COUNTY OPTION IN MINNESOTA SENATE

Vote Stood 36 to 31 After a Hot Discussion of the Question. House Comes Next.

St. Paul, Feb. 5, 1915. County option passed the Senate by a vote of 36 to 31 after almost four hours of heated debate on Thursday. This was the official bill so-called, introduced by Senator F. H. Peterson of Clay County. The bill was favorably reported by the committee by a vote of 5 to 4. The measure was a special order for 2 o'clock, but the galleries were completely filled with expectant spectators fully four hours before that time. By two o'clock every inch of available space on the floor of the Senate chamber was occupied by friends of the senators.

The debate on the bill was full of pep and at times quite personal. Senators Putnam of Faribault and Peterson of Clay offered several amendments to improve the phraseology of the bill, which were all adopted. Senator H. H. Bonniwell of McLeod County then opened the debate with an attack on the bill, speaking of the great expense of the special elections on prohibition in the counties. He claimed that prohibition would lead to blindpigging and law violations. The immediate and systematic applause which followed his speech, plainly showed that the wets were in a very large majority in the galleries. They kept up the demonstration until Lieutenant Governor Burnquist threatened to have the galleries cleared.

Dr. John W. Andrews of Mankato spoke for the bill from a scientific and medical viewpoint. He pointed out that science has proven alcohol to be a poison and he cited numerous experiments to show that even a very moderate use of alcohol lowers a man's efficiency for work. Senator Westlake of Minneapolis spoke against the bill and quoted statistics to show that the per capita consumption of liquor had increased fearfully in this country in spite of a great deal of temperance legislation.

F. H. Peterson of Moorhead, the author of the bill, asserted that Ramsey County would go dry soon. He pointed out the fairness of his bill in requiring a petition of one-fourth of the voters of a county before a county option election would be called, that 40 days are given for a thorough campaign on prohibition before it is voted on, that there must be one wet and one dry on every election board, and that saloons are given 60 days in which to get ready to close after the vote.

Senators Hilbert and J. D. Sullivan spoke against the bill. Senator Sullivan was supposed to be the floor leader of the anti-county optionists and launched out into a very enthusiastic and eloquent speech against the provisions of the bill, commending the present local option laws which, he said, had proven so satisfactory. He stood for home rule and couldn't see why the people knew how to drink in an orderly manner, where they never had any trouble with law violators and where the people were the most honest of any in the wide world, when suddenly Ole A. Sageng, the fighting senator from Ottertail threw a monkey wrench into the gearing which stopped the flow of oratory. Ole wanted to know if Mr. Sullivan didn't represent St. Cloud. Mr. Sullivan proudly admitted that he did. Then Ole asked if it wasn't the city of St. Cloud that had acquired considerable notoriety some years ago for gross violations of the liquor laws of the state and he mentioned something about the removal of the mayor for refusing to enforce the laws, till Senator Sullivan got red in the face and angrily launched into a very bitter denunciation of cranks and kings of cranks, while he admitted the charge made by the Ottertail senator. Ole's little question, however, finished the eloquence of the man from St. Cloud who very soon after that sat down. First, however, he offered an amendment which would make the whole county wet if the majority voted wet, also he said he would not vote for the bill even though his amendment should carry.

The amendment lost 38 to 29. A number of other amendments were offered by the opponents of the bill, some of them quite innocent looking at first blush, but Senator Peterson was quick to detect the jokers and they were systematically voted down. The only amendment put across by the opposition was one by G. H. Sullivan of Stillwater that unearned portions of the license money "shall" be refunded to the saloonkeeper when a county votes dry. The original bill followed the present local option provision and used the word "may." This amendment was accepted by the optionists upon the agreement that Mr. Sullivan withdraw a more dangerous amendment which he had earlier proposed, namely that licenses should continue till the time for which they were issued expired. On this amendment, a rather acrimonious debate took place between Senators Duxbury of Houston and Lende of Yellow Medicine. Duxbury spoke for the Sullivan amendment on the ground that people would be more likely to vote dry if they knew that they wouldn't have to refund any license money but would let the saloons use up the unexpired time of their licenses. Lende hotly accused him of using an old saloon argument which had been dead for the past ten years. Duxbury retorted this and answered in kind. For a while the shots came fast and furious until finally Lende apologized, which settled the matter. Both Lende and Duxbury voted for the option bill on its final passage.

Two senators, Baldwin of Becker and Nord of Koochiching, who were endorsed for election by the drys last fall, voted against the county option bill. Senator Baldwin explained his vote by saying that the bill wouldn't affect his part of the state which was now dry thru the federal "lid," but that he was against the bill because he didn't believe in county option. Senator Nord voted for all amendments and against the bill.

Senator E. E. Lobeck, author of the state-wide prohibition bill who was the prohibition candidate for governor two years ago, voted for the county option bill again this time as he always has in previous sessions while a member of the lower house. His state-wide bill will next be taken up by the Senate and now that county option passed by five votes majority, it is said that the Lobeck bill also stands a very good chance of passage. Nearly all of those who voted for the county option measure will vote for the state-wide bill and a number who voted against county option will vote for a dry state.

All other measures are overshadowed by the temperance question this week. The hearings on the economy and efficiency bill have been pertinent affairs and it is becoming quite evident that the measure will have hard sledding. Objections are being heard to the provision of placing so much power in the hands of a few men. Bureaucratic government, such as proposed by the economy and efficiency commission, does not seem to take well with American citizens. Representative Spooner, however, will use the big stick and his power in the House is not to be sneezed at. If the bill doesn't pass, it won't be Spooner's fault. —I. M. KALNES.

SHORT COURSE BEGINS TUESDAY NEXT WEEK

Live Stock Demonstrations and Corn Show, Two Prominent Features of Big Meet.

Next Tuesday the much-heralded Farmers' Short Course opens at Willmar and promises to become one of the most instructive ever held here. The short course committee have been fortunate enough to secure the live stock special short course for Willmar this year. A special car of the state's best live stock from the University Farm at St. Paul will be here all week. This is sent to but one town in a county each season and is impossible to secure for two years in succession in any one town. The special car will arrive here Monday and will contain three dairy animals, two beef animals and a draft horse. Besides the live stock the car contains other material for putting on at the short course.

Some of the speakers at the short course will be Charles Nelson, Alfred Carlstedt and A. B. Latrop. Come in and make this your winter vacation. Remember that the course starts Tuesday morning, Feb. 16th at ten o'clock and continues the rest of the week. The live stock judging will be held at the Handy-Lewis Garage in the new addition facing the north on Benson avenue. The corn work will be in the guild hall of the Episcopal church. The general meetings will be held in the Court House at the Court House. Corn Show Corn Growers Take Notice.

Those interested in the growing of more and better corn should exhibit samples of seed corn at the Corn Show to be held in the Court House during the Short Course. Part of the work will be in the study of seed corn. For this please bring ten ears of your seed corn just as it runs. If you bring this on or before next Monday, Feb. 15th, it will be ear tested for you and you will get the results of the test on Saturday, the last day of the course. Bring this sample for testing to the main hall at court house tagged with your name and the name of the variety. If you wish to exhibit an additional ten ears for that purpose. This need not be brought until Tuesday, Feb. 16th, when the course starts. Don't forget to bring the ten ears for study and testing.

The great value of a corn show is in the getting together of a large collection of good samples of corn so that all can learn by seeing just what the most successful corn growers think are the types of ears to select. Realizing this and also because that on account of the fact that the short course management is already to quite an expense for rent of rooms, stable room and feed for stock, advertising, etc., it is rather difficult to raise money enough for money prizes, it has been decided to offer ribbon prizes only. Ribbon prizes will be given for the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th best ten ear samples of both the yellow and white dent corn.

Rope Splicing and Halter Making.

One of the features of the short course this year will be a course in making rope splices, tying a number of useful knots and in making rope halters. When the halter rope breaks in the midst of the busiest part of the hay season the ability to splice a rope quickly means dollars and cents to the farmer. A few minutes will suffice to learn a simple knot that will save much time when time is valuable. Who of us have not spent a great deal of time in trying to untie a knot that is pulled up so tight that it is impossible to untie it. You can learn a knot at the short course that can be untied in an instant even though a traction engine has pulled on it. Rope halters are sometimes a necessity. They are the best kind of halters with which to exhibit stock. Nothing will cure a colt of the habit of pulling on the halter quicker than a rope halter. If you attend the short course every day you will learn all of this and much more.
