MALLORY CLUB ONE YEAR OLD

Farmers of That Vicinity Have Done Much During Past Twelve Months.

One of the interesting features of the recent meeting of the Mallory Farmers' club was the report of the year's work. The report was presented by Lillie E. Ricketts.

Miss Ricketts told of the organization of the club on December 11, 1913, and then reviewed each meeting that has been held since then.

The organization meeting was conducted by Superintendent C. G. Selvig, of the Crookston school of agriculture, Superintendent H. E. Wolfe of the local schools and L. H. Hauter, head of the agricultural department of the East Grand Forks school.

Mrs. D. B. Ferguson was chosen the first president; Mrs. William Robertson was elected vice president; W. J. Cummins was chosen secretary, and R. J. Stewart was elected treasurer.

At each meeting, questions of importance to the farmers were discussed. One of the most interesting meetings was April 7, when the farmers debated whether or not grain farming was more profitable than diversified farming. This debate brought out a number of interesting ideas. The marketing question also was discussed at one of the meetings.

The Mallory club has been unusually successful. In the one year of its organization it has grown into one of the biggest and strongest farm clubs in Polk county.
