The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Addie Magnuson. The season for base ball games has come. It is certainly an entertaining sport especially for fat people. But it might be in a friendly manner suggested that this sport be not indulged in on the Lord's day. There are other days in the week. It is unbecoming in the most decided manner for young people, professing to be church members, to partake in this sport on the Lord's day and draw spectators together to gaze at an exercise that is against the laws of the state as well as against the order of the Christian church on that day. Tess—I detest apples, don't you? Jess—Oh, no. Every time I put on a nice new gown I'm thankful that there was an apple for Eve to eat.—Philadelphia Press. Here Work Than Play. "Does she play whist?" "No. She makes the worst work of it you ever saw."—Philadelphia Bulletin. The White House Mistress. There is probably no situation easier to fill, as far as mere technical observation goes, than that of the wife of the president of the United States. She has a set of simple official duties as hostess of the White House to perform: If she is ill or feels unable to perform them, she is readily excused. A Useful Woman. "Blennerhasset," said Mrs. Bliggins as he was about to start down town, "can you let me have a little money to run the house with today?" "You can have just 50 cents," he growled, flinging the coin at her and slamming the door behind him as he went out. "By the way, Bliggins," said a friend who dropped into his place of business an hour or two later, "will you give security on a note for $500?" "Shortleigh," replied Bliggins, "it is an inflexible rule in my family that I must never do anything of that kind without consulting my wife."—Chicago Tribune. A Summer Without Nights. To the summer visitor in Sweden there is nothing more striking than the almost total absence of night. At Stockholm, the Swedish capital, the sun goes down a few minutes before 10 o'clock and rises again four hours later during a greater part of the month of June. But the four hours the sun lies hidden in the frozen north are not hours of darkness. The refraction of his rays as he passes around the north pole makes midnight as light as a cloudy midday and enables one to read the finest print without artificial light at any time during the "night." The Names of Two Cities. On the principle of "In Rome do as the Romans do" I think it a safe rule to pronounce the name of a place as a writer. Hence we should speak of St. Louis as though it were written "St. Lewis," not "St. Louise." All good Missourians say "St. Lewis." It is a little difficult to put down in black and white the local pronunciation of New Orleans, but it is something like this, "New Aw-lins," with the strong accent on the "Awl." Virus and Venom. The difference between venom and a virus is very marked. Both are poisons and both of organic origin, but a venom is produced in secreting organs, commonly called poison glands, and is introduced into the system by means especially adapted for the purpose, such as stings or fangs. On the other hand, a virus is the result of disease or putrefaction and generally possesses the property of exciting in the system into which it is introduced the disease which produced the virus. A virus commonly produces little if any local disturbance. A venom generally causes great pain, often severe inflammation and swelling. Venom has a marked local effect. Virus causes a general disturbance of the system. Where Voices Are Raised. Russia is the natural home of the basso profundo: Spain is the country of tenors and has been from the time of imperial Rome, when the Gaditanos (Cadiz) singers brought high prices in the slave market; France produces mezzo soprano in profusion; England, contraltos; America, sopranos; Naples, pure sopranos, and no one as yet knows why.—Musical Record and Review. Back to Slavery. "Brer Williams done got 'vorced 'um be wife?" "You don't say!" "Hit's de truth. De jury give 'im his freedom yestiddy." "En what is he now?" "Gone on his honeymoon!"—Atlanta Constitution. Serene Superiority. "Mr. Loftibrow takes himself very seriously," remarked Miss Cayenne. "In what way?" "He asked me if I thought I could be happy with him. As if his presence could make the slightest difference one way or another!"—Exchange. Its Reason For Being. "What kind of a society is yours?" asked her father. "A secret society," she replied. "But what is its object?" "Oh, just to have secrets from the other girls!"—Chicago Post.
