PEOPLE'S PARTY CONFERENCE.

Any or all citizens interested in the preservation of the Peoples organization in Kandiyohi county are invited to attend a conference at Willmar Friday afternoon, Aug. 22, at 1:30 o'clock. The question of a county ticket will then be considered.

S. H. FERGUSON,
Chairman of County Convention.

A big vote for the Peoples ticket will give the principles its stands for a tremendous impetus in the state.

Owing to the lateness of farm work the attendance at the state fair this year will not be what otherwise it might have been.

The second annual free street fair at Willmar promises to be a most interesting event. The city of Willmar extends a cordial invitation to the people of the county and surrounding territory to spend the three days with them.

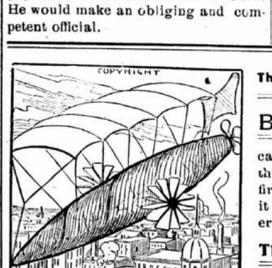

Not to be outdone by Young, who is flourishing the opinion of Congressman Eddy, Mike Dowling has secured a banner from Congressman McCleary. What Eddy is to the north part of the new district McCleary is to the southern counties.

The political situation in Kandiyohi county appears to be quite favorable for a people's ticket, if one should be placed in the field. The writer has never known a time before when the outlook has been as good as it is this year. This in spite of the fact that there is at present apparently an absolute political calm disturbed only by the cries of a few sea gulls.

Aug. O. Forsberg, associate editor of The Minnesota Forum of Willmar, has filed his affidavit as candidate for the populist nomination for congressman in the Seventh district, in response to the call from the delegations from this district at the state convention. Should Mr. Forsberg be nominated and elected, we do not believe the people of the district would have any reason to regret their choice.

Ole S. Reigstad, who has ably represented the Norway Lake-Arctanda-Lake Andrew-Dovre district upon the board of county commissioners for eight years, has announced his intention to ask for the people's nomination for county treasurer. Mr. Reigstad deserves well from the people of the county, having been a faithful guardian of the interests of the taxpayers while a member of the board. He would make an obliging and competent official.

The United States pay the railroads for carrying the mails, including the rental of mail cars, the stupendous sum of $57,000,000 per annum. In France, the railroads in return for their grants of right-of-way, carry the mails free. In cases where the French government owns the mail cars, the roads receive about one cent a mile, almost nothing, for hauling same.

THE YOUNG MAN IN POLITICS.

A great many people deplore the corruption of modern politics who do not stop to consider the reasons for such conditions. One of the most potent causes is the failure to instill in the mind of the young man about to become a voter the true ideals of citizenship. Instead of encouraging him in a broad study of the questions at issue and encouraging him to decide what his course shall be on a line of principle, he is usually urged to join the party in power because he may in that way secure some preference or pecuniary benefit; thus at the very outset corrupting his mind with the idea that a man must necessarily be interested in politics for what there is in it for himself. We know young men who were apparently interested in the discussion of political questions, and who manifested some degree of impartiality of view, to become suddenly unyielding to discuss political matters at all, because some big political mogul whom he had been taught to believe represented the acme of political wisdom had told him that if he wanted to succeed in life he must join the dominant party. In some cases offers of preference are made directly. Every young man who gives promise of ability and shows signs of independence of thought is almost certain to be thus approached. A clergyman of one of the old established churches of this state, in conversation with the writer, recently bemoaned the fact that so many young men who at first gave promise of becoming staunch and true citizens at once upon entering business or professional life seemed to lose these qualities and become passive followers of corruption if indeed they did not openly associate with and identify themselves with men notorious for immoral living and corrupting methods. "What is the use," said this good old pastor, "for us to sacrifice our means and energies to build christian schools and colleges when so many of the very young men whom we try to benefit seem to turn out to be the worst characters when they enter upon their careers?" We ventured to narrate three or four instances that had come to our personal knowledge of attempts made to corrupt young men by promises of preference and by other means, and also ventured to suggest that by giving their sanction to such political leaders and methods practiced by them, parents and educators were neutralizing in a measure the moral precepts they had labored to teach their young men. The worthy old pastor sighed deeply and took his leave. Young men should be taught that the same code of morality and sense of honor which he as a gentleman is bound to observe in his other relations in life are equally binding in his political activities; that his convictions should never be surrendered for preference; that principles endure while parties are transient.—Minnesota Forum.

"Calamity Howlers."

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 13.—Branch banking, asset currency and the Fowler bill recently before congress were violently denounced before the convention of the Wisconsin state bankers this afternoon, being called nothing more nor less than "schemes of the Morganized interests of the east, including Standard Oil interests, to engulf the financial institutions of the country as the commercial institutions have been absorbed or killed off." Resolutions of denunciation were passed by a rising and unanimous vote.

Banker F. R. Frenz of Oshkosh woke the convention up with a talk on the Fowler bill and the branch banking and asset currency ideas.

"There is no spilling of blood in this battle," said Mr. Frenz, "but, bankers of Wisconsin, the hosts of the east, of the Standard Oil Company and the Morgans and the Vanderbilts are advancing upon us, and they intend to lick this country clean."

"The establishment of branch banks throughout the country would furnish the Standard Oil company the means to fight, cut the throat of and exterminate every small bank through the country. They could lower the rate of interest in any part of the country at will."

"You, bankers of Wisconsin, could determine at what per cent. of interest you could barely live on and the branch bank would immediately receive an order to put the rate of interest 1 per cent. lower."

"That's the battle cry of the Standard Oil, and it's worse than any rebel yell that ever fell on northern ears."

"Did you know that a city bank in New York with $500,000,000 would dominate this country if it had branch banks throughout the country? Did you know it would dictate the tariff, make or prevent wars, own all the ships, the railroads, the mines, and hold the whole country in the hollow of its hand?"

Following the address of Mr. Frenz, Joseph Chapman of Minneapolis, secretary of the Minnesota Bankers' association, addressed the convention, talking of the actual experience of the Minnesota bankers at their convention at Winnipeg, Canada, with the workings of the branch bank system.

"In Canada," he said, "the manager of a bank could not make a loan for more than $100 unless authorized by the head manager of the system at Montreal, while farmers and business men desiring large sums had to list their applications thirty days beforehand, and sometimes two and three months, not getting the money unless their security was gilt edged."

Canadian business men, he said, gave it as their opinion that the great growth and prosperity of the United States has been due in great measure to its small independent banks.

He said the bankers of the west would have to stand shoulder to shoulder against the east to prevent the east feeding their cow in the west and milking her in New York city.

Branch banks and asset currency, he said, were held in no favor by Minnesota bankers, and he had come to the Milwaukee convention for the purpose of bringing that word.

The Dear Thing.

Now comes another trust, the harvester trust. It is a new organization, but it arrays itself in the same old garments that the trusts have displayed to us with endless monotony for these many years. Did you ever hear anything like this before?

The manufacturers realize that their welfare and the interests of the farmers are identical. An advance in the price of agricultural machinery would injure the farmers and react upon the manufacturers. But, on the other hand, if existing conditions continued, an advance in prices would be inevitable. It thus became necessary that either the prices should be advanced or that substantial economies should be effected in the manufacture and distribution of agricultural machinery.

O, dearie, dearie, what a nice, kind, amiable philanthropist this harvester trust is. Just like the rest of the dear, lawful, thoughtful trusts. Here were our poor farmers about to be charged higher prices for their agricultural machinery. Before they had time to realize their danger, the manufacturers united and established a trust.

This trust will see that the simple, unsuspecting farmer is not made to pay more than he ought for his harvesters. The manufacturers were being forced against their will to make the farmer pay more, but by an act of supreme unselfishness they have rallied, asserted their benevolent strength, hurled the demon of high prices into the corner, have spat upon him and are now holding him down with $120,000,000 capitalization and a little water cure on the side.

Have hope, O ye of little faith; the trusts will yet save us all from the demitition bowdows of high prices.—Minneapolis Journal, Aug. 14.

The Careless People.
The public today in regard to their legislators are like a careless business man who signs his checks in blank for his clerks to fill out. The prudent business man signs his checks after they are filled out. Voters should have the power to ratify or reject all laws after they are passed. If one of our great business houses had no more control over its agents than voters now have over theirs (the legislators) that firm would likely be wrecked by unscrupulous employes in a few months.—Referendum in a Nutshell.

The machine is to carry the Metonga Lake Brass Band, four of the members of which constitute the Metonga Lake (vocal) Male Quartet, and a battery of speakers including Chas. Scanlon, nominee for Governor, and one of the most capable advocates of the party to be found in its ranks east or west, and B. B. Haugan, another of the strongest of the party's speakers. It is expected that one or two additional speakers will accompany the combination, which will make the strongest aggregation that has ever been toured this, or we believe any other state, in the interest of the prohibition party. And they will work hard and long. The first meeting will be held at about half past eight in the morning, and from that time till night as many towns as possible will be visited. The meetings will all be held from the big machine, which will drive into each town accompanied by the inspiring rhythm of patriotic music, and after a turn around two or three blocks will halt on the busiest corner in town, and deliver a broadside of prohibition logic, music and literature, and whirl on to its next appointment.

Its coming will be announced in advance by posters and the local press, the date and as nearly as possible the hour being stated, and it is assured, by correspondence already in hand, that many people will drive miles to be at the meetings. By this method from four to six towns will be reached daily, and a vastly larger number of voters will be reached at each meeting than can be hoped for in halls. Moreover all cost for local hall rent and local music will be saved, and an interest and enthusiasm will be awakened and an impression made that would be impossible by any other means.

A Patriotic Offering.
The people's party proposes to restore to the people all their collective and individual rights. To do this the party organization must be maintained. The excellent ticket it has nominated in this state represents honest government and freedom of the power of a usurping oligarchy of money grabbers. The people's party ticket represents opposition to all trusts and commercial piracy that absorb the profits of all toil. It represents "government of the people, by the people and for the people." It makes a patriotic offering of such a state government to the electors of Minnesota. Do they want such an one? Their ballots will tell.—National Republican.

Don't Think it a Minute.
The Minnesota Forum, the new people's party paper, is making a good fight for the people's party. Don't think for a minute that this party is out of business. If you could read the favorable remarks of fair minded men and see how the populist papers of the northern, central, western and southern part of the state have taken their stand boldly for the Pop. ticket, you would change your mind. The populists have a set of strong, earnest and capable men on their state ticket.

AN OLD FAVORITE

THE THREE FISHERS
By Charles Kingsley

CHARLES KINGSLEY was born in Devonshire in 1819. He died in 1875. He went to Magdalen college, where he studied for the ministry. Kingsley was made rector of Eversley (1840) and was an earnest advocate of social reform. His "Alton Locke" gives his views on this question. His best known prose writings are "Hypatia," "Westward Ho!" and "Water Babies." His poetical works consist of "The Sain'ts' Tragedy" and "Andromeda and Other Poems."

THREE FISHERS went sailing out into the west—
Out into the west as the sun went down,
Each thought on the woman who loved him the best,
And the children stood watching them out of the town;
For men must work, and women must weep,
And there's little to earn and many to keep,
Though the harbor bar be moaning.

Three wives sat up in the lighthouse tower,
And they trimmed the lamps as the sun went down;
They looked at the squall, and they looked at the shower,
And the night rick came rolling up ragged and brown!
But men must work, and women must weep,
Though storms be sudden and waters deep,
And the harbor bar be moaning.

Three corpses lay out on the shining sands
In the morning gleam as the tide went down,
And the women are weeping and wringing their hands
For those who will never come back to the town.
For men must work, and women must weep,
And the sooner it's over the sooner to sleep,
And goodby to the bar and its moaning.

Prohibition Campaign.
The prohibition state committee has come to the front with a new and up-to-date method of conducting a state campaign. They have purchased a monster automobile with a twenty-five horse-power motor and the candidates will tour the state accompanied by a band. THE BACKBONE tells of the novel plan as follows:
The machine is to carry the Metonga Lake Brass Band, four of the members of which constitute the Metonga Lake (vocal) Male Quartet, and a battery of speakers including Chas. PETERSON, The House Furnisher

"Good morning Sir! I am so pleased to meet you. Where did you buy that elegant bedroom suit that was just taken up to your house? It must have cost you at least $40."

"Yes, it would have cost that had I bought it at any other place than at ANDREW PETERSON'S Furniture Store, where I paid only $32 for it."

"Is it possible? That is the cheapest I ever heard of for a bedroom suit like that."

"Yes, you can rest assured that nowhere else can you find anyone that sells any cheaper than PETERSON, who has his Big Store on the corner of Pacific Avenue and Sixth Street."
