

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN SOCIETY

Alone. (One of the recent productions of the poet-humorist, whose death at Los Angeles occurred a few days ago.) I miss you, my darling, my darling. The embers burn low in the hearth. And still is the voice of the household. And hushed is the voice of its mirth. The rain splashes fast on the terrace. The wind past the lattice moan. The midnight chimes out from the minister. And I am alone. I want you, my darling, my darling. I am tired with care and with fret. I would nestle in silence beside you. And all but your presence forget. In the hush of the happiness given. To those who through trusting have grown. To the fullness of love in contentment. But I am alone. I call you, my darling, my darling. My voice echoes back in my heart. I stretch my arms to you in longing. And lo, they fall empty apart. I whisper the sweet words you taught me. The words that we only have known. Till the blank of the dumb air is better. For I am alone. I need you, my darling, my darling. With its yearning my very heart aches. The load that divides us weighs harder. I shrink from the jar that it makes. Old sorrows rise up to beset me. Old doubts make my spirit their own. Oh come from the darkness and save me. For I am alone. —Robert C. Burdette.
