NOW A MILLIONAIRE
John Smith, Who Started His Career in This Town, Returns to the Scene of His Youth.

FORTUNE BUILT FROM SAVINGS.
They years ago John Smith was a manager boy in a store, but he was not content with that. He started to save at the rate of a dime a week. He accumulated enough to invest in himself. With the help of his savings he bought a small business. He gradually increased his business so that he had a goodly amount of money. The progress of the business was so rapid that he was able to buy a fine home in New York. But Mr. Smith has now returned to his native town to live at his magnificent new residence on Main street. He is very proud of his success. He is a model of what the average boy will do.

MARTIN OLSON
Candidate for COUNTY TREASURER
of Kandiyohi County.

Martin Olson was born in Gausdal, Norway, in 1850. He came to Irving township in 1868 and in 1877 moved to Atwater where he is still a resident. He took his full share in pioneer life and in all movements to develop the county to what it now is, and has never before asked the citizens for anything. He believes that it would be but fair that county office honors should be passed around once in a while, and if the voters think so, and believe that he is deserving, he will greatly appreciate their votes at next Tuesday's primary election.

DOUBLE WEDDING AT ROCKVILLE CHURCH

Anna Laura and Amy Elizabeth Lundberg wed Edwin A. Danielson and Merritt E. Nelson.

On Wednesday, June 3, at three o'clock the Misses Anna Laura and Amy Elizabeth Lundberg, daughters of Mrs. Anna Lundberg of Beckville, were given in marriage, the former to Edwin A. Danielson of Rice Lake and the latter to Merritt E. Nelson of Danielson.

When the guests had assembled at the church, Miss Esther Hegstrom of Willmar, sang "When Song is Sweet." She was accompanied by Mrs. Peter Danielson of Colfax.

As the bridal party entered, Miss Hegstrom played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. The wedding procession was headed by the two groomsmen, Ernest Munson of Colfax and Karl Lundberg, the latter a brother of the brides. The bridesmaids, Ebba E. Persson of Northfield and Alice B. Best, followed. The two flower girls, Clara Draxton and Ruby Westberg, then proceeded up the aisle bearing baskets of pink and white sweet peas. The brides entered together and were joined at the altar by the grooms. The ring service was used. The church had been very tastefully decorated for the occasion.

The brides' gowns were white charmeuse silk trimmed in shadow lace and pearls, and made with trains. They wore veils arranged in cap effect with lilies of the valley at the sides, and carried arm bouquets of white roses. The bridesmaids had dresses of white chiffon and shadow lace over pink mesaline and their flowers were pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Lundberg home, which was attended by about a hundred and twenty-five of the immediate relatives and neighbors. A five-course dinner was adorned with snowballs, red carnations and ferns. Rev. Chelgren spoke a few appropriate words while the guests were seated at the table. The waiters were Amanda Lund, Alfred Coleman, Lillie Petersen, Joel Nelson, Ruth Sampson, Agnes Best, Elmer Quist, Amy Lindberg of Willmar and Waifred Lund.

Several musical numbers were rendered by Miss Hegstrom, Miss Johnson, Mrs. Peter Danielson and the Stockholm Orchestra of which one of the grooms is a member.

The wedding gifts were profuse and beautiful. The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Danielson, Mr. Johnson, Miss Johnson and the Munson young folks of Colfax, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Blomquist and family, Mrs. A. Westberg and family, Esther Hegstrom, the Misses Lindberg, and Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Munson of Willmar, and Harry Holm of New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Danielson will be at home after July 1st in Rice Lake where they will reside. Mrs. Danielson will reside on the August Nelson farm in Danielsou. —Litchfield Review.

PASSES THREE TRUST MEASURES

Opposition in House Fades on the Final Test.

Washington, June 6.—Three bills on the administration trust legislation program passed the house and were sent to the senate for action there.

Opposition melted away when the final test came and the voting went through quickly and without incident.

The Covington interstate trade commission bill was passed without a record vote; the Clayton omnibus anti-trust measure received 275 votes to 54 against it and the vote on the Rayburn railroad capitalization bill was 325 to 12.

Washington, June 7.—The senate interstate commerce committee has voted to report out only the trade commission measure of the trust bills. The action was construed by many as an indication of limitation of the administration's program at the present session of congress.

There was no record vote. In a general discussion some senators opposed the motion and others declared themselves opposed even to the bill at the present time. Chairman Newlands said the committee later might take up supplemental legislation and issued a statement in which he said: "The committee determined to segregate the trade commission from the supplemental legislation and have authorized me to present an amendment in the nature of a substitute for my original bill for a trade commission. The committee concluded to name the trade commission the federal trade commission, instead of the interstate trade commission."

The wedding gifts were profuse and beautiful.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Danielson, Mr. Johnson, Miss Johnson and the Munson young folks of Colfax, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Blomquist and family, Mrs. A. Westberg and family, Esther Hegstrom, the Misses Lindberg, and Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Munson of Willmar, and Harry Holm of New London.

Vice President Under Cleveland in Serious Condition.

Chicago, June 6.—Adlai E. Stevenson, vice president of the United States under Cleveland, who had a nervous breakdown following the death of his wife six months ago, suffered a relapse at the Presbyterian hospital. His condition is serious. Mr. Stevenson came here three weeks ago from his home at Bloomington for treatment.

London, June 6.—The campaign of arson and attempts at destruction of property by means of bombs was continued by the militant suffragettes. After Breadstall church, an historic edifice near Derby, was burned to the ground an amateurish bomb was found in Dudhope castle, near Dundee, once occupied by John Graham of Claver House, killed in 1689 in the battle of Killiecrankie. The fuse had been extinguished by the wind.

Sylvia Pankhurst, on an invalid chair, made another appearance at a suffrage meeting and repeated her threat to lie on the steps of the house of commons without food or water until Premier Asquith consented to receive a deputation of her followers.

The National Union of Women's Suffrage societies is doing its utmost to overthrow the Asquith government, the entire onus for the defeat of the woman suffrage bills being placed upon the premier, and at the same time help the Labor party, the only one supporting the women.

Washington, June 4.—Just when a vote on the Panama tolls exemption repeal bill seemed certain to come within a few days the senate foreign relations committee surprised the senate and complicated the situation by reporting favorably a resolution designed to lead to the submission of the dispute with Great Britain to arbitration by the international tribunal.

There was no discussion of the resolution, but it will be taken up before a vote is reached on the repeal bill itself and its appearance before the senate undoubtedly will lead to further debate. The action of the committee was unexpected and came as a great surprise to the senate.

Senator Vardaman, Democrat, of Mississippi, made an impassioned speech, criticizing the president's position and attacking Senator Root, one of the leaders of the opposing side.

 SWEDEN. *****

Everyone is aware of the danger of Russian aggression, says a Stockholm correspondent, and all are agreed that Sweden must do something to put her defenses in shape. Hjalmar Branting, in a speech in Christiania recently, expressed the willingness of the Social Democrats to offer their co-operation. However, owing to the manner in which the Congresses of Sweden during the last election, with Sven Hedin as their foremost champion, represented the matter and described the Liberal government as being friendly to Russia and faithless to the motherland, because it did its best to maintain a strict neutral policy and wished to solve the question of defense without panic, other countries have wondered if the new government shares Hedin's plans. Sven Hedin wants a coalition with Germany, and a rupture with Russia is certain to follow. The Russian nationalist press assures the country that Sweden already has entered into an alliance with Germany and has bound itself in the event of a Russian-German conflict to send troops to Finland. The economic conditions between Sweden and Russia, which had improved steadily for several years, already have felt the effect of this view of the situation. A Russian newspaper has sent a correspondent to Sweden to gather information from well known persons. Premier Hammarskjold and Foreign Minister Knut Wallenberg took advantage of the opportunity to disclaim, on behalf of the government, any co-operation with Sven Hedin or participation in his proposals. "The reports about a Swedish alliance are false," said Mr. Wallenberg. "Our cabinet, like its predecessor, has not deviated, nor will it, from its old policy of neutrality. The dividing line between the two cabinets consists only in the technical question of the extension of the period of military training. We find that a year is required for the more or less satisfactory development of the conscript; in other countries this time is two or three times longer. The military reforms now in preparation are not exclusively on account of the fear of Russia, but are called forth by the necessity of being ready for all eventualities. What do I think of Hedin's agitation? He is, it seems, a sentimental person, and the present leader of the foreign policy in no way to be responsible for Hedin's actions. To this I should like to add and emphasize the following: We have already lived 100 years in peace with Russia, and it is our sincere wish that these conditions may be prolonged still another century. Our endeavors are directed toward cementing friendship with Russia, a friendship that will bring us enormous economical advantages."

The widows and orphans' fund of the state railways of Sweden has issued its statement for 1913 from which it is gleaned that at the end of that year its resources amounted to 20,961,077 crowns, a gain of 1,529,365 crowns during the year. During the year it paid 503,124 crowns in pensions. The expense of caring for the fund and carrying on the work, 12,224 crowns, is remarkably low, considering the amount of money handled.

The exchange of trade between Sweden and the United States during 1913 amounted to: Imports from Sweden to United States $12,295,403, and exports to Sweden $13,586,536, compared to $10,452,650 and $10,504,151 respectively during 1912. This shows an increase of about 20 per cent in the trade between the two countries, and surely is an indication that the proposed direct Sweden-American line will have plenty of business when it starts.

The Western-American states that "Mrs. C. H. Graves, wife of the recent American minister to Sweden, Colonel C. H. Graves, gave a lecture in Omaha, Neb., and her remarks about the Swedish women were far from complimentary. As the women in Sweden have a more independent standing than in the United States her remarks have created some disgust in the Swedish press."

What is believed to be the remains of the balloon in which Professor S. A. Andree ascended from Danes Island, near Spitzbergen, July 11, 1897, in an attempt to reach the North pole, was found in a forest in Eastern Siberia, according to a telegram received at the Swedish foreign office from Yakutz.

The advisability of removing to a new location the statue of Charles XII. at Fredriksten was investigated by Minister Ramel during a recent visit to the field where Sweden's warrior king met his death, says a Christiania dispatch. The monument, which was raised by the Swedes in 1860, is located a considerable distance from the exact spot which modern investigation has pointed out as the place where the king was shot.

Charles XII., whose marvelous campaigns had at one time excited the wonder of the world, had, after a series of reverses in arms, directed an expedition into Norway and laid siege to the powerful fortifications of Fredriksten. In face of a desperate resistance he pushed his trenches to within musket range of the fort. On the evening of Nov. 30, 1718, the king took up an exposed position in the trenches to watch the progress of the fight. A murderous fire was poured from the fort upon the besiegers. Suddenly a group of Swedish officers standing nearby saw the king's head sink upon his shoulder and on approaching they found that he was dead, pierced by a bullet from the fort. The place where the king fell was marked with a marble shaft by King Christian IV. of Denmark in 1723, but as the inscription upon the stone was considered offensive to the Swedes it was removed by Christian VI. When the Swedish monument was erected in 1860 the exact place of the king's death had been forgotten. Modern investigations and excavations have rediscovered the spot, and it is now proposed to remove the monument to the place where it properly belongs.

Jury Decides for Kansas Executive in Assault Case.

A dispatch from Christiania dated May 20 says: "The thousands of Americans who are expected in Norway this summer to attend the celebration of the centenary of Norwegian independence will not lack for spiritual guidance provided by their own countrymen while they are here. An anonymous donor of Chicago has provided for the erection of a tent seating 5,000 people in which evangelistic services will be held throughout the celebration. Dr. A. C.
