NOTED SPEAKERS TO APPEAR HERE

Fine Program for Mid Winter Show has been Prepared—Prizes Offered.

Plans for the annual mid-winter corn and potato show to be held here on December 29 and 30 under the auspices of the agricultural department of the East Grand Forks schools have been completed, and from present indications, will be one of the most interesting educational exhibits ever held in northwestern Minnesota.

Cash prizes are being offered for the best long ears of different varieties of corn, for the best 30 ears and for the best bushel. Frank Drosky is also offering an additional prize of fifty cents to the value of $3 for the best ten ears of corn of any variety. A special prize of a $3 fountain pen is also being offered by Frank Biegelow for the best exhibition of any variety of potatoes.

On Wednesday evening, December 29, a roast pig banquet will be held in the Domestic Science room of the Central high school, prepared by the girls of the domestic science department. At 8 o'clock a football game between the Grand Forks Y. M. C. A. and the East Grand Forks high school squad, will be held. Coach Leedham of the local team, will explain the game to the visitors as it progresses.

KINDERGARTEN IS OF IMPORTANCE

Has Valuable Place in Education of the Child, Says Valley City Man.

Valley City, N. D., Dec. 24.—"The Place of the Kindergarten in the Education of the Child" is the caption over an interesting article in the current issue of the Bulletin, written by Dr. Rudolph A. Achler of the department of educational psychology at the state normal school here.

"The first five years," the writer says, "are the most important formative period in the child's life. While there are no definite memories of these early years in the mind of most adults, there is a constantly accumulating evidence that the later life tendencies all have their source and origin in the experiences of these early days."

Dr. Achler points out many mental disturbances in adults may be traced back to some unfortunate experience in the child before he was five years old. It has been found by experiment that a lack of aggressiveness in an adult, for instance, has been traced back to some repeated childhood defeat. The same is true with constructive instinct.

"The rank and file of mothers with their household duties and responsibilities have neither the time nor the expert training to minister to these childhood needs. They may love their children ever so much and may even steal a little time now and then to sing a lullaby or attempt to answer some questions with which they are constantly bombarded, but the inadequacy of such a program has been established without a doubt."

"Now the modern kindergarten with its well trained and natively endowed teacher and with well equipped material is splendidly adapted to meet these early demands of the child. There its questions are answered its distorted ideas straightened out, its curiosity satisfied and strengthened, its constructive instinct developed and its power of expression stimulated. Its whole emotional and volitional life is given a sound foundation so that in later life there will be more scars and sore spots developed upon its psychic life."

"The first five years of the child's life are precious—the time when it should lay a thorough foundation for the mastery of the mother tongue. It is during these years that the language instinct or perhaps better the expression instinct is prominent. The child needs first of all a rich sensory and motor experience through every possible avenue and then it needs abundant opportunity for self expression in every possible way but more especially by means of oral language. It not infrequently happens that a bright five-year-old with proper kindergarten advantages has a working vocabulary of six or seven thousand words. He can use these in sentences and is often able to relate a story or narrative that would make many high school students blush if they should try to equal it. There is every reason to believe that the mastery of well spoken English is largely a matter of the first five years of the child's life. No program of education is so well adapted to give the proper attention to this need of the child as the kindergarten."

"If the public and especially the parents could only be led to appreciate the fact that the child of five years of age has undreamed of possibilities and capacities, all hungering for development, there would soon be kindergartens in every community."

Premier Skouloudis of Greece, a friend of the entente allies, gives the diplomacy of the allies, as dominated by Britain, a biting but richly deserved criticism. The imbecile character of the diplomacy used toward the Balkan countries is without a single redeeming feature. Premier Skouloudis is right.
