Willmar will have another lumber yard in the near future. Mr. F. O. Peterson, formerly of Grove City, has decided to locate here and embark in the lumber business. Mr. Peterson we understand has a stiff financial backing, and our city will no doubt soon enjoy the benefits of a brisk competition in this line of trade. The prospective site of the new yard is on vacant lots on Litchfield Avenue.

The business men of Willmar have a meeting to-night to consult in regard to the building of a new creamery at Willmar. There is a general feeling that the merchants should take a hand in and encourage the creamery enterprise of Willmar, and it is to be hoped that this meeting will result in something substantial being done. A first-class creamery run as it should and could be, would be a mutual benefit to all.

The ladies are also making a quilt to be disposed off, and the money used for a similar purpose.

'Twas a "Horse" on Him.

A queer incident took place in this city last week. A person from Spicer by the name of Holloway had left the horse he used in O. Beck's livery barn, and in an adjoining stall, a farmer by the name of O. N. Nelson placed his horse.

During the absence of the two men, hostler had changed the horses from the places they occupied, and when Holloway came back, he took Nelson's horse instead of the one he had used, by mistake. This occurred at 10 o'clock a. m. last Friday. All that day Nelson waited in vain for re-appearance of his horse. Finally he concluded, that the horse was stolen, and the suspicion fell on Holloway, because the horse he had used remained in the barn. A warrant was sworn out, and Holloway was summoned to Willmar on Saturday afternoon on a charge of larceny. Then the truth was found out. Holloway had borrowed a horse to make trip from Spicer to Willmar, and when taking a horse from the same stall where he had put one a short time before, he naturally thought it was the one he used, he drove back to Spicer where he left the horse he brought from Willmar, in the livery barn, and knew nothing of his mistake until on Saturday when he was arrested. After making his explanation, and paying the cost accrued, he was of course released. It is needless to say that another transfer of horses took place, and what at first seemed like a mystery, turned to be only a laughable mistake.
