

SENATOR GORE'S HAPPY DEMOCRATIC SPEECH

WHAT A 1912 DEMOCRATIC SPEECH IN LIKE

Extracts From a Talk at Duluth by Senator T. F. Gore, of Oklahoma, One of the Heavyweights.

"I am not one of those and I have no respect for the peanut and pinhead politicians who characterize any one of the political party as made up of knaves and fools. The Republicans are not knaves. They are patriotic American citizens. They are not fools. They have licked us too often for that."

"In politics there is nothing on earth I love quite so well as a few Republicans. I wish they were fewer. The principal objection I have had to the Republicans was that there were too many of them. They are rapidly recovering from that objection."

"The great rank and file of the Republican party has as such honor, as much patriotism, as much sense as the Democrats. They don't like it though—I mean when they go to vote."

Senator Gore paid a tribute to the Republican party. He said it was born of a great inspiration and has put some stars of the first magnitude in the firmament of American statesmanship. The first and most brilliant, he said, was Abraham Lincoln, whose greater statesman or patriot had ever appeared in American life.

"I have often said in the past that the Republican party of today is not the Republican party of Lincoln," he said. "It has wandered away from the landmarks of its fathers; it is worshipping before strange shrines; it is worshipping strange, if not unknown, gods. I and other speakers have made that charge and it has been denied. We must be pardoned for feeling some sense of satisfaction, some justifiable pride, in seeing a Republican ex-president and more than half of the Republican party come into the supreme court of public opinion and plead guilty to the charge."

"The ex-president says worse things about the Republican party than I ever have said. He pleads guilty to things not in our indictment. He admits what he formerly denied."

No Vials of Wrath. "During the entire campaign I have never uttered one word of criticism against President Taft or ex-President Roosevelt. I have no vials of wrath to pour out on their offending or unoffending heads. I have no criticism to make of the ex-president. He is behaving exactly to suit me. We would have defeated Taft anyway. Roosevelt has made it impossible for us to lose. Why should I denounce a man who is so serviceable an ally? I shall not kick down the ladder on which I climb, especially while I am climbing."

"President Taft and ex-president Roosevelt know each other well. There is an ancient as well as an intimate friendship. It may be compared to the friendship of Damon and Pythias and of Jonathan and David. They know each other's character, each other's frailties, and each other's frailties, if perchance they have any frailties."

"I have nothing to say against Roosevelt. He is my best friend. Taft, says that Roosevelt is an egotist, a God for God flatterer, a demagogue, a neuritic. I don't know what a neuritic is but I will take President Taft's word for it."

"I have never uttered a word against President Taft. He is left-handed in both hands and in both feet. I don't know what an egotist is but I will take President Taft's word for it."

charge that the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill was responsible for the panic of 1893. The panic was caused by the fall of the Behring Bros. in London in 1890 and was world-wide. It burst first in Australia in January, 1893, and did not reach the United States until May, 1893. The Wilson-Gorman tariff bill passed August 28, 1891.

"How could the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill, which was passed in August, 1894, cause a panic in the United States in May, 1893, and in Australia in January, 1893?" he asked. "Nobody believes it except those who believe a high tax is a blessing and a low tax a curse."

Just a Ratification. "No man will be dazzled by the glamor of prosperity," he continued. "Business was never better. Everybody knows Wilson will be elected next month. That is why there is no disturbance in business. There is no uncertainty about the election. There will be no election. It will be just a ratification."

"The charge that the Democratic party is for free trade is unfounded," he said. "The imagination of those who are trying to pull the high tax wool over the people's eyes. Senator Gore took up the subject of special privilege, and declared that it is as axiomatic that 'Whenever any man anywhere gets something for nothing, some man somewhere parts with something for nothing.'"

"I think and the Democratic party privileges?" he continued. "In my judgment, the principal special privilege and the most unjust is the unequal and unnecessary taxation of the people. I agree with the fathers of the republic who believed that the power to tax involves the power to tyrannize. I disagree with those who believe a high tax is a blessing and a low tax a curse. I disagree with those who believe that the national prosperity is dependent upon the national tax, and think that an increase in taxation insures an increase in prosperity and a decrease in taxation a decrease in prosperity."

"I think and the Democratic party thinks that a high tax is a heavy burden and a low tax a lesser burden, but always and ever a burden. I believe a tax is a necessary evil and not a blessing. I believe if all government, national, state, county and city, could be conducted without the levying of a single dollar of taxation, it would be a great emancipation and a great relief. But it can't be done. Nobody advises free trade. I know of no free traders in congress. One is a Democrat, one a Republican, and the other a Socialist. Let's call it even."

Senator Gore said there is no difference between a direct tax to the city and an indirect tax to the nation. A certain kind of woolen jacket, made by the same manufacturer, sells in the United States at $42 wholesale and in Canada at $41 wholesale and in England at $40 wholesale. "I think that's wrong," he said. "You Republicans think that it is right. You may be right, and I may be wrong, but I ain't."

"The Honorable D. Dixon, who rose in the senate and protested against a freight rate of $70 a ton on woolen goods from New York to Montana, but voted for a tax of $2,500 a ton on woolen goods for which no service is rendered. It is an absolute gratuity out of the pockets of the American people. In Lawrence, Mass., he said 12,000 men were working for the American Woolen company for $7 a week. The company has thirty-two mills and they issue products worth six times their value yearly."

Let Well Enough Alone. "It is all right for the owners of those mills to preach 'let well enough alone,' but will you preach the self-same gospel to the men and women who work in those mills?" he asked. "If the creed of 'let well enough alone' had been followed, men would still be living in caves, wearing skins and gnawing on bones," he said. "The three parties I denounce stand for reduction of the tariff," he said. "The only point is, whom will you commission to do the reducing. The Republican and Progressive parties have always declared that the tariff should be reduced by its friends. The Republican and Progressive parties have always declared the trusts should be destroyed by their friends. The trusts have been destroyed by their friends. The Standard Oil trust has been destroyed. It has been beheaded, crucified and today its stock is worth $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 more than before its demise. It is more valuable dead than living. The tobacco trust has been destroyed by its friends. Its stock is worth 5 to 100 per cent more than during its lifetime. The tariff was also revised by its friends in the Payne-Aldrich tariff law—a sort of homoeopathic remedy that could do the trusts no harm and the people no good."

Senator Gore said that if the progressive theory of a tariff measuring the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad were carried out, tariffs would be needed for each of the 134 countries with which the United States has tariff relations and for all changing conditions in those countries and in the United States. It is an "iridescent dream," he said.

He declared the Payne-Aldrich tariff law sent the cost of living up.

Curiosity Committee. "We of the senate appointed a committee on curiosity to find out what made the high prices high," he said. "I suggested that we also appoint a committee to learn what makes wild cats wild, what makes screech owls screech, what makes humming birds hum, and what makes bumble bees hum. We pass a law that is certain to make prices high, and then wonder why the inevitable happens. It is a sort of habit the inevitable has."

Senator Gore said some ten with a reduction of 5 cents in the tariff on 100 pounds of sugar.

Every time you eat a hundred pounds of sugar you save a nickel," he said. "Every time you eat a ton of sugar you save a dollar. Every time President Taft eats his weight in sugar he saves the price of a shave."

"Our Republican friends were going some then. They were letting well enough alone. Think of the congress and the United States meetings, not in extra session, but in extraordinary session, laboring for five months with the temperature 105 in the shade, and reducing the tariff on sugar a nickel a hundred pounds. They certainly were going some. The Democratic house passed a free sugar bill in one day. Many thought we went too far and too fast, but it would take the Republicans thirty-eight years, at the rate they were going to go as far as we did in one day."

He referred to the vetoing of the wool and farm implement bill, the cotton bill and the wool bills by "Bill" Taft and declared the people will veto "Bill" Taft on Nov. 5.

Offers Solution. Senator Gore offered a solution of the tariff problem. He said he would have every article tagged with the price with the tariff tax added and the price with the tariff tax eliminated. It would please everybody. Everybody who believes in a high tariff could purchase their articles at the price with the tariff included. Those who believe in a low tariff or no tariff could buy with the tariff tax excluded.

"It would thus be done to all according to their faith," he said. "I think that our Republican friends who believe a high tax is a blessing would have an iron-clad monopoly on blessings." The Senator Gore suggested that under his plan a woman who believed in a high tariff could purchase a dress pattern for $15.30, and a woman who believed in a low tariff could purchase the same pattern for $10.

"We could convince any woman that that would be a good thing for the manufacturer, but could we convince any woman it would be a good thing for her?" he asked. "The man not only believes that. He not only votes it, but he pays it."

Senator Gore said he endeavored to reduce from 161 per cent to 70 per cent the rate on good blankets, but Senator Aldrich said to let well enough alone. "I do not believe the tariff is a talisman with which to work miracles," he said. "The Republican party promised and did not keep faith. In politics there is nothing so hard to face as a broken promise. A broken promise drove the Republican party out of the White House, 1910. A broken promise will drive the Republican party out of the White House in 1912. It ought always to drive a party out of power like the whip of the scorpion and the lash of fire in one hand and the promise of heaven in the other. The party is the servant not the master. You are the masters and not the servants."

"The Republican party believes the taxpayer is a blessing and not a burden, but the Democratic party believes taxes are a burden and not a blessing. The Republican party believes trade is a curse and not a blessing; the Democratic party believes that trade is a blessing and not a curse. The Democratic party wants to open the world markets to this country, and then a panic could have no effect on business unless it were world wide. Thirty or forty millions of dollars are spent for the deepening of waterways to encourage commerce and a tariff wall is erected to discourage commerce. "What is the difference between throwing rocks into the harbor to keep commerce out and erecting a tariff wall to keep it out?" he asked. "The object is the same but the means are different."

Senator Gore made a plea for the initiative and referendum and for the direct election of United States senators.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER, LaPorte, Indiana

WHOOPIING COUGH. This disease, which is peculiar to childhood, is divided into three stages for convenience. First, or incubation period, is the period between exposure and full development of the symptoms. This may last from a few days to two weeks. Second stage is the period of full development of the disease; duration of this stage is one to two weeks, or even longer. Third stage is that of convalescence and may last for a period of several weeks. If the disease is contracted in the fall the child may continue to cough throughout the winter months. The complications are many. Some of the more severe are: broncho-pneumonia, convulsions, pleurisy, tuberculosis, acute inflammation of the kidneys and rupture.

Whooping cough is a much more dangerous disease, than is generally supposed. Under improper management complications may arise which are very distressing and at times ruinous to the child's health, or may cause the wreck of some special function. Of children under one year, it is estimated that 25 per cent die, between one and two 15 per cent. It is infinitely better to prevent the disease by avoiding exposure, by instituting abortive treatment, than to allow it to become fully developed. If whooping cough is contracted in the neighborhood, the following is a good preventative treatment; give to children under twelve years of age 6X tablets of Ferrum Phos. and Kali Mur., 1 to 3 tablets each, depending upon the age of the child, three times daily. See to it that their bowels are acting normally, and prevent them from eating pastries and rich, heavy foods.

The first stage is more catarrhal than otherwise, the onset being similar to that of common cold or acute catarrh, such as sneezing, watery eyes, slight fever or chilliness, indisposition and frequent coughing. Treatment, in this stage if carefully and sensibly given, will generally prevent the disease. The patient should be seasonably clothed, especially the feet should be kept warm and dry. After a dilute vinegar bath and a good rubbing with oil of turpentine to the chest, give a cup of hot ginger tea with 1/2 grain of cayenne pepper added. To relieve the paroxysms of coughing, give from the twelve tissue elements (obtained in a Homeopathic drug store) Kali Mur. or Nat. Mur., or both in tablet form of the 6th trituration, 2 to 4 tablets according to the age of the child, 6 times daily. Another good Home Health Club treatment will often bring great relief is the following: Chestnut leaves, 2 oz.; clove cohosh, 1 oz.; lobelia herb, 1/2 oz. Pour over this a pint of boiling water and let it steep for half an hour. Strain and give 1/2 teaspoonful every hour, and more frequently during the spell of coughing.

The second stage—if it has not been turned aside—is extremely distressing and alarming to the parents of the afflicted attendants. It is in this stage that the child is seized with paroxysms of "whooping" if it "whoops" at all during the disease. The "whoop" is produced by the air being expelled from the lungs by several rapid and violent expirations, followed by a rush of air into the lungs, producing the characteristic, prolonged "whooping". These fits are world wide. Thirty or forty millions of dollars are spent for the deepening of waterways to encourage commerce and a tariff wall is erected to discourage commerce.

What is the difference between throwing rocks into the harbor to keep commerce out and erecting a tariff wall to keep it out?" he asked. "The object is the same but the means are different."

Senator Gore made a plea for the initiative and referendum and for the direct election of United States senators.

The Ticket. "The Democratic party has nominated a ticket which ought to commend itself," he continued. "Woodrow Wilson is a man of the highest character and ability and the widest experience. Not only as president of a great university, but as governor of a great state, he has shown his high character. In New Jersey he was instrumental in the passage of sixteen measures favorable to the working man. They said he didn't drive the trusts out of New Jersey, but he certainly drove them out of office. Governor Marshall has ability and produces results. He secured the passage of thirty measures of progressive legislation, more than had been passed during eighteen years of Republican administration in Indiana. "Taft is stand pat in office and out of office."

"Your neighbor in Wisconsin, Bob La Follette, is progressive in office and out of office. "There is another who balks in office and runs away out of office. "La Follette says Taft and Roosevelt are pretenders in their claims to progress. He is the La Follette as a splendid judge of human nature. I have a due regard for the man who stands pat in office and out of office. I have a due regard for the man who insures simply a profit for the few. I do not like the man who stands pat in office and insures out of office."

"Let us elect to the presidency this year a man who has never been devoted to the right against the wrong, to the just against the unjust, to liberty against slavery, to man against graft, to good government against graft-men and graft—a man who will dedicate and high talents with which God endowed him to the service and glory of this great republic."—As reported in Duluth Herald.

Holstein Cow Does Things. All records for milk and butter have been shattered by Creamelle Vale, a Holstein cow owned by Earl Opper of Brockton, Mass. The cow has given 26,930 pounds of milk, with a momentary value of $1,300, since November 15, 1911. A record is given according to the Department of Agriculture statistics about 3,000 pounds a year. Creamelle Vale in one month has given 3,000 pounds.—Ex.

Home Health Club. Dear Doctor: I am a patient who works hard, and am in the open air; do not drink or smoke. Am 5 feet, 10 inches high, weigh 190 pounds, bowels regular; used to be a great eater, but try to cut it down a little. Had typhoid fever and rheumatic fever about 20 years ago, and ever since have at intervals had sick spells. They start with an intense headache over and in my eyes, my head aches and I feel like vomiting, but never do; then I get a dull pain in the small of my back and a burning pain in the knees and some times they are very painful. The head gets a bit better but I have no memory of what I do and do not know where I do not cover my head with a lot of clothing while in bed, I am almost sure to wake up with one of those fierce headaches. I forgot to mention that I am 49 years old. N. H.

You make a direct and concise statement of your case. You seem to understand the importance of out door exercise; of work; of keeping the eliminative organs active and not over eating. From your letter you seem to be a man with good habits and one would think that a man with your knowledge should be in good luck. The statement that you had typhoid fever some twenty years ago gives an insight into your troubles. I imagine that upon thorough physical examination it would be found that you have what is called a "typhoid spine". In very severe cases of typhoid fever the inflammation in the bowels is so great and the shock so profound that a sort of permanent inflammation is set upon in the region in the spine of the bowels, which supply the bowels. The result is a stiffening of the spine. The patient usually suffers more or less from some nervous disorder, so I really think that the best thing for you is a competent physical director, as I believe a system of exercises directed toward breaking up the stiffened spine and also to give you a better control of yourself, would do you more good than anything else. The habit of covering your head at night with bed clothes is very, very bad to say the least. In my opinion that would help to bring on a headache, and a good old republican high top would help to bring on a headache, if you do not care to join a turner society, I would advise you to procure an electric vibrator for giving vibratory stimulations. If you buy one of these machines, I shall be glad to advise you personally just how to use it, in your case. Write me again.

Loebck Receives Endorsement. St. Peter, Minn., Oct. 21.—(Special to Willmar Tribune).—At a large and enthusiastic gathering held in the expansive auditorium of Gustavus Adolphus College, a mixed body of citizens and students, but consisting mainly of students, gave an enthusiastic endorsement to the candidacy of E. E. Loebck of Alexandria for Governor of Minnesota. Speeches were made on the leading political issues of the day by students which brought forth continuous rounds of applause. The motion to endorse Hon. E. E. Loebck for Governor of Minnesota was received with unrestrained enthusiasm. This action came as a surprise to many, being that the present Governor, A. O. Eberhart, is an alumnus of this institution. The name of A. O. Eberhart was not even mentioned on the floor. When asked why they endorsed Loebck they replied that "He is the best equipped man in the race, and the only candidate that knows where he stands and why."
