ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

The story was told a few days ago of the testing and putting into commission by one of the transcontinental railroads of several electric engines which are to be used for auxiliary work in the mountain districts.

Few things have been more remarkable than the development of electric traction in this country.

Today there are either electric street railways or none at all.

In this development, which will not take place until some of the perplexing problems relating to the economical transmission of power are solved, for the transportation of freight and passengers for generations.

Just what will be the accompanying changes we cannot forecast. Will trains be made larger and heavier, or smaller and more frequent, giving service hourly instead of daily?

FEDERAL WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Constitutional woman suffrage will be one of the subjects of controversy at the approaching session of congress.

Both in congress and throughout the country at large there are many persons who are in favor of woman suffrage by states, or at least who do not strongly oppose it.

MISS SHELLAND'S "BOOM."

Among the "Interesting People" is Miss Annie Shelland, the daughter of a Methodist minister in Minnesota.

After she started school teaching in the woods she visited St. Paul to tell the legislature the needs of the settlers in her vicinity.

Other facts had presented themselves to Miss Shelland with disturbing frequency. Of what use is a school fund in a county without roads? or with roads which are impassable when the snows melt or the autumn rains come?

The N. M. D. A. is made up of hard-headed business men from all the counties of northern Minnesota. They can see as far through a stone wall as most people.

When the Northern Minnesota Development association met in International Falls, capital of Koochiching county, Miss Shelland was asked to talk before the association on school work in the north.

In the meantime, as superintendent of schools and clerk of the county board of education, Miss Shelland has seen the schools in her district increase from 20 to 48, several of which are modeled on the consolidated plan.

ONE in every three motor cars manufactured during 1916 will be equipped with Goodyear Tires.

Motor car manufacturers jealously guard their good reputation in the choice of tire equipment.

The marked preference shown Goodyear over all other brands, by a long list of America's representative manufacturers, is so significant, that it calls for no comment.
