KILLS HEIR TO THRONE OF AUSTRIA

Archduke Francis Ferdinand and Duchess of Hohenberg Are Shot to Death.

Serajevo, June 28.—Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, and his morganatic wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, were assassinated while driving through the streets of Serajevo, the Bosnian capital. A youthful Serbian student fired the shots which added another to the long list of tragedies that has darkened the reign of Emperor Francis Joseph.

The archduke and his wife were victims of the second attempt in the same day against their lives. First a bomb was thrown at the automobile in which they were driving to the town hall. Forewarned, however, of a possible attempt against his life the archduke was watchful and struck the missile aside with his arm. It fell under an automobile which carried members of his suite, wounding Count von Boos-Waldeck and Colonel Morizzo.

On their return from the town hall the archduke and the duchess were driving to the hospital when the Serbian, Gavrilo Princip, darted at the car and fired a volley at the occupants. His aim was true, for the archduke and his wife were mortally wounded. With them at the time was the governor of the city, who escaped injury. The bodies of his murdered companions collapsed across him and protected him from stray bullets.

The governor shouted to the chauffeur to rush to the palace at top speed. Physicians were in prompt attendance, but their services were useless, as the archduke and his wife were dead before the palace was reached.

The murders occurred with such rapidity that many persons near the scene did not even hear the shots. The street is very narrow and the assassin fired at close range.

Until the emperor's wishes are known the bodies will lie in state at the palace here. They doubtless will be interred in the Hapsburg vaults in the Capuchin church in Vienna.

WILSON SEES BIG BUSINESS REVIVAL

Declares Trust Legislation Will Not Be Postponed.

Washington, June 27.—President Wilson told a group of Virginia editors that the signs of a very strong business revival are becoming more and more evident from day to day.

The president then recounted the business legislation of the present administration, how efforts were made to postpone it, and continued:

"Then we advanced to the trust program and again the same dread, the same hesitation, the same urgency that the thing should be postponed. It will not be postponed, because we are the friends of business."

"Because, when the program is finished, it is finished; the interrogation points are rubbed off the slate; business is given its constitution of freedom and is bidden to go forward under that constitution."

"And just so soon as it gets that leave and freedom there will be a boom of business in this country such as we have never witnessed in the United States."

A new factor, says the Western American, of importance in European politics consists of the active alliance of the smaller nations to maintain their neutrality. Negotiations are in progress among Holland, Switzerland, Denmark and Sweden so that they will ultimately include Norway and Belgium is evident. They contemplate an entente with the provision that in the event of any small nations being attacked by a large nation all the other members of the alliance will attack the aggressor. As the small nations of Europe have a combined force almost as large as that of Russia or Germany, such an entente would result, it is contended, in the safety of the minor nations. Heretofore these have felt that their security lay in the jealousy of the powers, but ever since Japan became a world factor Holland has been in terror of losing her colonies. Sweden also has been and is in fear of Russia. Holland had about decided to build five dreadnoughts, which would have become the nucleus of a new small nation's navy, when it was decided to postpone action until England could determine which was to be the warship of the future—the dreadnought or the submarine. It is not expected that such an entente as that in view can be completed or officially announced for some time to come.
