Prinsburg, Dec. 23.—A Merry Christmas to our editor, his helpers and all the readers of the Tribune. May the spirit of love and good will fill our hearts and find expressions in good deeds; that our giving be not because we wish for expressions of good will from men, but a giving from a heart filled with the real spirit of Christmas time; and may we be what we seem!

Peter De Ruitter from Minneapolis, who spent a week with the Molenar family and other friends, left for his home Thursday.

Dick Wibbles and George Roelofs left on Friday for a few weeks' visit among relatives and friends in Greenleafton, this state.

J. W. Wieberdink and son Ralph have returned home from an extended visit in the southern part of the state.

A new organ has been placed in the schoolroom of the Kleinhuizen district, the direct result of work done by the teacher, Miss N. Hearn.

Mrs. Peter Vlaar, reported ill recently, is said to have completely recovered.

Miss Gertrude Roelofs spent a few days in Raymond last week visiting with Mrs. Wm. Talen.

Miss Tina Markus, who spent five weeks in Raymond, with Miss Nora Jydstrup, learning the dressmaking trade, has returned home for the holidays.

Lou Myer drove to Renville Friday on business.

The teachers of the different districts have left for their homes for the holidays.

Albert Van Buren has put up a new barn to accommodate his increasing number of cattle. Albert evidently believes in taking proper care of his live stock.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Buren were in Renville Thursday.

Mrs. R. Roelofs is again ill with the asthma.

Quite a change has come about in officers of Prinsburg Mutual Telephone Co. John Bosch, who has so successfully filled the position of president since the organization of the company, resigned and in his stead M. De Groot was elected. The new vice president is J. Mole-nar. It is also reported that the company now has connections with the Farmers' line from Olivia.

Most of the new phones are already in use.

A baby boy came to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Roelofs, two miles south west of Prinsburg, last Thursday.

Dr. McMahon of Raymond was seen in this vicinity several times the past week, looking after our sick people.

Mrs. L. Damhof and Mrs. L. Van den Einde and children, of Roseland, spent Wednesday with Mrs. H. J. Roelofs here.

Services as usual in the church on Christmas day, and in the afternoon the Sunday school will have its annual Christmas festival. The children will give a very nice program, and all are cordially invited to attend.

How to Buy Plants For Christmas. Other things being equal, it is better to buy plants at Christmas time near one's home than to travel afar, says the Garden Magazine. Do not be tempted even by cheap offers of 50 miles away, for counting car fares, packing, expressage and lost time, the ultimate cost is very likely to be more than if you had paid a good deal higher price at home. Of course it may happen that one grower or florist has a large stock of some one thing and can sell at a low rate, but dealers usually have an understanding with one another, especially regarding holiday prices, and for weeks before the holiday season they have been balancing stock with each other, so that the better quality plants are of an almost fixed value. Any specially low price is nearly always associated with a correspondingly low grade in the plants offered. A byword among dealers in plants is, "If you have to shade your price you can always shade your stock." Plants differ from ordinary merchandise in the risk of damage during transit. They may be frozen or injured during delivery and still not show the effects for a day or two, perhaps not until after the bill has been paid. A reputable dealer always assumes the risk and will replace the damaged specimens.

Lake Elizabeth Wedding.

Last Saturday occurred the marriage of Miss Delia Maria Boom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Boom, and Mr. Andrew Peter Bjur, at the home of the bride's parents at Lake Elizabeth. The ceremony took place at three o'clock and was performed by Rev. Anton Nelson of the Swedish Baptist church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Hilma Boom, and the groom by Bernard Forsberg. Joe Bjur and Ruby Boom were flower children. A bounteous wedding dinner was served, covers being laid for seventy-five guests. The young people will locate on a farm at Lake Elizabeth. The Tribune desires to join the many friends of the contracting parties in hearty congratulations.

A characteristic photo, as made by Elkjer, is what you want.

Arctander, Dec. 23.—The long expected surveyor, J. S. Day, is here at last, and it is expected that he will finish the work this week.

Clarence Jelle, who has been working near Courtenay, N. D., the last eight months, arrived here a few days ago. He has been very much pleased with his stay there and states that Dakota is all right.

H. T. Olson and Mr. Tallakson, of Willmar, drove thru this locality last week.

Syvrt Njos arrived home from Canada last week.

Mrs. L. Johnson is staying at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. Westerdahl of Kerkhoven, these days.

Iver Bergum and Carl Evenson attended about buying furs last week.

Nels Monson of Iowa is staying at John Georgesons place this winter.

Mrs. Ronning of North Dakota attended the funeral of her sister, Miss Agot Skindelin, who died at the home of M. Engen last week. Interment took place at the Synod cemetery last Tuesday.

Talfellow wishes the Tribune, together with all its readers, a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

VISIT DISTANT ARIZONA MINES

markable exhibition. The ghost dance is a religious ceremony with the Indians, but it was hard for the visitors to see much religion in the spectacle of the half naked savages dancing around a camp fire in their paint and feathers. The party arrived safely at Copper Creek on a beautiful Sunday morning and spent the day in admiring the mountains and scenery.

Copper Creek is a typical mining town, with a resident physician, a store, a post office, and a school. This little town is located at the head of Copper Creek Canon, and the property of the Company, which consists of about 1500 acres, stretches along either side of the canon for a distance of about 4 miles. Where the mining camp is located is called the upper camp, while about 4 miles farther down the canon is the lower camp, which is ordinarily spoken of as the American Eagle property, that being the name of the claim where the lower camp is situated. The ore at the upper property consists mostly of high grade chalcosites, which runs from 20 to 50 per cent copper, and carries some gold and silver values. These veins of ore can be seen outcropping on the property, and in some cases you can follow the outcropping for a long distance on the surface of the ground. The veins are narrow at the surface, but in all tunnels and shafts the ore gets wider as depth is attained, in some places showing a width of 13 feet. More or less ore was to be found on all dumps where any work had been done, and the visitors estimated that they saw in the neighborhood of 5,000 tons of ore on the dumps at the different works. They went through probably a mile of shafts and tunnels with ore in various quantities, showing in all workings, except where tunnels had been driven through barren rock to cut under an ore body.

Near the upper camp is the main shaft, which has been sunk on an ore vein and which follows it to a depth of 200 feet. Drifts have been run from the 120 and 220 foot levels, following the veins for a considerable distance. This shaft is equipped with several gasoline engines of high power, a hoisting apparatus, a pump and an air compressor. Back of the camp on the mountain side are the Summit, Copper Glance and Grey Copper claims, upon which considerable development work has been done, all of which show ore bodies of considerable size which widen as depth is obtained. Across the creek from the main camp and a little lower down is the Chief claim. A large amount of work has been done here. Near the top of the mountain tunnels have been driven and an ore body of considerable extent and 13 feet wide has been opened. This ore body is pronounced by mining experts to be very extensive and of high quality. On the dump was a large pile of ore which the superintendent of the mine said contained over 500 tons and which would average about $100 a ton at present prices, 500 feet below and on the same claim a tunnel has been driven into the mountain side to a distance of 750 feet in order to cut the ore body at a lower level, and slope down the ore from above. After spending a day looking over the work of the upper property, the party took a trip down to the American Eagle, 4 miles below. On this claim a separate camp is maintained and force of men is constantly employed in mining. This property contains a very remarkable deposit of sulphide ore, which apparently has been forced up out of the top of the mountain. Among mining men this is called a "blow-out." The ore is visible for a distance of about 300 feet on the surface, and is 40 feet wide. Three tunnels have been driven in under this ore body from the side of the mountain, the lowest tunnel being about 150 feet from the top. All of these tunnels are in one and where the tunnels cut across the vein the ore body is 46 feet wide in the lower tunnel. In the lower tunnel a winze has been sunk to a depth of 70 feet, all in solid ore. The ore body, as far as development has now come, shows length of approximately 300 feet, a depth of over 200 feet and a width of over 40 feet. The superintendent of the mine claims that this ore will average at least $20 per ton, and probably $40 or $50 per ton. Most of this ore carries high values of both gold and silver. There are upwards of 2500 tons of ore on the dump ready to be smelted.

Between the workings on the American Eagle and Copper Creek Canon are to be seen 3 more "blow-outs" similar to the one on which the work is now being done, which would indicate there are 3 more large bodies of ore on these claims. Midway between the upper and lower camps is a large flat, a few feet above the level of Copper Creek, which is called the Sycamore flats. This flat has been selected as the smelter site, because there is ample space for large dumping grounds, and ample water to run the smelter.

Back of and near the smelter site are large ledges of iron and limestone, owned by Copper Creek,

For Our Youthful Readers

Interest is increasing in the puzzle department. The prize for the fifth installment, published this week, will be a dollar, and if more than three correct answers are received the money will be divided into a first, second and third prize for the three best written solutions. Answers should be written on one side of the sheet, one sheet for each installment. The answers for the puzzles published this week should reach our office by Saturday evening, Jan. 4, and will be published in the issue of the Tribune Jan. 8.

which will be used for fluxing the ores. The smelter site is lower than any of the other property owned by the mining company, and nearly all of the ore to be smelted, together with the iron and limestone, can be run to the smelter by gravity. An accurate survey is now being taken of all the property for the purpose of ascertaining if any land remains that has not been located on. It frequently happens that strips or three-cornered pieces are inadvertently left unclaimed when claims are first located, and if any are found Copper Creek intends to acquire them at once, to prevent the possibility of saloons being started near the mine.

Across the creek and lower down is the McKenzie camp, where a large force of men is employed in developing a mine for a Scotch syndicate. Across the canon from the American Eagle property the Calumet & Arizona Mining Company are also developing a large property. A man who works for the Calumet & Arizona stated that they had already determined by the use of diamond drills that their property was underlain by an immense ore body, which was 150 feet wide at the 900 foot level. They have ceased doing diamond drill work and now have a force of about 75 men driving tunnels. The Calumet & Arizona hold this property at a value of $5,000,000.

The Copper Creek Mining Company has about 60 men employed at present in the mining camp, 50 of whom are engaged in building a road up the canon to the mining camp. This road is nearly completed, there being only about 4 miles left to build. A steam drill is being used, and the road for a greater distance is blasted out of solid rock. The grade on the road is not more than 10 per cent at any point, and is a fine piece of engineering work.

Everything at Copper Creek gives one the idea of thoroughness. Everything has been done on a large scale with a view for immense work in the future. Nothing has been done that will have to be done again, and apparently no money has been wasted on the property. The superintendent, Roy Sibley, seems to have a complete grasp of the whole situation, and has his work planned out for months ahead. At the present time arrangements are being made for shipping a car of ore to the Colorado Iron works for the purpose of having them make tests with a view of determining the proper kind of concentrating plant and smelter to treat the ore.

After spending three days on horseback looking over the property, the party spent one day hunting in the mountains with the usual hunting luck, and then returned to Tucson. At Tucson an opportunity was given to inspect the books and papers of the Copper Creek Mining Co. The stock books and transfer books were placed at their disposal, as was also the articles of incorpor-
