ALL RECRUITING DETAILS ORDERED TO CAMP AT ONCE

Believe Flickertail Regiment Will go to St. Louis First.

BATTALION WORK EXECUTED TODAY

Williston Has Best Drilled Guards, With Company M Close Second.

There is every indication today that the North Dakota regiment which now is training at Fort Lincoln, will start for a southern concentration camp within 48 hours.

Adjutant General Thomas Tharalson received orders today to notify the railroads of the route to be taken, but he has not received the route.

It was mailed from the department headquarters at Chicago and should reach Bismarck this afternoon.

All recruiting details have been called in, and the adjutant general has notified the department headquarters that the North Dakota companies are ready to move.

(By Staff Correspondent.) Fort Lincoln, Bismarck, June 27.—Further indications of an early move of North Dakota troops from Fort Lincoln came today with an order for all recruiting officers to report here immediately.

Each company had detailed at the home station a lieutenant, a non-commissioned officer, and a private to enlist men for the purpose of bringing the regiment up to war strength, and these men are expected in camp tomorrow.

This means that recruiting will cease and the previous orders to equip the men on hand so that the troops can leave immediately will be carried into effect.

A good portion of the men recruited late have been fitted out and more equipment is being received hourly. As to where the troops will go is still a matter of conjecture, but from unofficial sources comes information that it will be St. Louis. The general opinion is that the North Dakota regiment will be sent first to a big concentration camp, where troops can be left immediately will be carried into effect.

The forenoon was spent in drill. Battalion movements being executed for the first time. Williston is credited with sending the best drilled company into camp, with Company M, of Grand Forks, a close competitor. Williston, like Grand Forks, has an organization of home boys. Company C of Grafton has one made up of men who have served in the militia and that place before and they expected to swing into shape in a short time.

Wineman of this city, stated that the Grand Forks boys were making an excellent showing at the concentration camp and were all in excellent spirits.

Not one member of the company has been ill since leaving the city, claims Captain Wineman, and the boys are eating from the card work with a vim and snap that are encouraging.

The trip to Fort Lincoln was made without mishap and the nation was served in splendid style. A detailed and accurate presentation of the case for the progressive party is uncertain at this time.
