FARMERS' INSTITUTE

THE TRIBUNE is pleased to announce that a definite date has been set for a Farmers' Institute to be held at Willmar this winter. On Friday and Saturday, Jan. 21 and 22, Supt. Gregg and his corps of instructors will be at Willmar and will provide an excellent chance for farmers and housekeepers to get advanced ideas in their respective lines of work. Two halls will be used, the courthouse hall for the main institute work and the dining hall of the Odd Fellows Block for the cooking school. The committee on arrangements are composed of the following:

L. O. Thorpe, Chairman.
Mason W. Spicer, Sec'y.
M. Jorgenson.
John B. Boyd.
S. E. Stansberry.
S. S. Glarum.
John Williams.
P. P. Eddy.

This body of hustling citizens is a guarantee to the farmers far and wide that the local arrangements will be such that visitors will spend a pleasant and profitable occasion if they decide to come. This institute promises to be the most interesting event of its kind ever held in the county, and should be well attended. Farmers should make arrangements to be present the entire time. On the evening of the first day a meeting will be held, where a varied program of music, speeches, recitations, etc., will be arranged for, which will be of interest to the town people as well as the country folks.

Let every farmer in the county who can make arrangements to be in Willmar Jan. 21 and 22, and be prepared to ask questions.

The Minneapolis Tribune reporter who accompanied the Minneapolis aldermen to Willmar proved himself no credit to his paper but a positive damage. His report of the investigation was unfair and savored strongly of having been dictated by someone interested in the Bell monopoly. If he had paid less attention to social features and taken some active part in the investigation his report might have been different, if indeed it was not written as above suggested, at the dictation of someone interested on the other side. His report will have no effect on the ultimate decision of the city council, but if not corrected by the Minneapolis Tribune will prove a damage to that paper throughout this section.
