

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN SOCIETY

School Days. It's lonesome in the stable yard and where the chickens "peep."

I try to work and not to think, but, but trying all I can.

He started out at half-past eight, all rigged up in his best.

Proud of him? Well, I rather guess.

It's mighty lonesome round the place. He's gone to school today.

But 'tisn't just the lonesomeness that all us don't you know.

It's like the little worsted socks that's in the bureau there.

It's like the little dresses, too, that once he used to wear.

The thought that something's past and gone, outgrow beneath his arm.

That brings to mother's heart and mine the bitter-sweet today.

It's just another forward step, in Tim's unchanging rule.

Our baby's left us now for good; our boy has gone to school.

Little Bedtime Stories

FARMER BROWN'S BOY LUNCHEONS ON BERRIES.

(By Thornton W. Burgess.) (Copyright, 1914, by J. G. Lloyd.)

When things go wrong in spite of you To smile is the best thing you can do— To smile and say "I'm mighty glad They are no worse; they're not so bad!"

That is what Farmer Brown's boy said when he found that Buster Bear had stolen the berries he had worked so hard to pick and then had run off with his pail. You see, Farmer Brown's boy is learning to be something of a philosopher, one of those persons who accept bad things cheerfully and right away see how they are better than they might have been.

When he had first heard some one in the bushes where he had hidden his pail of berries he had been very sure that it was one of the cows or young cattle who live in the Old Pasture too," he muttered.

during the summer. He had been afraid that they might suddenly kick over the pail and spill the berries and he had huddled to drive whoever it was away. It had entered his head that it could be anybody who would eat those berries.

When he had yelled to scare away the unwelcome visitor and Buster Bear had suddenly appeared, struggling to get off the pail which had caught over his head, Farmer Brown's boy had been too frightened to even move. Then he had seen Buster tear away through the brush even more frightened than he was, and right away his courage had begun to come back.

"If he is so afraid of me I guess I needn't be afraid of him," said he. "I've lost my berries but it is worth it to find out that he is afraid of me. There are plenty more on the bushes and all I've got to do is to pick them. It might be worse."

He walked over to the place where the pail had been and then he remembered that when Buster ran away he had carried the pail with him hanging about his neck. He whistled. It was a comical, little whistle of chagrin as he realized that he had nothing in which to put more berries if he picked them.

"It's worse than I thought," cried he. "That bear has cheated me out of that berry pie my mother promised me." He began to laugh as he thought of how funny Buster had looked with the pail about his neck, and then because, you know, he is learning to be a philo-s-o-pher, he once more repeated, "It might have been worse. Yes, indeed, it might have been worse. That bear might have tried to eat me instead of the berries. I guess I'll get that lunch I left back by the spring and then I'll go home. I can pick berries some other day."

Chuckling happily over Buster Bear's great fright, Farmer Brown's boy tramped back to the spring where he had left two thick sandwiches on a flat stone when he started to save his pail of berries.

"My, but those sandwiches will taste good," thought he. "I'm glad they are big and thick. I never was hungrier in my life. Hello!"

This he exclaimed right out loud, for he had just come in sight of the flat stone where the sandwiches should have been and they were not there. No, sir, there wasn't so much as a crumb left of those two thick sandwiches. You see, Old Man Coyote had found them and gobbled them up while Farmer Brown's boy was away.

But Farmer Brown's boy didn't know anything about Old Man Coyote. He rubbed his eyes and stared everywhere, even up in the trees as if he thought those sandwiches might be hanging up there. They had disappeared as completely as if they never had been, and Old Man Coyote had taken care to leave no trace of his visit. Farmer Brown's boy gaped foolishly this way and that way. Then instead of growing angry a slow smile stole over his freckled face.

"I guess some one else was hungry, too," he muttered. "Wonder who it was? Guess this Old Pasture is no place for me today. I'll fill up on berries and then I'll go home."

So Farmer Brown's boy made his lunch on blueberries and then rather sheepishly he started for home to tell of all the strange things that had happened to him in the Old Pasture. Two or three times as he tramped along he stopped to scratch his head thoughtfully.

"I guess," said he at last, "that I'm not so smart as I thought I was and

"BEST" Says the Housewife too

Millions of them say Calumet is "best"—and millions of them use Calumet day after day for bakings of every kind, for just one reason—its certainty of good results.

They know that every time they bake with Calumet, the baking will be fluffy and light as down—tempting and tasty and easily digestible. They know that they'll never waste time or materials—that every baking will turn out right. For experience has shown them that with Calumet failures are almost impossible.

That alone is worth the highest price you ever paid for baking powder—but as a matter of fact, Calumet shows a great saving price over "trust" brands, and is more economical in use than cheap "big-can" brands. It gives the highest quality, the quality that won Calumet the highest award at the World's Pure Food Exposition.

Take no chances with your bakings—have every one good and pure and delicious. Calumet guarantees you that—and saves you money besides. Get a can today for a test.
