Neat Detective Work.

Ed O'Connor and J. L. Johnson, of the Farmers' State Bank of Sacred Heart, did a neat piece of detective work in apprehending a party, Geo. W. Howard, alias Pearson, who bought a draft there. The Journal has the following about the capture: "His capture here was the result of the efficient working of the Minnesota State Bankers Association which sent descriptive cards out to all members. The man bought a draft for $25 at the Farmers State Bank and was recognized from the description given of the forger by Ed O'Connor, who assisted the marshal in making the arrest. The Bankers Association was notified immediately and the sheriff from Benson came down this morning and took his man.—Renville Star Farmer.

SAGE ADVICE

The Editor of Big Chicago Daily Says Country Should Read Local Papers First.

The editor of Hearst's Chicago American, one of the most influential newspapers in America or anywhere in the world today, recently discussed the merits of the local paper in small villages and cities as compared with his own or other large metropolitan dailies in a way that is decidedly unique in the light of the strife and greed and keen competition of the day. The following is what he wrote:

"It would be a big misfortune to the country if the few big papers in the big cities should interfere seriously with the publication of the valuable and intelligent local newspapers, for upon these local newspapers the welfare of the country very largely depends. The metropolitan daily cannot possibly know the needs of the various localities and small cities. Only the local newspapers can protect local needs and influence local public opinion. Of course we are very glad to have as many papers as possible to read the Chicago American, in the big cities and in the little cities. But we hope that in every small town and every village there will be enough intelligence and public spirit on the part of the local inhabitants to support the best local newspaper, giving encouraging approbation and a good living to the editor, who alone can represent and defend justice and public spirit among his neighbors. The man is unfortunate who cannot afford to take two newspapers, at today's prices. The man who can afford only one newspaper, in our opinion, should display his public spirit and his sense of duty to his locality by taking the local newspaper."

The oratorio, "The Holy City," will be presented at Litchfield about the first of September under the auspices of the ladies of the Presbyterian church. It will be given entirely by home talent with the exception of D. F. Colville, a leading baritone singer of St. Paul. It is probable that several Willmarites will attend.

Try the Minneapolis Restaurant for a meal. Mr. O. B. Olson, the new proprietor, aims to please in every respect.

Gleaned from Our Exchanges

Henry Rice and Chas. Johnson, two Willmar young men, have been spending a few days in the city attending the fair and visiting relatives and friends. They have been the guests of the Johnson Bros., of the Spring Water Co.—Glenwood Gopher Press.

The P. & K. Iron works at Litchfield will soon be removed from that town to Fargo, N. D., where it will become part of the Fargo Foundry Co., a corporation recently organized with a capital of $50,000. The business of the company will be the manufacture of gasoline engines, boilers and structural iron work. The P. & K. Iron works have been located at Litchfield for the past 15 years.

Falling to secure any game on a hunting expedition a short time ago Frank Cacks and one of his friends, residing near Dassel, avenged themselves by filling some of Uncle Sam's mail boxes full of holes on their way home. This kind of target practice evidently did not meet with Uncle's approval, however, for he at once despatched Post Office Inspector Drake to the scene of the shooting with warrants for the arrest of the offenders and now the fresh young men will have to show cause why they should not be punished for their unlawful behavior.

Please don't hint business depression to me. Perhaps just for the moment, a slight slackness may be noticed but it will be only for the moment. The great Northwest is too big, its interest too great, its resources too gigantic, its reserve too large, for business stagnation, at any stage of the game. A partial failure of crops, caused by high water and heavy rains, might occur in certain localities, but the whole will come to the front with just as big averages as usual. Business enterprises are getting altogether too sensitive on the subject of prospects, and more courage is necessary. Every ill wind that blows does not strike but few, and there is no need of borrowing trouble before it comes, as most likely it will not come at all.—G. S. Pease in Anoka Union.

MAYNARD BLIND FIG COMES TO GRIEF

At the village election held last March Maynard decided by an overwhelming majority that no saloons should be tolerated within its borders for the period of one year. In accordance with this decision one of the two saloonkeepers at that time doing business in the village closed up and left the place. The other one, named Andrew Hauge, being of a charitable and accommodating turn of mind, at once opened a blind pig refreshment parlor, where he continued dispensing the wherewithal to the thirsty souls of the village. And his efforts in behalf of the people of Maynard seemed to be appreciated. He did a fine business and prospered and it is said that he even abandoned his hatred for the temperance cranks of the village and had come to believe that no license was the only logical solution of the liquor problem after all. Thus matters stood one day when Mr. Hauge was surprised to see the sheriff, the village police authorities and the members of the council come marching into his place of business in a body. These worthy representatives of the people at once demanded an interview with him, stating that they had reason to believe that he was conducting a public nuisance and that he was disposing of intoxicating liquors without a license and contrary to the expressed will of the majority of voters of the village. After some parleying the interview was granted and as a result of it the sheriff removed from the place more than one thousand dollars worth of bar fixtures and liquors and in addition to this he also took Mr. Hauge into custody. The confiscated liquors were destroyed and the bar fixtures will be sold at a public auction tomorrow. Mr. Hauge pleaded guilty to the pigging charge and was fined $40, and thus ended the tale. As a result of the raid another "temperance" saloon down there has now closed its doors, evidently realizing that it is extremely dangerous to trifle with the law, the public or public sentiment.

TOO MUCH "LAKE WATER" CAUSES TROUBLE?

On Monday, two disorderlies, who had been making the rounds of the temperance resorts until they were so filled with the stimulating refreshments that they became a nuisance, were taken into the toils of the law by one of the councilmen. One of the men plead guilty to the charge of disorderly conduct and was fined in Justice Anderson's court. The other could not believe that he had been disorderly until a number of witnesses had been called to make the case clear to him. He then paid a fine and costs amounting to something over twenty dollars. It is to be hoped that this will be a profitable lesson to those who think the public street a proper place to perform after they are no longer desirable company in the places where they have become intoxicated.—Green Lake Breeze.

IS A CARNIVAL WORTH WHILE?

Neither a great deal of dissatisfaction nor a great deal of approval is expressed among the business men of the Carnival last week. In most lines of business there was not as much as at other times, and even stores that did in excelsis and similar goods boast of an exceptional trade. While all do not approve of the carnival, and the people it brings to town, yet all who had dealings with the Cash Carnival Co. speak in the highest terms of the management. It is worthy of publicity that the management paid personal debts here of an advance agent who was discharged from the employ of the company after he was here, and they also honored a vast number of complimentary tickets that he issued. This action on the part of the company deserves the highest commendation.—Morris Tribune.

RAISED FINE CROP OF ALFALFA.

Nels Hoff planted a half acre of alfalfa last spring that has grown nicely. He has already cut two crops and expects to cut another before the end of the summer. The grass attained a height of over two feet and came up quite thick. The second crop was even better than the first. The experiment indicates that alfalfa can be raised here during a wet season. It probably would not do so well a dry year. It would do no harm, however, for other of our farmers to experiment and see just what the grass can be made to do here. Alfalfa hay makes excellent feed and if it can be successfully raised here would prove a great boon to stock raising and dairying.—Kerkhove Banner.

BRICK BLOCK CONTRACT AWARDED TO J. H. OLSON.

The contractor bids on the construction of J. H. McCauley's brick block were opened last Saturday. There were seven bidders in all, but the figures of the four lowest are as follows: Princeton Construction Co., $17,787; Nelson, 17,524; Alton Bros., 17,013; J. H. Olson, 16,441.

The bid of Mr. Olson being the lowest the contract was awarded to him. The work includes the laying of the rock for the basement, the excavating work and rock being furnished by the owner. The size of the building is 58 x 115, two full stories high above the basement. The front will be of pressed brick. The sides and rear walls of common brick. A brick partition will be built in the center of the building as high as the second floor. Steel beams and supports will be used instead of wood in the greater part of the interior frame work. It will be a very durable as well as a handsome building. The work of laying the foundation walls has already been started.—Glenwood Herald.

LUND LAND-RENVILLE TEAMS PLAY REMARKABLE GAME OF BALL

Paynesville, Minn., Aug. 4.—Darkness brought to a close one of the most remarkable games ever seen in this vicinity this evening, when the Lund Land-Renville contest was called at the ninth inning before either side had scored. Jack Phyle was on the slab for the Minneapolis team and he pitched big league ball at all times, allowing but two hits and striking out ten of the Renville heavy hitters.

The Lunds founds George Wilson, the crack colored pitcher, for five safe drives and four Minneapolis players reached third base only to die there, as Wilson was invincible when a hit was necessary to bring in a run. He also fanned fourteen of the Lunds. Two of the Renville players got around to second base, and one reached third on a wild pitch by Phyle, but he was unable to complete the circuit.

LAW FORBIDS TRAINING OF DOGS DURING AUGUST.

Local sportsmen who have habitually "trained" their dogs during the month of August just prior to the opening of the legal hunting season will do well to peruse the provisions of the game law passed at the last session of the legislature. Section 28 of the amended game and fish law prohibits the use or training of hunting dogs during the month of August and declares that dogs allowed to run at large in fields during the month shall be considered public nuisances and may be killed by any person. Their owners are also subject to arrest for a violation of the game law. In the past when a game warden came across an offender in the fields before the opening of the season the excuse offered was that he was "simply training my dogs." The time-worn excuse will not go any longer.—Litchfield Saturday Review.

ADVERTISING THAT COUNTS.

A Wheaton firm is on the right track in the matter of advertising. It quotes the prices on a long list of articles which it has for sale, and in another column gives the prices on the same article offered by a Chicago catalogue house, and the footings show that the local firm will save the purchaser $3.11 on a $45 order. This kind of advertising, if generally indulged in by local dealers, would soon put the catalogue concerns on the run.—Browns Valley Reporter.

HOME MEAT MARKET

W. T. SWENSON, Prop.

As I have rented the Home Meat Market, formerly conducted by F. W. Rose, I wish to inform the public that I shall always cater to the trade so as to merit the best of patronage. Will keep on hand at all times the choicest of Fresh, Salt and Smoked Meats.

I have had some experience in the business before coming to this city, so am in a position to know what is needed in order to successfully conduct the establishment. The public will also profit by the several years of experience of Wm. Rose, who has been retained in the service of this well-known Third street meat market. We shall always aim to please and respectfully solicit a share of your patronage.

Spectator has shown that a pigeon may be made to live on flesh and an eagle on bread."

Flying Fish.

Flying fish are very voracious. In their turn they are preyed upon by barracudas, sharks, dolphins, billfish, redfish and a hundred and one others. Nature has colored the flying fish protectively. The back is a deep blue, merging into the blue of the seas they frequent, so that they are invisible a few feet below the surface, while the underneath is a dazzling white, and to a fish that looks upward must merge into the light falling on the sea. In addition they possess the unique power of flight. Flying fish are about seven inches long, and the spread of wings is about equal to their length. The "wing" is of thin, gauzy substance, having stiffening sinews, like the fiber of a leaf, to strengthen it.

Beautiful Comparisons.

The horse shares with woman the gift of the greatest animate physical beauty, and the classification does the lady no discredit. As for man, his partner in purity is away down the line, probably a mule and maybe a burro.—San Francisco Call.

A CAUTIOUS ELEPHANT.

The Sagacity Displayed by the Animal When Near Quicksand.

One elephant went to assist in extricating some camels which were being engulfed in the quicksand. It showed an amount of sagacity which was positively marvelous. It was with the utmost difficulty that we could get him to go near enough to attach a drag rope to one camel I wanted to rescue. In spite of our being about fifty yards from the bank of the river, he evinced the greatest anxiety, while his movements were made with extreme caution.

Despite coaxing, persuasive remonstrance and at last a shower of heavy blows dealt upon his head by the exasperated mahout, this elephant stubbornly refused to go where he was wanted, but with his trunk shoved out in front of him kept feeling his way with his ponderous feet, placing them before him slowly, deliberately and methodically, treading all the while with the velvet softness of a cat and taking only one step at a time. Then suddenly he would break out into an suppressed kind of shriek and retreat backward in great haste.

When the animal had nearly completed a circuit of the ground with the same caution and deliberation, he advanced to within ten yards of the poor camel, but not another inch would he move, though several men were walking between him and the camel without any signs of the ground giving way.—"The Camel," Major A. G. Leonard.

A Daily Mystery.

A man whose daily income is $50 a day lunching alone in a fifteen cent restaurant and a clerk whose income is $50 a month lunching with a young woman in a restaurant where the cash register doesn't ring up anything under $1. Which is cause and which is effect? Does the fifty-dollar-a-day man lunch thus cheaply that he may be reminded of troubles on earth, or does the fifty-dollar-a-month man dine thus expensively because he wants to forget? Or is the one a fifty-dollar-a-day man because he is careful and the other a fifty-dollar-a-month man because he is a spendthrift?—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sensitiveness of Plants.

Darwin gave it as his opinion that some plants can see, and an Indian botanist relates some curious incidents which tend to verify the belief. Observing one morning that the tendrils of a convolvulus on his veranda had decidedly leaned over toward his leg as he lay in an attitude of repose, he tried a series of experiments with a long pole, placing it in such a position that the leaves would have to turn away from the light in order to reach it. In every case he found that the tendrils themselves visibly toward the pole and in a few hours had twined themselves closely around it.
