CHAPTER III. The Irish Patriot.

SO far no man in the little walled-in zone she had lived in had ever stirred Angela to an even momentary enthusiasm. They were all so fatuously contented with their environment. Sheltered from birth, their anxiety was chiefly how to make life pass the pleasiest. They occasionally showed a spasmodic excitement over the progress of a cricket or polo match. Their achievements were largely those of the stay at home warriors who fought with the quill what others faced death with the sword. Their inertia disgusted her. Their self satisfaction spurred her to resentment.

Here was a man in the real heart of life. He was engaged in a struggle that makes existence worth while—the effort to bring a message to his people. Then arose a picture of her sister, Monica, with her puny social pretensions—recognition of those in a higher grade, bread and meat and drink to her; adulation and gross flattery, the very breath of her nostrils; her brother's cheap, narrow platitudes about the rights of rank and wealth.

The memory of her mother was the only link that bound her to her childhood—the gentle, uncomplaining spirit of her, the unselfish abnegation of her, the soul's picture of her sister, giving up her life at the altar of duty at the bidding of a hardened despot.

She was roused from her self searching thoughts by the doctor's voice and the touch of his hand. "Goodbye for the present, Miss Kingsnorth. Sure it's in good hands I'm leaving him. But for you he'd be lying in the black jail with old Dr. Costello glarin' down at him with his gimlet eyes."

Angela sat down at a little distance from the sickbed and watched the wounded man's face. His eyes were closed. His hands were clenched. But he was not sleeping. His fingers locked and unlocked. His lips moved. He opened his eyes and looked at her. "You need not stay here," he said. "Would you rather I didn't?" "Why did you bring me here?" "To make sure your wounds were attended to."

"Your brother is a landlord—Kingsnorth, the absentee landlord, we used to call your father as children. And I'm in his son's place. I'd better be in jail than here."

"You mustn't think that."

"You've brought me here to humiliate me—to humiliate me?" "No. To care for you, to protect you."

"Protect me?" "If I can."

"That's strange."

"I heard you speak today," she paused. "You mustn't go to prison."

"It's the lot of every Irishman today who says what he thinks."

lips as he said, "It was a good speech, wasn't it?" "I thought it wonderful," Angela answered. "And what were yer feelin' listenin' to a man urgin' the people against yer own country?" "I felt I wanted to stand beside you and echo everything you said."

"Did you?" And his eyes blazed and his voice rose. "You spoke as some prophet speaking in a wilderness of sorrow trying to bring them comfort."

He smiled whimsically as he said in a weary voice: "I tried to bring them comfort, and I got them broken heads and buckshot."

"It's only through suffering every great cause triumphs," said Angela. "Then the Irish should triumph some day. They've suffered enough, God knows."

"They will," said Angela eagerly. "Oh, how I wish I'd been born a man to throw in my lot with the weak, to bring comfort to sorrow, freedom to the oppressed, joy to wretchedness! That is your mission. How I envy you! I glory in what the future has in store for you. Live for it! Live for it!"

"I will!" cried O'Connell. "Some day the yoke will be lifted from us. God grant that mine will be the hand to help do it. God grant I am alive to see it done. That day'll be worth livin' for—to wring recognition from our enemies, to—to—to!" He sank back weakly on the pillow, his voice falling to a whisper.

Angela brought him some water and helped him up while he drank it. She smoothed back the shining hair—red, shot through gold—from his forehead. He thanked her with a look. Suddenly he burst into tears. The strain of the life. He was engaged in a struggle that makes existence worth while—the effort to bring a message to his people. Then arose a picture of her sister, Monica, with her puny social pretensions—recognition of those in a higher grade, bread and meat and drink to her; adulation and gross flattery, the very breath of her nostrils; her brother's cheap, narrow platitudes about the rights of rank and wealth.

GERMANS SUFFER IMMENSE LOSSES

Their Latest Attempt to Take Warsaw Is Costly.

ISSUE STILL IS UNDECIDED

Russian Force Has Crossed the Bzura River and Is Seriously Threatening Teuton Invaders.

London, Feb. 7.—On his chosen ground to the west of Warsaw General von Hindenburg, the German commander, is continuing his costly lunge to break through to the Polish capital. At the same time the Russians further to the north have pressed forward and after crossing the Bzura river they are seriously threatening the Germans with an outflanking movement.

Thus another great battle for Warsaw is on, involving perhaps a greater loss of life than any other conflict in the war. The issue is still undecided, but the Russians assert the initiative has passed to them, although further furious German attacks are expected.

The more complex and important struggle in the Carpathians is dragging. In certain sections of the front the Austrians are on the offensive and the capture of 4,000 more Russians is reported. A statement from Petrograd contained the admission that the Russians had retaken the region of one of the mountain passes.

Battle is Very Significant. Particular significance is attached by military strategists to the outcome of the campaign in the Carpathians on the ground that it probably will decide the mastery of the region for the remainder of the war. Should Austria gain a definite victory her territory would be freed from the menace of invasion.

The western war zone has seen virtually no change during the week, but there are many reports of German preparations for renewed activity in Belgium. The German threat of a submarine blockade may be a factor in this situation, the theory being advanced that the Germans expect the allies to attempt to force them back from the coast, with the idea of destroying their submarine base.

Desultory fighting is in progress in the Argonne and Alsace, but elsewhere the western war zone activity is diminished. The German attack in Flanders, although leading to several days of brisk fighting, has not developed into an important engagement and apparently the onslaught has been abandoned.

Wilson Indignant at Misuse of Flag. Washington, Feb. 8.—President Wilson discussed with Counselor Lansing of the state department steps that this government will take to protect the American flag from further misuse by belligerent ships. The conference at the White House lasted half an hour.

It is understood the president is greatly incensed at the action of Captain Dow in the Lusitania in running the Stars and Stripes up on his vessel to protect her from German submarines.

Counselor Lansing has instructed Ambassador Page at London to cable a full report of the Lusitania incident and also to thoroughly investigate reports that the American flag is being used by British vessels whenever their captains deem it expedient to hide the identity of their vessels.

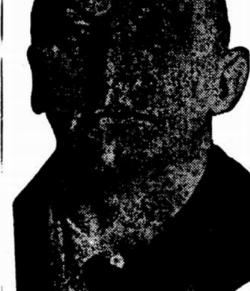

British Army of 3,000,000. London, Feb. 6.—The army estimates, to which parliament will devote the first part of next week's session, give the number of effective men in the army, exclusive of those serving in India, at 3,000,000.

Death Toll Is Twenty-One. Fayetteville, W. Va., Feb. 8.—The death of Remus Chandler, a negro, increased the number of victims of the explosion in the Carlisle mine of the New River coal company, to twenty-one. One hundred and eighty men were entombed and of the 160 who escaped Chandler was the only one hurt seriously.

W. L. Thomas, chief clerk of the state department of mines, who inspected the Carlisle working, said that the explosion resulted from the ignition of gas from an open lamp.

WERNER HORN.

Dynamiter Who Made Attempt to Destroy Canadian Bridge.

Maine Takes Action to Hold German Bridge Dynamiter. Vanceboro, Me., Feb. 5.—Pending a determination at Washington of his political status the state caused Werner Horn, the bridge dynamiter, to be sentenced for thirty days in the county jail. It is expected that before the expiration of this period he will be surrendered to the federal authorities for a hearing on the application for his extradition to Canada.

Deputy Sheriff George W. Ross alleged that when Horn discharged an explosive under the Canadian end of the Canadian Pacific railway bridge over the St. Croix river he maliciously damaged property in this town, where windows in a few residences were broken by the concussion.

Horn was a willing party to the proceedings and pleaded guilty. Widely different was the manner in which Messrs. Rockefeller and Carnegie faced the commission. The audience was composed largely of representatives of labor, Socialists, individualists and members of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Mr. Rockefeller went to the witness stand from a seat in the audience. He declined to sit while reading answers to a list of questions submitted by the commission or while he was being interrogated. He was in a jovial mood.

The answers he gave to questions caused the audience and the commissioners to roar with laughter more than once. Mr. Carnegie enjoyed that. When he left the stand he said he had not spent such a pleasant afternoon in many years.

Mr. Rockefeller was assisted to the stand by members of his personal staff. Seating himself with much difficulty he started to read his answers. His voice was scarcely audible. Mr. Rockefeller appeared to have aged much since giving testimony in public last.

Government Closes Eight Stock Yards. Washington, Feb. 7.—As the result of discovery of foot and mouth infection in Chicago, Indianapolis, Louisville, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Jersey City, Pittsburgh and Columbus the department of agriculture instructed its inspectors to close yards in those cities to interstate shipment of live stock after shipments in transit are disposed of.

Kills Wife and Children. Des Moines man Also Shoots Self, Probably Fatally. Des Moines, Feb. 6.—Frank Amado, an employe in a roundhouse, shot and killed his wife, his eight-year-old daughter and his one-year-old son. Then he probably fatally wounded himself.

Speaker Clark Renominated. Washington, Feb. 5.—Democrats elected to the house in the Sixty-fourth congress unanimously nominated Speaker Clark to succeed himself and chose Representative Claude Ricketts of North Carolina, had taken chairmanship of the ways and means committee and majority floor leader when Representative Underwood goes to the senate.

Nine Men Burn to Death. Sleeping Woodmen Perish When Explosion Ignites Shack. Kane, Pa., Feb. 4.—Nine men were burned to death and six others were seriously injured in a fire which destroyed the sleeping house of the Tionesta Chemical company at Mayburg, Forest county.

Too Much Legislation. Cause of Business Troubles, According to James J. Hill. New York, Feb. 7.—J. J. Hill of St. Paul in an interview here said: "The trouble with conditions in this country is too much legislation."

Steel Magnate on Stand Adopts Jovial Mood and Declines to Sit While Answering Questions.

New York, Feb. 6.—John D. Rockefeller, testifying before the federal commission on industrial relations, asserted he would "be happy to surrender" his holdings, in whole or in part, and let the workers have a voice in the board of directors, just as all other stockholders do, thus giving them some of the profits of their labor. He would be very happy also, he said, to see the workers his partners in business.

With Andrew Carnegie, who also appeared as a witness, Mr. Rockefeller joined in defending the foundations which they have endowed with their wealth and neither would say he believed the institutions constituted a menace to the religious, political or educational liberty of the people of the United States.

A desire to promote the welfare of mankind and that alone, they said, prompted them to establish the foundations which bear their names. Charles A. Lindbergh, representative in congress from Minnesota, preceded Mr. Carnegie on the witness stand. He gave it as his opinion that the exclusive privilege of controlling money and credit which they have by government authority.

WHY NOT?

KC is pure. KC is healthful. It really does make lighter, nicer biscuits, cakes and pastry than the old fashioned single acting baking powders.

And you pay only a fair price for it. No baking powder should sell for more.
