Do You Encourage Trusts

By insuring your property in "board" companies? Do you not know that if it were not for the "mutual" and "non board" companies that your insurance rate would be at least 50 per cent more than it is? F. P. Olney represents a line of non board insurance companies and can furnish you first class insurance at a less rate than is exacted by the "board" agencies and it will be to your advantage to see him as your policies expire or whenever you want insurance.

Our Portrait Offer.

In a few days a corps of young men will start out on a canvass of the county to introduce our premium portrait offer and to solicit subscribers to the TRIBUNE. A great many different premium offers have been made by various newspapers before. We have made some ourselves, but for real liberality and genuine merit this one eclipses them all.

Notice.

A red heifer with white spots has come to my place. Owner please come, prove property and pay charges.

Moses Ferguson, a farmer residing near Breckenridge, was in Willmar last Thursday in search of parties who had stolen a team of horses from him. The theft was committed on the night of the 18th inst. and Mr. Ferguson suspects the thieves to be a couple of brothers who had formerly been in his employ. He said that the circumstances pointed strongly to them as being the guilty parties. One had taken quite a fancy to one of the horses, and had often expressed the wish that he was the owner. The men are described as small in stature and of English nationality. The stolen horses were both taken with saddles. Their weight is about 1100 pounds. The team consisted of a black horse and a milk-white mare. The sheriffs of the different counties along the line were notified and notices posted to wire the sheriff at Breckenridge in case parties are discovered.

Hold-Ups.

Hold-ups are becoming numerous of late. After we had gone to press last Wednesday morning, two cases reached us too late for publication. One took place near the east end elevator the previous night. The victim was a thresher by the name of John Deascher and his assailants gave their names as Frank Shea and James Clark. The assault was committed about nine o'clock, the toughs knocking their victim down and attempting to go through his pockets. Cries for help attracted the attention of some railroad men and the hoboes made their escape. They were soon afterwards found in the west end of the yard and taken into custody by night Policeman Stalland and one of the yardmen, Mr. Carrol. While being marched through the yard, the hoboes tried to escape from their escorts, and while near the passenger depot a scuffle ensued. Shea attempted to draw a revolver from his hip pocket, but Carrol disarmed him. This gave his partner Clark an opportunity to duck away from his captor and he was soon on the run, using a revolver which he shot off several times to scare any one in pursuit. Nels Nelson, who had come to the assistance of the police, finally managed to knock him down and after a hard struggle the authorities soon had him again under arrest. The two were finally escorted to safe quarters. A preliminary hearing was given them on Thursday morning before Justice Olson, who put them out on $1,000 bonds apiece until the next term of court.

The other was a hold-up on train No. 37, last Tuesday night. There were three robbers on the train and they got in their work on part of the train crew a little this side of Minneapolis. Head brakeman Gamblin was robbed of what small change he had, a little less than $2. He punished his assailants by striking them with his lantern and fired a couple of shots after them, but without taking effect. Gamblin soon reported the affair to Conductor Purell, who was in the caboose, and who started to climb out on the train. A shot was fired at him, the ball grazing his cheek. It did not take the robbers long to get off and they made good their escape before the train hands had a chance to notify the authorities.
