JOSEPH CANNON SAVED; FOSS IS BEATEN

LATTER CONGRESSMAN DEFEATED BY PROGRESSIVE, ACCORDING TO RETURNS, FROM PRIMARIES IN ILLINOIS

Speaker Believed to Have Carried Every County in District.—Lorimer Democrats, Including Browne, Win.

Chicago, Illinois.—The indications are that Congressman G. E. Foss, after many years in congress, during which he has become a strong member of the Republican organization, may be defeated by George P. Englehard, progressive. Returns from 104 precincts out of 147 in the Tenth district gave Englehard 3,132 against 2,786 for Foss.

James R. Mann, an outspoken Cannon man, met stout resistance from his progressive opponent in the Second district. Returns were exceptionally meager, but the first few precincts showed a close race.

The Democrats who made Lorimer's election to the senate possible were in nearly every instance renominated. The standpaters and progressives split even in the 11th and 13th districts.

John C. McKenzie, a progressive, was renominated in the 13th by the Republicans while in the 11th Gen. W. Conn, Jr., who opposed a progressive, was nominated. Speaker Cannon carried every county in his district.

Result is a Surprise. The closeness of the fight in the Tenth district came as a surprise to most students of the campaign.

While Mr. Foss, who is chairman of the committee on naval affairs, has always voted with the regulars at Washington he stated in his campaign speeches that some months ago he had informed Mr. Cannon that he felt free to reserve his judgment as to how he should vote in the next speaker'ship contest.

G. P. Englehard campaigned on an unmistakable progressive platform and attacked the present incumbent.

TAWNEY HITS BACK

CHARGES FORMER FORESTER WITH MISREPRESENTATION OF FACTS. ALWAYS STOOD BY ROOSEVELT

Support of the Government Within Law His Purpose, He Says.—As Appropriations Chief He Attempted to Benefit People.

Rochester. — Before a audience that cheered him to the echo and on the same platform from which Gifford Pinchot had spoken a week before, Congressman James A. Tawney answered his political critics.

It was a remarkable speech, spoken in a remarkable way. The town of Rochester was out in full force and nearly every community in Olmstead county and in the entire district was represented. The speech was delivered in the Metropolitan opera house.

The address of Congressman Tawney was directed chiefly towards Gifford Pinchot. The fighting congressman, the man who has the reputation of possessing more nerve and fighting characteristics than any man in congress, did not mince matters.

He hesitated to characterize the former forester by the shorter, uglier word, but proceeded to take up the Pinchot charges one by one, and to read the record on him.

The address was pitched on a high plane. Mr. Tawney says the fight being made on him is waged chiefly because of the fact that as chairman of the committee on appropriations, he has awakened the hostility of powerful interests.

He read from the letter written by Senator Albert Nelson to G. L. Swenbeck of Albert Lea in which the senator from Minnesota offers his testimony in opposition to the charges that have been made against the first district congressman.

In outlining the position which he has taken as chairman of the committee on appropriations Mr. Tawney was reserved and took no drastic position. He insisted that this was a government within the law and not a government by executive choice and preference.

With this as a text, the speaker proceeded to show that his actions as the chairman of the committee on appropriations had been actuated by a desire to do good for the public service and to conserve the public revenues.

Relative to former President Roosevelt, Congressman Tawney paid an eloquent tribute to the militant colonel. "I voted for every one of the measures President Roosevelt praised and commended congress for enacting," said the speaker and the audience cheered this magnanimous tribute to the former president to the echo.

"I deny that I am an enemy of Mr. Roosevelt," continued the speaker after the storm of applause had died away. "I do not believe he bears any enmity towards me. Mr. Roosevelt is a man of great force, positive in his ideas and emphatic both in manner and voice when expressing them. I might add, there are other men in this country who possess, perhaps in a less degree, the same qualities. Mr. Roosevelt and I have never had any personal difficulties. Speaking generally we have always agreed upon all public questions outside of the appropriation of public money. Only two years ago, in the first session of the Sixtieth congress, we worked side by side and no man rendered me greater assistance when I was fighting the organization of the house in an endeavor to force it to offer a resolution instructing the ways and means committee to begin work of tariff revision before the Republican national convention declared in favor of such a policy. No man has rendered me more valuable assistance in this fight against the house organization proposition than Mr. Roosevelt.

"I was entrusted by him and his manager, Mr. Cortelyou, with the responsible position of director of the speakers' bureau for the national committee. He was a candidate for the presidency in the United States in 1904. According to his own testimony which I have, I successfully managed the speaking campaign for him in 21 states. For that service he afterwards extended me his thanks and congratulations. From that time until he went out of office as I have said, our differences have been few and were wholly confined to the expenditures of public money."

The dairymen will not be allowed to add cattle to the inspected herd without having them examined first by the state officers.
