UNTIL a bank book bears your name, you are not advancing or bettering your situation. The young man or woman, of large or small income, is merely treading water until he or she starts to save. There is nothing more gratifying than the reflection that you have a comfortable balance at the bank. The very knowledge that you have the money in reserve to satisfy this desire or that, makes self-denial easy and derives more pleasure than wasteful indulgence.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF KANDIYOHI COUNTY AND CITY OF WILLMAR, WILLMAR, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 1913

CHAUTAUQUA IS GOOD.

The 1913 Willmar Chautauqua is on and has a better general attendance than any previous assembly of the kind held here. The program is so varied and the different numbers so pleasing that the patrons are very enthusiastic about it. There are many farmers among the season ticket holders and they are quite as regular in attendance as the town folks. It is proving a week of rare privilege and of great treats to our people, and the increased general attendance at the sessions is encouraging as indicating that a taste for high class entertainment is being developed.

There are still three full days of the season left, everyone of which will have its own delightful program. Thursday is patriotic day, when Sen. Kenyon of Iowa will give the afternoon address and Dr. Wesley Hunsberger of New York City, of the International Peace Commission, will speak on "The Passing of War." Musical preludes will be furnished by the Euclid Male Quartette, which are classed among the best entertainers on the road. Friday will be another great musical day, when the Ernest Gamble Concert Company holds the boards and gives a full program in the evening.

Saturday will be the closing day of the session but the program will be among the very strongest of the week. Lincoln Wirt, the explorer, will tell of the conquest of the Arctic in the afternoon and in the evening the Kaffir Boys' Choir from Africa will give their unique and interesting program, with musical preludes by Miss Annie Therese Devault. No one who can avoid it, should miss these remaining sessions of the great chautauqua of 1913.

FRIDAY'S GREAT MUSICAL TREAT AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

ONE of the notable musical numbers of our coming Chautauqua Program will be the Ernest Gamble Concert Party. Mr. Gamble, from whom this company secures its name, made his start before the public in a rather unusual manner. He comes before her audience as a well-bred young woman, well-dressed in her home, not with boldness and show of self-confidence and superiority, but with modesty, with an easy confidence bespeaking courtesy and refinement.
At fifteen, Ernest Gamble knew nothing of music, but when he entered the high school of his native town he found that music was a required study. Feeling that he had neither voice, talent nor ear, and being embarrassed at being told to sing before the school, he absented himself without leave. After a rather strenuous interview with Gamble pere, Ernest returned to cope with sharps and flats and to begin what was really to be his life's work. It was not long until his teachers discovered he had an exceptionally beautiful voice, and a marked temperament for music. From that time on his interest grew and it presently became clear that singing was his vocation, and so Ernest Gamble has never ceased being grateful to those first patient instructors, Prof. Theodore Carmichael and Mr. George Lamb.
His first studies were with Whitney Mockridge, then with Alfred Blume, Henry Wood and Alberto Randegger in London; with the great maestro, Sbriglia, teachers of the brothers De Reszke, Plancon and Nordica, in Paris, and with Georg Ferguson in Berlin. Between seasons Mr. Gamble finds time to coach in New York or to spend a few months in serious study in Europe. He has made fourteen crossings of the Atlantic. He never ceases his studies; he is always the student.
The violinist of the Gamble Concert Party is Miss Verna Leone Page, who was also born in Western Pennsylvania, was educated at Oxford College, Ohio, and at Ferry Hall, Lake Forest, Illinois, and at the Chicago Musical College. She is a pupil of Max Bendix and of Michael Banner of New York, Jacobson of Chicago and the great maestro, Carl Hall, of Berlin. Recently she acquired a rarely precious Gagliano violin of 1736 costing a small fortune. With her abundant temperament, splendid schooling and this exceptional instrument, there is no violinist on the platform that is better equipped.
In the hands of Miss Page the violin becomes more than a fiddle. Her modest, graceful manner is as charming as it is indescribable, and her numbers on the program are a constant delight. Her playing of itself would win her enthusiastic recognition with any audience, but when added to that is the winning deportment on the platform, it is no wonder that the audience demands frequent encores. She comes before her audience as any well-bred young woman would meet strangers in her home, not with boldness and show of self-confidence and superiority, but with modesty, with an easy confidence bespeaking courtesy and refinement.
Another feature of the Gamble Party is the perfect balance of the programs. There is no star and there are no inferior supporting members. A chain is as strong as its weakest link and so Mr. Gamble will have none but the best artists in his company. To be a member of the Gamble Party is the hall mark of ability.

Comfort for Railroad Men

Railroad men demand underwear that is both free.
Four or six hours at the throttle is strain enough on any man without underwear annoyances.
Railroad men say that ordinary underwear is worthless in about two trips.
Wouldn't you like to wear a union suit that has stood the fireman's bending test without a rip—break—or single touch of discomfort?
Wouldn't you like to put on a suit that would come back from the laundry big enough for a real man to wear?
Wouldn't you be glad to find a suit that stood the severe railroad test and costs no more than ordinary underwear?
