Peasant Styles for Little Girls Are Picturesque—Pleated Skirts and Braid-Bound Boleros in Military Effect—Dance Frocks for the Teens Are of Dainty Daphne Silk—Cretonne Dresses for Warm Autumn Days.

PRACTICALITY and style go hand in hand in new togery for little folk; and one may say in general that juvenile modes reproduce older fashions in effects attractively modified by the picturesque—a feature essential in garments for childhood.

School frocks for early autumn are of the cooler fabrics; linen, gingham and even cretonne. Some fascinating little dresses are made entirely of cretonne and the effect is charming, for small, dainty patterns have been selected and cordings and smockings in plain color add the finishing touch. The American autumn is so long and so sultry in many localities that worsted dresses are not comfortable before November, and some mothers keep their little daughters in tub frocks even later; the linen or gingham frock being covered with a smart serge coat in the street.

REDINGOTES FOR CHILDHOOD

Now that Paris has revived the redingote for women, these graceful coats are appearing in the children's departments also, and are very smart with their rather close-fitting upper portion and coat-skirt flaring out from the waistline in ripples over the skirt of the frock. Youthful coats of exclusive type are built to fall short of the frock's edge by an inch or more—as women's coats do this season. When the frock is a pretty one, this effect is charming, but the frock must be dainty and the footwear correct to give the dressy effect desirable. With a navy blue serge coat showing an edge of white frock beneath, the stockings should be white silk or fine cotton and the boots black, with buttoned tops of white. A smartly dressed child wore, the other day, a redingote coat of seal brown mohair and worsted rep, and stockings of natural silk with buttoned boots of black patent leather and kid.

MILITARY FROCKS GAY WITH BRAID AND BUTTONS

Appealing to youthful fancy are autumn school frocks of dark blue serge, with braid-bound edges and groups of bright buttons, of galalith in two colors, which give a cheerful appearance to these little dresses of dark blue serge, and some of the particularly martial frocks show brass or silver buttons stamped with the eagle. A frock of this type, reproducing a childish frock by Lanvin—who is the authority on juvenile modes in Paris—is of solid blue serge with a ripple skirt; and the plainest of plain little waists gathered along a shallow yoke and slashed down the front half way; silver cord over silver buttons lacing up the slash. Two very large pockets are applied to the skirt over the hip and long extensions from these pockets run up under the belt on the waist, where they finish in blunt points. Belt, pockets and cuffs are bound with black braid.

A smart little navy serge school frock, displayed in a Fifth Avenue specialty shop for children last week, had a side pleated skirt and a braid-bound bolero cut away under the arms and also far down the front and back in rounded ovals. Under this very open bolero was a tailored guimpe of pin-tucked linen with regulation shirt cuffs and an eton collar finished with a perky black bow.

PUSSY WILLOW FROCKS FOR CHILDHOOD

Most attractive little dresses for dancing school are of pussy willow taffeta in Dolly Varden sprigged patterns and in block checks. Black and white checked silk is considered very chic for little girls this season, but it must have bright buttons and broad collar and cuff accessories of sheer organdie or net to give the youthful touch. Navy blue and army blue checked pussy willow silk is another pretty silk for children's dresses. Party frocks are of tucked organdie and lace or of hand-made French lawn, very soft and sheer. More elaborate models of tucked and finely corded net are mounted over crêpe de Chine, pussy willow taffeta or daphne silk in some delicate shade. Girls in their teens may wear more sophisticated frocks, approaching grown-up costumes in style, made of daphne silk, white, affets or pussy willow in some dainty shade or in pompadour design. But the girl in her teens never wears a sleeveless or a decollete frock, though the neck may be rounded out a little and the sleeves tiny, puffed affairs in early Victorian style. The young girl in early Victorian style, youthful dancing slippers, also. The high heel of womanhood is not for her, and all her buttoned boots and slippers have heels of low or moderate height.

1. A New Belted Norfolk Coat with a suggestion of the fatigue uniform coat in its braid-bound strappings and buttons, completes this one-piece frock and coat costume for the schoolgirl. The material is navy blue serge and the skirt is especially graceful with its broad box pleats. The coat is braid-bound and has simulated box-pleats below the new shoulder-yoke.

2. The wee girl must have her new Redingote like her grown-up mamma, and this coat for a tot of five is particularly interesting because of the sloping yoke outlined by covered buttons—a new and graceful line in juvenile coat-wear. Collar and cuffs are trimmed with Russian fitch and the same fur forms the crown of a piquant hat. The coat is of tan broadcloth and is widened at the sides with pleats.

3. Plaid Pussy Willow Taffeta is combined with navy blue serge in this graceful school frock for a little maid. The gay green and blue of the plaid, appears also in narrow cuffs and necktie, and in a buckled sash which passes under the over-hanging sides of the loose blouse. The collar of starched white piqué is low and picturesque, and white buttoned boots and stockings give distinctive style to the costume.

And look out at my garden plot And be contented with my lot. I can take in a picture show And not be nervous where I go Or fear some titled enemy Will drop a lyddite bomb on me. I get no diplomatic note Which stirs me up and gets my goat. No murder is upon my soul. For world dominion's not my goal. I'm happy as a common hob I would not trade my state of mind With any one of royal kind. No blood of infants stains my hands; I have invaded no ones lands. I would not trade my old felt hat For all the caps and helmets that Are worn in any crazy realm That seeks to slay and overwhelm. Gold braid and clanking sabers punk To me are merely useless junk.
