banana roots and soon had banana plants growing over in their camp.

They wanted us to go into the laundry business, which we did, with considerable profit to ourselves. But we had an awful time getting the right clothes back to the owners. But although it must have been very annoying, the boys helped us to sort the clothes themselves with admirable patience.

There's a home-made telescope in our yard about 20 feet long, and if any of these boys can't tell you what is on the moon it is because somehow he didn't get time to come over.

After they exhausted the possibilities of the telescope they discovered that the ebony tree grows wild here and they cut down all the ebony trees in miles around, making them into canes and swagger sticks to take home. They borrowed a little old engine we were not using and bought a circular saw and rigged up a saw mill to cut up their ebony wood, but the engine wasn't very strong and they had to push on the belt quite a bit. By and by they got about all the canes they wanted and began to talk of going home. And then one day they borrowed all the hammers and other tools they could find and began tearing down their neat buildings.

In a few hours there was nothing but lumber, sorted and piled up, with all the nails pulled. Some of the officers had pretty little wooden houses, of which we bought six. It got around among the boys that we wanted the lumber to build a barn, and it was surprising what a lot of lumber was unsold in that camp. We couldn't haul it in the wagon fast enough. The boys picked up houses, floors and all sorts of heavy things and carried them right into our yard. And they kept coming, some with chairs, tables, stoves, stove pipes, ice boxes and other things too numerous to mention until our place looks like we were building a village.

And then when the ground was cleared and the time came to start home came, many came over to take leave of us as though we were old time friends. The band started for the three trains in waiting, the companies, one by one, fell into line and they were gone; and my wife went out in the yard and cried.

I forgot to mention the cutest thing they left with us. It is what my little baby boy calls his "little horse." It is a little curly donkey with a pretty brass bell on, and like the little boy, is a baby.

If any of you North Dakota folks ever come down here to Mercedes, remember the little horses I bought of the soldiers and that there will be some of them full of the things the soldiers left, and they will be rent free.

Respectfully,
J. O. RILEY.

M. E. Married People Enjoy Annual Social

In spite of the storm king's vigorous assault about 70 people gathered in the parlor of the Methodist church Wednesday evening to hold their annual married people's social. It was a lively affair from start to finish.

Supper was served cafeteria style. After the close everyone turned in to clean up and as many hands make light work this part was soon done.

This was not the least enjoyable part of the evening by any means. Mrs. W. H. Pray, as mistress, of stunts then took charge of the entertainment by dividing the company into groups by birth months, each group to entertain the other groups. Many and varied were the stunts, songs, charades, etc., that were given. After a most enjoyable evening they departed homeward, glad they had had the grit to face the storm.

CITIES TO ORGANIZE NON-PARTISAN CLUBS

At a well attended meeting held in Minot Monday night a municipal non-partisan league, the first in North Dakota, was organized. Similar organizations will be formed in every city in the state.

The program of the Municipal league is simple and direct and includes the following specifications:
Strict law enforcement.
Elimination of all graft in public office.
City owned publicly used industries. To give immediate attention to flood control.

The development of a better co-operation between city and country.
The city to make all its own public improvements under the direct supervision of a competent engineer.

The agreement among the members which is signed by each, is as follows:
"We, the undersigned, in order to carry out the above program each pledge ourselves to aid and support the work of organization by paying a membership fee of $5. This sum to include cost of organization and membership in the league for two years, which entitles the holder to a voice and vote in all business matters of the league, as well as in the selection of all candidates for office."

"It is understood and agreed that we shall not permit any official of this league to be a candidate for any office. That the members of this league will use their best endeavors to secure the nomination and election of men to office within the city, who, upon investigation by this league, are found to approve the program above expressed."

A board of directors consisting of five members, three of whom were designated as executive officers of the local organization, were unanimously selected at the meeting. The officers were as follows:
Rev. P. W. Erickson, president.
R. A. Nestos, vice president.
John Wallin, secretary and treasurer.

A. M. Compton and M. R. Porter, directors.
The officers named are also directors and this board will have direct charge of the work of organization and execution.

In the neighborhood of a hundred members were secured the first day. The organization will work hand in hand with the Nonpartisan league, to bring the cities and the country closer together.

Carrington Man Make Tests of 1916 Shrivelled Wheat

T. H. Cousins, of Carrington, has carefully computed the relative value of the wheat crops of 1915 and 1916 for seed values. His experiments have shown decidedly in favor of the shrunk 1916 crop kernels as the best for seed. Not only does last year's crop give many more kernels to the bushel but the germination is better, that is, if last year's 57 pound wheat is used as very light wheat, it will be found to be good for seed.

In determining the number of kernels to a bushel, an ounce of wheat from each crop was weighed out and the kernels counted. By that method it was found that a bushel of 1916 wheat, testing 57 pounds, contained 1,029,120 kernels to the bushel, while from 62 pounds of 1915 wheat only 841,920 kernels were in a bushel, an advantage for the last year crop of 187,200 kernels. This test was made on durum. From these figures it is shown that a bushel and one peck of 1916 wheat contains more kernels than a bushel and a half of 1915 crop by 23,520 kernels.

The 1915 crop never tested exceptionally high for germination and Mr. Cousins' researches show the 1916 grown wheat to be the superior. In germination tests of 57 pound 1916 wheat he got a 97 per cent germination, strong and even. Of 50 pound 1916 wheat he got 85 per cent, very uneven. From 62 pound 1915 wheat he got a test of 70, very uneven. Germination tests on marquis wheat showed the following results: (All 1916 crop) 56 pounds tested 98 per cent, strong and even; 50 pound tested 93 per cent, strong but uneven; 46 pound 85 per cent, very uneven. There has been much discussion as to the relation qualities of the wheats of the two years as seed for the 1917 crop. With that matter in view the experiments of Mr. Cousins will be found of value.

Testing of wheat is quite simple and easy and costs nothing. The kind of seed used is so important that yearly much more attention is being paid to it.
