

CHINESE WOMEN WORKING HARD

Would do Credit to Mrs. Pankhurst and Her Most Active Supporters.

Peking, Dec. 1.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Chinese women have entered into the monarchical movement with a vehemence which would do credit to Mrs. Pankhurst and her most aggressive followers.

This manifesto immediately called forth a protest from a large body of women anti-suffragettes, who deplored the effort to involve women in the political movement.

The views of Miss An Shiang-sun and her following are set forth in the following petition: "Since the Chou An Hui made its appearance, the cry for a constitutional monarchy has echoed from the lips of everybody and the whole country has responded to the call.

"According to the constitutional compact, the sovereignty of the country is vested in the people of the whole country naturally means the people of both sexes. Out of the 40,000,000 people, half are women. If movement, not only women, but men are to be benefited, it will seem that men alone are entitled to rights that belong equally to women.

"We admit that the intelligence of the mass of Chinese women is still at a very low standard, but the same interest in the country and have the same desire for the safety of their person and property as the men. Why should we remain passive without raising a hand to support the movement? Being women are of frail constitution and limited education, yet we have been deep with the but in the next lunge. Others again are going through the motions of slipping a cartridge into the rifle, counting in unison so that soon "one" or "three" or "four" conveys a definite mental picture to the most sluggish mind and saves the drill sergeant breath.

Two things especially strike one watching the training of this new army of boys. The drill sergeants and corporals are kind to them. Pleasant faces are looking at a dummy enemy of straw hanging from a gibbet. Others again are going through the motions of slipping a cartridge into the rifle, counting in unison so that soon "one" or "three" or "four" conveys a definite mental picture to the most sluggish mind and saves the drill sergeant breath.

Veracuular papers contain reports of associations of women organizing in various Chinese cities, and there are repeated efforts of the rival organizations to discount each other's strength. Apparently there is little fear of libel in the Chinese papers, as communications are printed which make direct attacks on the personal character of women leaders.

HE SOLVED THE LEMON PROBLEM. (Sunset Magazine). From 1896 to about eight years ago the lemon growing business was about the most hazardous in all California. It was a "boom" and a "bust" per acre but the fruit could be marketed.

Charles Collins Teague, who owned a 20-acre grove in Ventura county, began an investigation which carried him around the state in 1898-1899. He observed the various methods of curing lemons. Most of it was done indoors in those days, and the results were anything but satisfactory. While making his investigation Mr. Teague observed at one packing house a lot of fruit that had been cured under a shed. The fruit was in the stuffy drying room. That fruit was almost perfect. The drying room was not holding up. That was Mr. Teague's discovery. He learned that the lemon must be treated by ventilation and coddled. He invented a tent system of curing lemons, and like the rest of the growers of California, he gave it freely to the growers of California.

And what has been the result? California today is a world leader in the production of lemons. The crop of this state supplies one-half the lemons used in the United States.

TWO MILLION MEN ARE NOW TRAINING Every Square in Big Cities of Russia Filled With Men at Drill.

(By Nikolai Koslov.) Moscow, Dec. 1.—The new army of 2,000,000, which Russia is raising from her very young men, is much to the fore. For the bolstering up of public confidence these young troops are largely concentrated in the big cities and are transformed from slouching louts to straight-backed soldiers in the public streets and squares.

Nearly every square and large open street space in Petrograd, Moscow and Kiev, is occupied all day by recruits drilling. Crowds collect and watch their drags, which are most interesting and diverse. Russians Learn the Goosestep. One company is being instructed in the goosestep. How horrified the English would be they could not see this "essential trait of Teutonism" forming an integral feature of Russian drill!

Another company every member is being taught how to leave the ranks, approach an officer, salute and return to his place without reminding his superior of the existence of a rural sheriff in burlesque. Other troops are practicing lying down to fire, scrambling up and advancing at the double, dropping again to fire.

Over yonder men are lunging with the bayoneted rifle, twirling it by a neat knack and thrusting forward with the butt in the next lunge. Others are lunging at a dummy enemy of straw hanging from a gibbet. Others again are going through the motions of slipping a cartridge into the rifle, counting in unison so that soon "one" or "three" or "four" conveys a definite mental picture to the most sluggish mind and saves the drill sergeant breath.

Supreme Court Decision. W. G. Harrison, plaintiff and respondent vs. Louise B. Griffin and Thomas P. Griffin and J. I. Case Threshing Machine company, a foreign corporation, defendants and appellants. (By G. G. Gave three mortgages upon his land. The first covers all of section 33, and the southeast quarter and south half of the northwest quarter of section 27, all in township 137, range 27, and this mortgage is owned by plaintiff H. E. who seeks to foreclose the same as to the land in section 27, he having released such mortgage as to section 33 upon payment by the grantee of the mortgage, one B. of his pro rata share of the indebtedness owed plaintiff. The second ran to N. and was assigned to defendant and appellant, the Case company, and covers all the land above described. The third covers merely the land in section 27, and runs to appellant, the Case company. The latter mortgage was foreclosed by advertisement in June, 1910, and went to sheriff's deed on June 6, 1911, the appellant company being the purchaser. Such purchase took place prior to the release by the plaintiff of the land in section 33 and after B's purchase from the mortgagor of said section 33. The appellant seeks to compel plaintiff to marshal his securities by resorting to the land not covered by the third mortgage. Held, under the facts, that such attempted defense is untenable.

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know. The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy, and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair. A well-known downtown druggist says it dakens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the hair will appear, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

MUCH INJUSTICE DONE TO NEUTRALS

British Business Men in China Create Bad Feeling Among Traders.

Peking, Dec. 1.—British business men in China, in what they term an effort to prevent trading with the enemy, have adopted tactics which are not designed to create good feeling between neutrals and British subjects. At Shanghai and other business centers a secret list of firms with which Britishers must not trade has been circulated. In many cases these lists have done great injustice to neutrals, especially Americans who suffer from the action of neutral members of the exchange.

Frequently, these boycott lists have been made, apparently, without proper investigations. In some cases, the names of neutrals which happened to suggest German or Austrian origin have been included in the lists very unjustly. For a time the neutrals were not able to understand why their business was dwindling so decidedly, but now the British methods are very generally understood.

At present the Shanghai stock exchange is in a fever through an effort of the British members to control the action of neutral members of the exchange. A few days ago the following notice was posted on the bulletin board of the exchange: "The Shanghai stock exchange is an institution incorporated under law and members are hereby notified that the committee will take all means in their power to uphold its British majority's regulations regarding enemy trading."

Several neutral members are believed to have entered into transactions with clients and outside brokers who are subjects of countries at war with Great Britain. Whilst the committee is at present unable to discipline neutral members who deal with enemy subjects, it is pointed out that any British member who knowingly deals with such offending members comes within the scope of the king's regulations.

For the protection of British members the committee are willing to confidentially make known from time to time the names of these neutral members who are suspected of dealing with unlicensed enemy subjects. "The committee hereby notifies British members that in the event of their being found to be knowingly contravening the king's regulations in the above manner they will forthwith be suspended and information regarding their case will be laid before the crown advocate."

The exchange has four neutral members, two Americans, two Danes. Gordius Nielsen, a Dane, lost no time in taking up the cudgel for the neutrals. He addressed the following letter to the secretary of the exchange: "Dear Sir—Referring to the notice posted by the committee today with regard to neutral members of the exchange dealing with so-called enemy subjects, will you be good enough to inform your committee that I, as a neutral have dealt with, and intend to continue to deal with, Germans, Austrians, Turks and Bulgarians? A neutral does not take sides, and it would be as improper, if the committee's contention held good, for me to deal with Britishers if I declined to deal with subjects of the other savage belligerents."

The rink fever, which broke out in England in about 1848, reached this country, by way of Australia, two or three years later and has persisted ever since at times with great virulence. After next Friday night 1915 will have only four weeks remaining.

"Neither the committee nor the British government can impose jurisdiction on me. Their only remedy, if they desire to force their attitude, is to attempt an expulsion—if they can do it. The next step would be for the committee of the Shanghai club to forbid neutral members to deal with the enemies of Great Britain or to suffer expulsion."

"That I write so plainly is because the committee have adopted the 'committee of safety' inquiry of the French revolution with its attendant secret investigations, accusations and general hole-and-corner policy, which is one of the most despicable forms of rule, instead of frankly asking neutral members of their doing. Have the committee quite lost their heads, or is it another specimen of British stupid officialdom?"

Charges are made repeatedly by neutrals in the Chinese papers that much of the present agitation on the part of the British business men is largely selfish rather than being used to their own commercial advantage.

NO TIME FOR FACIONALISM. (Wadena Pioneer Journal.) Minnesota republicans seem to be thus early lining up into two camps, one for Elihu Root and the other for A. B. Cummins, for the presidential nomination of the next national policy being exhibited by the partisans of the two men, and this is to be regretted. There are too many strong men who deserve consideration at the hands of the next national republican convention to justify a factional lineup at this time.

Republicans must be alert, however, in making their choice. Discretion must be used. The best possible man must be nominated. It is not of vital importance that the candidate represent himself either the old-line element or the progressive wing of the party. In fact, it would be better to select a candidate or the progressive wing of the party. In fact, it would be better to select a candidate who is not radical either way, yet who is broad enough to recognize the existing partisan differences and strong enough to reconcile them.

More than that, the candidate must be a man who commands the confidence of the country, regardless of party. He should be a man of commanding intellect, of recognizable accomplishment in the field of statesmanship. The fact that he lives in one state or another should not be taken into consideration.
