FEDERAL JURY AWARDS $50,000

Harry Otos Gets Greatest Verdict Ever Given in Minnesota for Personal Injury.

Minneapolis Daily Journal, April 18.—A verdict of $50,000 damages was awarded by a jury in the United States district court today to Henry W. Otos, who was suing the Great Northern railroad for $60,000 damages for injuries suffered while in the company's yards at Willmar, Minnesota. He lost a leg and suffered injuries to his back. The case was sent to the jury yesterday after an appeal for the full amount sued for by Thomas Davis, mayor of Marshall, Minnesota, and a close friend of the complainant, who was prosecuting the case. Thirty minutes later a sealed verdict was returned to Judge C. A. Willard and was read today.

The case was based on an alleged violation of the United States safety appliance act and witnesses were introduced by the plaintiff to show that the accident was due to this violation.

Otos, the complainant, was brot into court on a stretcher and placed on a bed before the jury, where he remained during the greater portion of the trial. It was shown by the testimony that he was trying to uncouple a car in the yards of the Great Northern at Willmar and that the raising pin in the coupler was missing. To complete the uncoupling, Otos was forced to step between the cars, was dragged under the wheels and suffered the amputation of his left leg and a severe injury to his back.

According to the testimony of several physicians, he will be unable to walk even on crutches for at least a year, and at present cannot wear a wooden leg owing to the inflamed condition of his injury. Whether the case will be appealed was not made known today.

Minneapolis Tribune, April 18.—If Harry W. Otos of Willmar gets the $50,000 damage awarded him from the Great Northern railroad by a verdict of a jury in federal court today, it will be the largest amount ever granted for a personal injury by a Minnesota court.

Because of the amount involved and because it was a test case of an act of congress, the Otos damage suit has caused a great amount of interest from the start. Attorneys for Mr. Otos claimed a violation of the safety appliance act which requires all cars engaged in interstate traffic to be equipped with automatic pin lifters so that men would not have to go between the cars to make or loose couplings.

Evidence introduced convinced the jury that the car which Otos tried to uncouple at the time of the accident had a defective coupling and was without a pin lifter. Otos, in his capacity as a switchman, went between the cars, caught his foot in a guard rail and was run over. His left leg had to be amputated at the hip. He brought suit for $60,000.

Tom Davis, mayor of Marshall, argued the case of Mr. Otos with such eloquence that it took the jury only 30 minutes to decide that the railroad was liable and they fixed the amount of the damage at $50,000. Mr. Davis was assisted by E. A. Michel of Marshall.

John I. Dille, of the firm of Cobb, Wheelwright and Dille, represented the Great Northern in the case. Mr. Dille said he would file a motion for a new trial at once.

The trial was held in the federal court building at Minneapolis and began on the afternoon of the 16th and continued Thursday forenoon and afternoon, the jury taking the case about five o'clock. The trial was a great strain on Mr. Otos, who had been at Minneapolis for a week in anticipation of the case being called. While there, he had a minor operation performed at the Swedish hospital, his leg not having fully healed.

The witnesses for the plaintiff were his father and brother, B. T. and Harold Otos; Dr. J. C. Jacobs; the nurse, Miss Annie Schollin; two doctors from Minneapolis who had examined the injury, and J. C. Forsberg and Eben E. Lawson. Photographs by Forsberg and drawings by Lawson were introduced as evidence. The company had summoned a number of witnesses but only three were put on the stand. Mr. Otos and companions returned to Willmar the same evening and were informed of the contents of the sealed verdict by wire the following day. The Great Northern has sixty days in which to make an appeal. It is said that an effort will be made to secure a new trial. In case of an appeal the matter would come before the federal court of appeals, at St. Louis, Mo. The many friends of Mr. Otos are hoping that he will draw the full amount. The law allows him six per cent interest from the time the verdict was given.

A Successful Concert.

Miss Inga Orner, the lyric soprano at the Willmar Opera House last evening, came fully up to the expectations of the most sanguine and greatly pleased the good sized audience which had turned out to hear her.

The greatest asset of Miss Orner as a singer is the pleasing tone quality of her voice. Fresh, clear and lyric, it wins the heart of the listener at once.

It is hard to say which number on the program pleased the audience the most. Although the spirit of the Northland mused pervaded, there was a variety of songs and something for everybody—for the common layman as well as for the more musically cultured. Deibel's Song from Faust, sung with Swedish words, was great and the singer had to respond with an encore. Her second group Miss Orner opened with a Scotch ballad, which with its light vein in harmony and the exquisite enunciation of the singer pleased the audience greatly. The three Norwegian songs which followed "Jeg reiste en deilig sommer kveld" by Greig, "Mot kveld" by Agote Becker Gröndahl; and "Saterjentens Søndag" by Ole Bull were beautiful and touched the soul.

The crowning number from an artistic standpoint was probably the "Aria from Traviata," sung in Italian, in which Miss Orner had the opportunity of exhibiting the wonderful high range of her voice and display her training on the difficult cadences in this selection from Verdi's operatic composition.

As a pleasing contrast next came Collan's "Ros-Mar" and "När jag blef sjutton år," in Swedish, both of which greatly delighted the audience. The Glee Club appeared twice on the program and acquitted themselves well. Arne Sandven played a group of violin solos which were well received and given hearty applause. The concert netted the Willmar Glee Club about $50, and they earned the gratitude of those present as well for having brought Miss Orner to Willmar.

Mr. Ben Shamp arrived from Minneapolis Monday and will spend the summer with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Roske, who live south of town.

Miss Mary Johnson returned to her home at Nest Lake yesterday, after an over Sunday visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ed. Monson.

HANDSOME ANNUAL ISSUED BY SENIORS

High School Class of '13 Does Itself Proud With An Artistic Publication.

"The Senior" is the title of the first annual to be published at the Willmar High School by its senior class. It is a very creditable publication both as to contents and make-up, and is well illustrated by half-tone pictures of faculty, classes and athletic organizations, and with pen drawing by students. It contains 84 pages of good snappy stuff which reflects the joyous days of school life. Miss Margaret Hicks was editor-in-chief with Miss Gerta Rasmussen as assistant editor; Alloys Branton, business manager; with Dana Taylor as assistant. Associate editors were Misses Mildred Severinson, Myrtle Porter, Alcoa Mooney and Ethel Styles. The Junior class was represented by Misses Helen Tallman and Marion Gratz, the Sophomores by Ralph Yarrow and Miss Amy Severinson and the freshmen by Mr. Randall Stockwell and Miss Ruth DeLaHunt. The senior class of 1913 is the largest in the history of the city, it numbering thirty-five, viz: Elsie Anderson, Esther Anderson, Frank Boyd, Martina Berg, Harriet Bomsta, Lillie Boom, Alloys Branton, Madonna Carlin, Homer Chase, Myrtle Cramer, Agnes Dahl, John Feig, Enoch Forsberg, Constance Grangaard, Gerald Geer, Oscar Hedin, Margaret Hicks, Henry Johnson, Lydia Johnson, Roy Johnson, Russell Johnson, Margaret Lawler, Sophus Larson, Alice Mooney, Ingeborg Nelson, Vera Nelson, Mildred Parsons, Myrtle Porter, Gerta Rasmussen, Margaret Rasmussen, Mildred Severinson, Ethel Styles, Elvira Swenson, Dana Taylor, Sophia Tallakson, Arthur Thompson and William Thunstedt.

One interesting feature of the annual is a list of the alumni of the high school, the roster of the twenty-four classes which have preceded the class of 1913. In all they number 309. Of these six are deceased, and 120 of the alumni still claim Willmar as their home.

It is to be hoped that future classes will not show less enterprise than did the class of 1913, in issuing this handsome annual.
