WILLMAR SEMINARY COMMENCEMENT

Twenty-Two Young People Receive Diplomas Saturday Evening.

A good sized audience was present at the Annual Commencement exercises at the Willmar Seminary last Saturday evening. The hall had been decorated for the occasion in the class colors, lavender and green, which decoration included the class motto on the north wall: "Onward."

The salutatory oration was given by Thorwald Rykken, his subject being, "By Products of Education." The effort was logical, straightforward and well delivered.

The Seminary chorus, which followed with a song, did exceptionally fine. Miss Ruth Sanderson delivered an essay on "The Angel of Crimea," which was enthusiastically received.

Next the class sang a song, after which Prof. Pederson presented the diplomas, first giving a few words of admonition and farewell to the graduating students.

The following graduates have so far responded to our request for information as to future plans: MYRTLE E. JOHNSON—Born at West Lake Lillian, on May 29, 1900. Parents—John and Annie Johnson. Expected to secure position at Willmar if possible.

Tom Phullery, Editor.

The idea of a man walking around in the middle of June with-out an overcoat. But that's just what we saw a fellow doing yesterday.

Goose-bone prophets say that if an signs don't fail this will be an open summer. It is even believed that about August tur coats may be unscarred.

Now that the county option election is over and John Harneycon was elected for a few years' vacation trip up salt river it may not be amiss to return to the original question before the house. What is the effect of soda water on the liver?

Editor Hoard of Montevideo used to be a great champion of the dairy cow, but that he had also such a fine appreciation of poetry we did not know. The following clipped from the Leader will go down in literature as a masterpiece:

How They Met. He met her in the meadow As the sun was sinking low, They strolled along together In the sunlight's afterglow.

She waited very patiently While he lowered all the bars, Her bright eyes shone upon him As radiantly as the stars;

But she did not smile or thank him Because she knew not how, For he was but a farmer lad And she a Jersey cow.

POET (?) AGAIN HEARD FROM "Rex" Takes Another Slam at the Incubator Editor.

Willmar, U. S. A., June 5, 1915. Tom Phullery, (Last week it was Fullery) We haven't noticed any license for changing names. We expect it will be D. Phullery next.

In suggesting a word to rhyme with "incubator" we didn't like to mention alligator, fearing the Incubator Editor might think we were getting personal, and of course, we don't like to injure the feelings of people, or editors either.

The Incubator Editor refers to us as bony. When did said editor become troubled with obesity. We admire poetical talent in others but Phullery's latest is obfuscating, and so we omit the following:

Tom Phullery grabbed his pen one day, And at some poetry blazed away, He tried to mimic us, if you please, For monkey does as monkey sees.

ROSELILLIAN. Roselillian, June 7—Mr. Richard Soderberg visited at the Blomquist home last Sunday.

The L. J. Peterson, Wm. A. Lindquist and Kostka young folks visited at the Theodore Renstrom home last Sunday.

Ralph Tatting and sisters autored to Olivia last Saturday afternoon in their Ford car.

Miss Myrtle Renstrom visited at the Gibson home from Thursday until Saturday of last week. Her guests were T. A. Renstrom and A. C. Austmond were seen in this vicinity last Friday.

Mr. Alger Erickson visited at the Eastman home Sunday evening. Wedding bells will soon be ringing in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Johnson are the happy parents of a baby girl born last Wednesday. We look for the cigars, John.

With bloodshot eyes and sails unfurled, His venom at poor Rex he hurled, He that he wrote a beautiful ballad— 'Twas only baled hay turned into salad.

Shades of Whittier, Bryant and Poe If you were only here below, We know it would cause your bones to rattle

To read Tom Phullery's foolish prattle. And still we hope the new born bard Won't take this criticism hard, For if down town he chances to meet

The writer, we promise him a treat. The above was not intended to vex And so we sign, as ever, "Rex."

Well sir, if we allow ourselves to publish any more emissions from the goose quill of the above alleged man of letters, the Incubator Editor might just as well change his name from T. to D. Phullery, first as last, and prefix a few more initials besides.

Now this cross-grained and sophisticated apology for a poet and scholar throws far-fetched insinuations about our being of the alligator species and in the next breath he refers to us as of the monkey genus. Consistency, thou art a whole neckless. As a matter of fact we are no relation of his at all.

We don't even believe in the Darwinian theory, tho we admit that every time we see the phiz of a certain long-legged contemporary poet our skepticism in the said theory gets a severe jolt.

Now it seems to us that a man can refer to another as "bony" without implying that he himself is fat. One man can be bony and another more bony, can't they? But a man who'll use such a word as "obfuscating" out here in the west is apt to get shot.

As to his poetry so-called, the less said the better. We only rise to ask: Who ever heard of Whittier, Bryant or Poe having any shades? Or if "Rex" meant to write it "shades," who ever heard of shades having bones?

Still there is some hope for our friend. Toward the last of his effort the poetic genius gleams faintly like an oasis in the desert. There is a touch of true poetry in the last verse where he promises us a treat. Now that isn't bad at all.

That is we hope it won't be. No "two fers" will go, remember. Only a "Roll of Honor," the best cigar made, will suffice to take the taste out of our mouth.

WORKS LIKE GAS LIGHTS INSTANTLY. You simply light the burners, set the cooking on and the stove does the work without attention. So simple you can hardly believe it, and yet with all the improvements in other lines, why should there not be improvements in oil and gasoline stoves?

There have been and Detroit-Vapor stoves are the result. So simple. Not even a wick or asbestos ring used. These stoves will save you many gallons of fuel during the year. You should have one in your kitchen. The prices are so reasonable that everybody can have one. Call on us as we will be pleased to show you these splendid stoves.

Simply light the burner. Works like gas. Lights instantly. OHSBERG, SELVIG & CO. Exclusive Agents. Willmar, Minn.

BIDS FOR WATER MAIN. Sealed bids will be received by the City Council of the City of Willmar, up to 8 o'clock p. m., June 14th, 1915, for installing a 4 inch water main on Dolson street from Litchfield avenue and north to intersection of Benson avenue and Dolson street. Bids to include all labor and material, and for furnishing and installing one standard gate valve and one standard fire hydrant.

Plans and specifications for the said work may be seen at the Water and Light office, or at the Clerk's office, and all work and material must be strictly in accordance with said specifications. All bids to be sealed, addressed to the City Council, and marked "Bid for Water Main," and bid must be accompanied by a certified check of $25.00 payable to the order of the City Treasurer of Willmar.

The Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids. Dated Willmar, June 1st, 1915. HANS GUNDERSON, City Clerk.

Misses Josephine and Pearl Otterness, Alma and Carrie Boese and Adeline and Marion Marshall are enjoying an outing at the Otterness cottage on Green Lake Beach.

MARKET REPORTS. The price on sorghum has advanced several notches. The cause is thought to have been the big pancake social pulled off at Spicer last week.

As the reports from the county elections come in barley is expected to drop. But the sag in sorghum isn't so you could notice it.

If this weather keeps up, merchants will find that they are overstocked with moth balls.

It looks as tho the icemen will cancel their convention at the World's Fair. They'll need to save what little money they have over from last summer for fuel.

A Little Journey to the Wild Wood. Putting on our sheep-lined overcoat, our ear muffs, and a pair of woolen mittens we started for the woods to commune with nature.

We expected to see Foot Lake frozen but we found only a severe attack of chilblains in its toes. As we approached the grove we expected to see some trees leave, but we did not expect the ironwood box elder such a whack that it spread the ashes, made the fir fly and an old oak tree holler.

We felt near the weeping willow and could hear the weeping willow and felt melancholy. In the distance we heard the birch bark and it made us chery, so we decided we butternut go any farther.

No tree is more prolific than the chestnut. Don't laugh. When the bombardment of the young graduate orators all over the state couldn't clear the weather how can we expect the weather man to do it. And if this issue of the Incubator don't bring summer, what's the use to try?

OUR PUZZLE TEST. The answer to our last week's puzzle was Peter Bonde. You probably haven't heard of the guy before, but he runs a boarding house here in Willmar. If you're looking for a quiet place to stop at, his can't be beat.

There were many answers to the puzzle but the first to report was the Deputy Clerk of Court, a former New London girl.

This week's incubation is a crackerjack and the answer is a well known Kandiyohi county man. To the fifth answer coming to us we will give—well, we don't know yet, but something.

MISS MAUD SCHEERER AND HER SHAKESPEAREAN PLAYERS DELIGHTFUL COMEDY, "TWELFTH NIGHT."

Recruited from THE LELAND POWERS SCHOOL, Boston

Our Chautauqua is going to do something unusual this summer, but you'll enjoy every minute of it. Don't get scared because it is Shakespeare, or make the mistake of thinking it is too "high-brow" for you, for if you have any of the "fun-sense" in you, you will follow with a light Miss Dora Sasa, as the laughter-loving Maria, in her mischievous pranks while she frolics through her part with that rollicking trio, Sir Toby, Sir Andrew and the Clown.

Mr. Arthur B. Kachel, that well-known organizer and producer of Shakespearean plays, who has the entire production in his hands, has endeavored to make a true, simple, correct production which will bring out the charm of Shakespeare's comedy, getting the spirit of the play. The costumes were purchased in Boston by Mr. Kachel and are splendid, rich and true in design.

The Company of nine, all members of the faculty or graduates of the Leland Powers School of Boston, is built around the charming personality and splendid ability of Miss Maud Scheerer, for six years teacher of Shakespearean text with Mr. Powers, student of the late George Riddle of Harvard, close friend and student of Frederick Ward, great, simple, delightful in her interpretations, she will be a very charming Viola and will give poise to the Company.

OBITUARY

MRS. O. A. KILAND. Mrs. O. A. Kiland died at her home in this city Monday, June 7th, after an illness of four weeks. She has been ailing for the past four years but was only confined to her bed for four weeks. Death was caused by perinephritic abscess of the tubercular glands in the neck.
