RAILROAD RIGHTS IN SERVICE FIXED BY SUPREME COURT

sloners of railroads of this state offered a separate daily passenger service to be installed on the Ambrose-Flaxton branch of the appellant railroad company. The board of district court where the board's decision was affirmed, and it appears to this court alleging that the findings are insufficient to support the judgment of the district court. The board's order was a denial of the railroad's application to be relieved under Chap. 290 S. L. 1907 from running a daily passenger service, which had been ordered by the board. The board denies the right of the railroad to appeal, asserting that its order is final and that a statute granting a right of appeal would be unconstitutional because administrative and judicial functions are concerned. Since the decision below was made this branch line has been extended into Montana. The appellant requests a decision on the merits and that the case not be treated as moot. Held:

(1) Though Chap. 200 S. L. 1907 did not expressly grant an appeal to the courts, yet as it is in pari materia with similar earlier statutes in terms generally granting and contemplating a right of appeal from decisions of the board of directors embraced in the statute in question.

(2) That the subject matter is legislative in administrative does not render a statute unconstitutional authorizing a review of the action of the board in the courts on an appeal to them.

(3) That the right of the railroad to apply to the commission to be relieved from maintaining a separate daily passenger service (by installation of a daily mixed passenger and freight service on branch lines), is permissive in language, and not a positive direction to the board and vests in it a discretion, does not negative a right to appeal.

In determining whether such relief shall be granted the earnings and cost of operation of branch line service must be determined as near as possible, and where it plainly appears that the cost of operating the branch line with separate daily passenger service installed greatly exceeds the railroad's earnings and revenues derivable from the operation of such branch line, the carrier is prima facie within the statutory exception and prima facie is entitled to be permitted to operate a daily mixed passenger and freight train.

(5) The statute granting such relief has particular application to branch lines, and the revenues from services on such branch lines service only must be considered. The petitioner cannot be compelled to operate a separate daily passenger service on this branch line at a great loss, and be compelled to make up such loss from its main line revenues. The intent of the statute is that the revenues from branch lines shall justify a daily passenger service independent of whether the railroad as a whole within the state is returning a fair dividend on its investment.

(6) The proof discloses that the G. N. Crosby-Berthold line furnishes ample passenger service for four-fifths of the length of this Soo branch line.

A separate passenger service should not be forced for the convenience alone of the town of Ambrose and vicinity, when to do so will cause an additional annual expenditure of $14,000, added to a loss already sustained under mixed train service, the revenues being inadequate to meet even the expenses of a mixed train service.

(7) The order and judgment appealed from are reversed. Since trial this line has been extended into Montana and questions of interstate commerce may now be involved, which conditions will be taken into consideration in future proceedings had herein. THE QUALITY THAT WINS. To shave, use a sharp razor blade; to chop, use a keen-edged knife; to carve, use a knife that will cut. Don't spend all your time sharpening your tools. Get them of the highest quality at the outset and they will keep sharp and save you time and trouble.

As it is with implements we use, so it is with men we employ. The men of quality are in demand. They make their way to the front. They make their way while second-rate men drop behind. As it is quality that commands the market for the razor, the ax and the knife, the saw, the hammer, the plow and all the implements of daily use, so it is sterling quality that merits and receives recognition among men—the qualities of character, industry, integrity, honorable dealing, sincerity, rectitude and righteousness. Note the great captains of industry, finance and of the railways who have blazed the path of prosperity in this and every other country. Mark their humble beginnings, the lack of adventitious aids, the struggles through early poverty, their splendid courage amid adversity, their buoyant hope when all others were falling by the wayside, and the triumphant faith through which the final victory was won. It is by faith that armies conquer. By faith love overcomes hatred. By faith success triumphs over adversity. Every religion is founded on faith, it enfolds in its white wings constancy, patience—charity—the sum and substance of all human virtues. Faith vanishes fear, stimulates hope, develops strength, triumphs over despair. Let us have faith. The bitterest rebuke of the Great Master to those about him who faltered was "Oh, ye of little faith." Believe in yourself, in the goods you sell, the tools you use, the character you bear. Test their quality.—John A. Slesicher in Leslie's.
