How It Is Done in Europe and May Be Done in America to the Profit of Both Farmer and Consumer

EGGS AND CO-OPERATION.

Foynes, it is charged back with all bad eggs found in the shipment. In this particular association it is not deemed best to brand the eggs themselves, but every case is marked, so that the bad eggs can always be traced back to their origin. There is also back of every egg the guaranty of the association. Not only this, but a mere glance at the eggs themselves shows their class. The eggs in one case are all of the same size, of the same color, and all have the fresh surface which cannot be preserved if eggs are long stored or much handled.

The Irish Wholesale Society. The Irish Wholesale Society is a central association formed chiefly for the purpose of assisting the local organization in marketing farm produce. It is a federation of local co-operative societies. It has headquarters at Dublin and is managed by shrewd, capable men. They understand the market for eggs thoroughly and have many correspondents at home and abroad. They are often able to foresee and prepare for coming demands and are always able to give valuable suggestions as to when and where produce can be best disposed of. Each week this central society sends out to concerns like that at Foynes letters of advice giving prices and probable profits to which shipments are to be made.

It will be readily understood that with a skilled marketing man in charge, neither time nor eggs are wasted in shipping to markets which are already flooded with eggs. The manager has correspondents and business connections which insure him against any such losses. When the eggs start he knows exactly where they are going, knows exactly who is to take them, knows that there is no to be feared from any other competition with his and knows that he will receive the top market price for every egg sent.

What the Society Does. Last year this Foynes association marketed 1,600,000 dozen eggs. The total expense of handling all these eggs and conducting the affairs of the association amounted to less than one-quarter of a cent per dozen including weight from substations, drayage, postage, rent and all other disbursements.

How It Was Organized and Operated: The Irish Agricultural Organization Society is an association formed for the purpose of helping rural communities to organize their business and marketing processes. Sir Horace Plunkett, an agricultural statesman if there ever was one, is at the head of this society. This association discovered that in the neighborhood of Foynes there were many hens, but that the farmers were getting little profit from them because the eggs were not hurried to market speedily enough, were not tested and were not graded, and consequently, the farmer received a very low price for his eggs. Many cities on the other hand were suffering because they were getting poor eggs. So it was suggested that a co-operative egg buying association be formed at Foynes. A man who understood the marketing of eggs as well as the testing of eggs and something of the raising of chickens and poultry was put in charge of the organization and a small store room was rented. The farmer was required to deliver eggs three times every week. He must gather every egg from the nest the day it was laid. His nests must be kept clean. He must keep the eggs when gathered in a cool place. He must bring in his eggs on a certain day when it was arranged to have enough eggs from other farmers brought in to make a fair sized shipment.

The eggs after having been tested were graded as to size and color and the man who had been placed in charge shipped them to a market known to him, guaranteeing them to be strictly fresh, calling attention to the grading which had been done. The farmers were surprised to find that a price a cent higher than that which they had previously obtained for eggs raised in that community was at once paid, and that consequently their eggs were bringing them more than they had ever brought them before. When the farmer delivered the eggs he was not at first paid in cash; he simply became a partner with the others in the marketing venture. Later it became the practice to pay about the market price for eggs when they were delivered and later this price was supplemented by a division of profits.

In this way it was possible to start the organization without any capital stock. It was agreed, however, that a larger portion of the profits be set aside to make up a reserve fund, and thus a small capital has been gradually accumulated.

More Eggs Laid. It soon came about that not only all the farmers in the community were furnishing all their eggs to the association, but they were saving their pullets and accumulating a larger number of hens to produce the eggs, for which they were receiving so good a price. The city folk are helped, for more good eggs reach them and reach them in better condition. It was deemed wise to enlarge the territory covered by the association and three or four substations for collecting eggs were established. At each of these substations, the eggs brought in are carefully tested, and after having been packed are forwarded to Foynes to become a part of a larger shipment to an English market. The eggs sent in by each collecting substation are kept separately and tested separately so that if any local substation takes any bad eggs and forward them to the association at PENNIES IN THE BOX. I'm Uncle Sam's most favorite pet, I'm hearty and I'm hale, With nothing in the world to do But carry 'round the mail; And one thing almost breaks my heart.

And my nervous system shocks, It's the everlasting pennies That I'm fishing from the box. I carry stamps and envelopes And postal cards and such, And I should like to sell a few; 'Twould please me very much; But a man can't sell unless they buy, No matter how he talks, So I have to keep on diving After pennies in the box.

I can stand it in the summer When the gentle breeze blows, But it's "Glorious Hallelujah" When it's thirty-two below! When all your fingers and your toes Are frozen hard as rocks, It's anything but funny, Scratching pennies from the box. And now, sir, confidentially, I'll tell you something more; A rural carrier, 'way out West, I forgot himself and swore, Said he, "I'll stand the snowdrifts, And I'll stand the frozen locks; But blast the meanly freezing blow, In the blasted meanly box." When the roll is called up yonder And we all shall gather there, They wouldn't let the mail man in, If they knew he'd learned to swear.

If you want Saint Peter to open the gates When your rural carrier knocks, Buy stamps, and don't be guilty Of putting pennies in the box. —Farm Journal.

The Tortures of Rheumatism

are aggravated during climatic changes because the impure blood is incapable of resistance and ordinary treatment seems useless—but the fame of Scott's Emulsion for relieving rheumatism is based on logical principles and scientific facts. This oil-food promptly makes active, red, life-sustaining blood corpuscles and its body-building properties regulate the functions to expel poisonous acids.

Scott's Emulsion, with careful diet for one month, will relieve the lame muscles and stiffened joints and subdue the unbearable sharp pains when other remedies fail.

Beware of alcoholic imitations and insist on the purity of SCOTT'S EMULSION AT ALL DRUGGISTS.

CASE AFTER CASE

Plenty More Like This in Willmar. Scores of Willmar people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

Mrs. M. B. Bailey, 628 Third St. St. Cloud, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our home and have proven very satisfactory. It was about four years ago while we were visiting in Colorado that Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to us by one of our people who had used them with very good results. One in our home then used them for the first time and was much pleased with the speedy and sure relief they brought from pains in the back and other kidney ailments. I too have used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and know that they are just fine. Our experience warrants the high opinion we have of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Bailey recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
