

Lake Elizabeth.
Oct. 7.—Winter is drawing near—but coal is not. There will be no hard coal to be had in Atwater this fall.... J. T. Signal and J. Weeding went to Dakota the first part of last week to bring the remains of Nels Johnson, who was recently shot by Indians.... Gust Swedlund will have an auction sale Oct. 21. He has sold his farm and intends to quit farming for a time.... Jos. Bjornberg went through here last week with his medicine wagon.... By accidental fire S. Stenberg had the misfortune to lose some hay. There was also a stack burned for P. Mossberg.... H. D. Weber and J. A. Simmons of St. Paul and Mr. White of Willmar called on our buttermaker Friday. Mr. Simmons also took a picture of the house.... Rev. J. Johnson held meetings at Stenberg's and Boom's Saturday and Sunday.... John Forsberg was kicked by a horse last week and was unable to work for a time.... Nels Johnson from near Atwater was around Monday and Tuesday buying cattle.... Henry Hjort will soon depart for Kenmare, N. D., where he has his homestead.... Threshing around here is soon finished.... During the middle of next week there will be two lady missionaries conducting meetings in Norblom's schoolhouse. All are cordially invited to come and hear their message.... We regret very much to lose our good correspondent in the "Tribune," "Kid," but hope some one else will take up his work as there is always lots of news from Svea. The Tribune readers can't miss the interesting events going on there. After the school we will have more interesting reading matter from him. We'll forget the quarrel Pen and Kid had and on both sides say good wishes.... Mrs. Geo. Bowman went to Atwater Monday on account of her father, Nels Johnson, being seriously sick after the accident that happened to him Friday. He fell from a car while unloading wood.... A big supply of tubs and salt was hauled to the creamery Saturday.... We are more than pleased that the peoples party has taken up the county local option question. We hope all temperance people will join in and sweep our beautiful county. The majority of the people belong to church. How can you vote for the old whiskey party?.... Farmers can hardly sell cattle, because they are very low in price; but people in cities have to pay a grand old party price—up to 15 cents a pound.... Geo.

P. Johnson of Chicago returned home Saturday after a couple of weeks' visit with his uncle, J. Johnson, near Lake Elizabeth.... Mail Inspector Monroe looked over the proposed new rural delivery route last week. The government seems to be governed by some individuals because they are big political moguls, especially now as it is close to election. We don't want the rural delivery, as it delays our mail coming one day and delays its going one day. Those who want the present system better put up a petition right away or it will come.... Mrs. Wahlen Evelet is at present visiting with relatives here. She will also call at her old home in Mamre.... Irving and Harrison buttermakers spent Sunday with relatives here.... The Engbergs were guests at Norden's Sunday.... Aug. Norin was at Kandiyohi on business Saturday.... Hilda Norin went out to Svea Saturday. PEN.

HON. O. N. GRUE,
Peoples Party Candidate for State Senator.

Oley Nelson Grue was born in Wisconsin in 1856. His parents moved to Carver county, Minnesota, the same year, where they engaged in farming until 1862, when his father enlisted and served as sergeant in Company H, Ninth Minnesota Volunteers, until 1865. In 1868 they moved to this county. Oley attended the common schools and afterwards went to St. Olaf's college, Northfield, from which institution he graduated in 1879. Soon afterwards he married Miss Anna Skataas, and settled on a farm in the town of Green Lake. He has been a successful farmer but has, nevertheless, found time to take an important part in public affairs. He has been clerk of the school board for a number of years, assessor, and chairman of the board of supervisors. He was one of the chief movers in organizing the Doves & Mamre Mutual Fire Insurance Association nineteen years ago, and has been secretary of the association ever since. He has done more than any other man to make the association a decided success. In politics Mr. Grue has always been an earnest worker for what he considered was right and first obtained prominence as a strong alliance leader. In 1898 he was nominated by the Peoples Party for state senator and was elected by a large majority over a candidate that the republicans considered invincible.

As a farmer thoroughly in sympathy with his fellows and understanding the needs and feelings of his class, there is little doubt but that he will be re-elected, and the verdict of four years ago sustained. As to his work in the legislature, the following from the St. Paul Dispatch well states the case: "No member of the senate has secured the passage of more bills than Senator Grue, populist, from Kandiyohi county, unless it be Senator Collier, democrat, from Scott county. One of the reasons for this is that neither tries to play at politics, and the measures of both stand upon their merit."

The November Delinquent.

The Delinquent for November is one of the most notable issues of the year and presents an inviting display of fashions, literary features and domestic matter. With the paper on Data, one of the best in the whole collection, the stories of Authors' Loves end in serial form. In Thyra Varrick, Mrs. Barr's novel, the action becomes rapid and dramatic, and the reader's interest is kept at high pitch. The character development of the chief personages is wonderfully fine. There is an admirably told story by Josephine Dodge Daskam, entitled The Courting of Lady Jane. Another collection of Historic and Other Pictures will delight china lovers; and those who have followed in the preceding issues the triumphs and the tribulations of Jill in the building of her artistic house will be further attracted by her bright account of how the plumbing was done. J. Parmy Paret, the well-known player, has furnished for the Athletic series an article on Tennis for Women which is one of the best published on this subject. For the children the Pastimes are usually entertaining, and in addition to a natural history sketch, there is a delicious nonsense by Carolyn Wells, illustrated by Strothmann. The various departments, fancy-work, housekeeping, etc., are up to their usual high standard.

Sanford Dodge.

Sanford Dodge and his excellent company played to a good house here on Friday evening. Mr. Dodge in the Gladiolus is sustaining his reputation as a strong actor of legitimate drama and tragedy. Nature has fitted him well for the leading part in this famous play and his rendition of the lines gives evidence of intelligent study and comprehension. He has a splendid physique, a strong voice and clear enunciation. With more delicacy of touch, a keener perception of the finer sentiments of the lives and a more varied modulation of voice he would take rank with the great actors of the day. Emma Muncy as Faustina evinced an intelligent understanding of her part and rendered her lines with naturalness and spirit. Zella Leslie's rendition of Neomada, the slave girl, was creditable, though it is only fair to say that she is not equipped with the physical qualities to make a great leading lady. The part of Orben, the Christian priest, was well taken by William Lloyd, who has a good voice and a pleasing enunciation. Though somewhat stagy in his manner Leland Webb makes an effective Flavian. Walter J. Wallace as the pagan priest is fully equal to his part and renders it with a natural ease. The other members of the company are capable and acceptable in their several roles.

Ball Team in Print.
Manager Bonde of the Willmar ball team of 1902 has sent a group photograph of the club to the Minneapolis Times, in compliance with that paper's request to have it published. The work was done by Photographer World, being a reproduction of individual bust pictures of such good-looking men as Bonde, Booth, Tyler, Glarum, Williams, Saterbak, Branton, Nelson and Larson. The young ladies of Willmar threaten to exhaust the supply of the Times when that issue appears.
