GERMANY SEEING FAILURE IN SUBS

Begin to Realize They Have Made Little Impression on England.

(By J. W. T. Mason.) Germany is beginning to suspect the results of her submarine activities against British shipping do not justify the large claims made for the new style of warfare when it began last February.

One of the most curious psychological effects of the war has been the belief in Germany that the submarine campaign was serving very largely the purposes of a blockade. The submarines have been referred to by the Germans as operating against England in the same way that the British fleet in the North sea operated against Germany. This interpretation of actual conditions, of course, is wide of the mark. British trade is hampered very little because of the submarine, and there has been only a slight advance in marine insurance rates to cover submarine risks.

The Berlin Tageblatt, Germany's leading liberal organ, in the first German newspaper to look these facts in the face. It estimates that one and one-half merchant vessels have been sunk a day since the submarine blockade began, and it points out this is a "very modest" result. The Tageblatt blames the newspapers generally for arousing an extravagant belief in the effectiveness of submarines as a blockading force.

In other words, the constant cry of patients to those who keep demanding greater deeds from the submarines cannot be longer maintained, suggests the Tageblatt. The Von Tirpitz blockade, therefore, is revealing itself as a fiasco to the German people. It is but a pin prick compared to what might be accomplished by a fleet capable of maintaining a real blockade around the British Isles.

A full realization of the actual conditions must have a depressing effect on the Germans. The desire to harm England at any cost, as Germany's chief enemy, has so magnified the victories of the submarines that it will be a difficult matter to readjust the common vision to a clear view of the facts.

The Tageblatt's initial move in this direction, if persisted in, however, will be beneficial to ultimate peace. It will produce an understanding in Germany that England's economic position cannot be seriously affected by the undersea boats, no matter how orthodox, therefore, for the purpose of the conflict, therefore, for the purpose of damaging England's commerce, now being ruled out of serious war debates in Germany.

County Nurse Plan Gets High Endorsement From Cedar Rapids Visitor.

The Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Gazette, in a recent editorial, gives the farmers of Grand Forks county the following encomium:

"Cedar Rapids man who is interested in the undergarment campaign visiting nurses in this city visited Grand Forks, N. D., last week. He learned, considerably to his surprise and somewhat to his discomfort, that the North Dakota farmers apparently have more advanced ideas with regards to public health than we 'city folk' of Cedar Rapids.

"Here we are arguing about who should pay the bills of the visiting nurses' department. In Grand Forks county, N. D., the farmers, scorning such a trivial and unimportant matter, the immensity of the work, got their heads and pocketbooks together for the purpose of hiring a nurse whose duty it is to visit the rural schools and examine every child attending them. No quibbling, no dilly-dallying, no fussing and fuming, no skepticism, no doubting, no hesitating, no retarding a great movement now spreading through districts which have a conscious self-pride and civic interest. The nurse was hired. She went to work, systematically and regularly.

"In the county superintendent's office are thousands of cards to be used by the visiting nurse when examining the children. There is a card for each school child. Spaces at the top are left for notations regarding the nationality of the parents and history of the family with regard to the number of children, measles, diphtheria, pertussis, pneumonia, scarlet fever and infantile paralysis.

"For the child thirty-one individual notations are scheduled. They are age, grade, years in school, cause of retardation, mentality, physical activity, cleanliness, pediculosis, home conditions, vaccination, vision-right, vision-left, glasses, eye disease, hearing, ear disease, nutrition, anemia, enlarged glands, nervous disease, cardiac disease, pulmonary disease, skin disease, teeth, defective speech, tonsils, adenoids, defective nasal breathing, and other defects, infectious disease, parents notified.

"A glance at this list shows how thoroughly the children are examined and how closely they are watched. The School auditor of the county reports that everyone is eminently satisfied with the plan and the results obtained, which are many and beneficial.

"Will Little, our visiting nurses in the rural schools before Cedar Rapids has them in the city schools."
