Pearl of the Crossroads

How She Met Her Fate.
By FREDERICK BRIGGS
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.
Some one said that a sailorman was good for nothing but to chase about the world and send people presents. Pearl Smith had known this all her life, though perhaps she had never resolved it into just that expression. She drew the line at having more than one man on the same ship. Still, there were sometimes no less than four men of war besides a score of merchant ships, in the crossroads of the Pacific at one time. The girl came by the prosaic name of Smith because her father's name had been something else in some other country. He came to Honolulu before the cable was in good working order and remained. Marrying a half caste Kanaka girl, he had kept a sailor's boarding house on King's road since Pearl was a baby. The presents had been coming in since the little girl was big enough to climb on a sailor's knee, and their volume increased with her size. She was grown up at fourteen. To see her then was like being wakened from a sweet sleep on a balmy afternoon by having great clusters of red, red roses pressed to one's cheeks. Young men dropping in at the Crossroads swore that they would never go to sea again, only to ship with the next tide for the Indian ocean in search of a pearl to match her skin. She was like Honolulu days. The shimmering softness of her skin matched the warm afternoon skies. Rich reds of the island sunsets burned in her full, dimpled mouth. Tropic twilight lay behind her lily eyelashes, deepening to midnight in her long hair. Men-of-war's men and merchant sailors sent different presents. The navy men leaned toward fancy jewelry and man-of-war's men toward the traders' stock to silk, uncut rubies, loose pearls, ivory fans and ostrich plumes. This from the young men. To enumerate the junk that was dumped at the feet of this island goddess by silly old sea captains and others would be to copy the cargo bills of an East and West India tradesman. There would also be a list of small animals and birds, with a number of arctic treasures appended. Pearl kept what she fancied, and her father sold the rest. As for a girl accepting presents from a dozen men at the same time, it must be remembered that Pearl lived neither east of Frisco nor west of Suez, which is only another way of saying that the girl was bred in a man's country, where anything a woman gets is so much for her gain and no less for her honor. New admirers invariably meant more presents. But when a sailorman came jolly his superior officer and get anything he wants just for the asking women had better beware of him. When he stands six feet in his socks, laughs out of his blue eyes and conceals a cello note in a dravny voice, so much the worse for the women. Helne—that was as far as they got with his name aboard ship, and it will suffice here—Helne was all of this and more. He was an American bluejacket, boat-swan's mate of the destroyer Shark. There is one amusement the Hawaiians have which Americans do not possess. We are enthusiastic surf bathers and are good swimmers, but a night in Hawaiian waters will never seem so much as a Hawaiian takes with him to the beach a board, usually about twice his length. This board he carries out as far as he can; then, placing himself on it, it bears him, forced by the waves, back again to the beach. Those who are not expert at this exercise may lie flat on the board, but those who are trained to it stand erect, balancing their bodies as they roll toward the shore. He met Pearl at Waikiki beach. She was shooting the surf when Helne saw her first. Standing upright with outflung arms, she balanced on her polished board of kamani wood as it raced ahead of a giant breaker. Swift as the wave she dashed past the swimming sailor, but as the waters broke over his head he remembered every line of her beautiful body. The grace of her attitude struck him harder than the wave. Turning, he swam strongly toward the beach, where the spent roller had landed the surf rider. Half a dozen men were begging Pearl to be allowed to take her board out to the reef again, but she laughed them away with a flash of milk white teeth and struggled out alone. Helne met her a hundred fathoms from the beach, where the water came almost to his shoulders as he stood on the sand. "I'll carry your board for you!" he cried as the girl broke through a wave almost upon him. Started, she turned her head, and the board slipped, striking on her flower month. As the blood came Helne caught her in his arms. The wave, receding, shut the other bathers from view, and for ten seconds the sailorman held the girl close to his heart. "My lip will swell!" she panted, struggling to free herself. But Helne jollied her, just as he jollied the commanding officer of the Shark, and within half an hour she had checked her surf board and bathing costume at the bathroom and was riding back to town with him, holding her handkerchief to the swelling lip. Three days later the fleet was ready to sail. Duskly singers with their tiny guitars strummed the sad "Aloha Oe"—"Farewell!"—in every street. Pearl managed her other admirers so well Helne might have the last evening. When the time came for a final good-bye Helne told her that he was coming back to Honolulu some day. Pearl studied his face; then she pouted. "That's what they all say!" The sailor's eyes danced as he kissed her buried mouth; then he was gone.

Two Different Effects

The quality of food is very largely determined by the ingredients in the baking powder with which it is made. Cream of tartar baking powders, such as Royal, add only healthful qualities to the food. The cream of tartar of Royal Baking Powder as used in food has the same wholesome effect on the digestive system as the cream of tartar in grapes, from which it is derived. In like manner it is in evidence that the unwholesome effects of alum, which is a mineral acid salt, exist in food made with alum baking powder. There is a clause on baking powder labels which names all the ingredients. Read it and let it guide you. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO. New York

GRADE STALLION MORESON

Color: Dapple grey; of Percheron breeding; foaled in 1907. Stallion Registration Board. License Certificate of Grade Stallion. The pedigree of the stallion (name) Moreson, owned by Gust Nordin; bred by unknown; described as follows: Color, dapple grey; breed, Percheron; foaled in the year 1907, has been examined at the College of Agriculture, Division of Animal Husbandry, and it is hereby certified that the said stallion is not of pure breeding and is, therefore, not eligible for registration in any studbook recognized by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The above named stallion has been examined by Dr. P. Nelson, a duly licensed veterinarian, and is reported as free from infectious, contagious or transmissible disease or unsoundness, and is licensed to stand for public service in the State of Minnesota. (Signed) T. L. HAECKER, Professor of Animal Husbandry and Secretary Stallion Registration Board. Will stand this season as follows: At home place in Town of Lake Andrew on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. At Kempf's barn in Pennock, on Thursdays and Fridays. At Henry Nordin's place in Town of Arctander on Saturdays. Terms: $10 to insure with colt; for team owned by same party, $15. GUST NORDIN, Adv. 5-19-14. RT. 1, SPICER, MINN. (First publication June 9-7).

HOW TO PROVIDE THE HOME WITH SEVERAL USEFUL ARTICLES.
A simple and ingenious device has been created to take care of the dolly. Without requiring much space and insuring freedom from creases and dust, the new cretonne dolly roller will be found delightfully serviceable. To a cretonne covered pole about three inches in diameter and a foot or two in length is attached a piece of the material, which winds about the dolly and the pole and ties in a small bow. Particularly serviceable for tea under the trees is the lace cake cover. This, square or elliptical in shape and in various sizes, will keep insects and falling leaves from the dish. It is made on a wire frame, simply covered with lace in a flannel pattern. Less expensive and less suggestive of Victorianism are the telephone screens, which are very attractive and easily made. A small screen frame of wire or wood is covered with silk. Gold lace and tiny rosebuds may be used for trimming, with a braiding or cord about the edges. The lamp and lamp shade are undergoing more metamorphoses than any other single article of furnishing. The newest form is that of the shade charmingly stenciled in silhouettes. A wooden stand for desk or table or even enough for the floor, painted in canary yellow and black or ivory and black, is surmounted by a canary or ivory shade. On the yellow or ivory ground are stenciled the most delicate of silhouettes and copies of old and modern masterpieces. Exquisite bits of spritz life disport themselves with all the dainty vigor of which they are capable. While the best effect is obtained when the lamp is illuminated the black figures hold their own excellently in an outside light.

How to Bake a Fish So It Will Be Delicious.
Do not put water in the pan unless you wish to steam the fish instead of baking it. After the fish has been well cleaned stuff with the following dressing, which is sufficient for a fish weighing from four to six pounds: Take one cupful of crackers, one salt spoonful of salt, same amount of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, tablespoonful of chopped celery, teaspoonful of capers and one teaspoonful of chopped pickles; also add one-quarter cupful of melted butter. Mix well and stuff into fish. This will make a dry dressing. If you prefer a wet dressing, which many people do, use stale bread crumbs or moisten with one beaten egg and the butter or moisten the cracker crumbs with warm water. Place in pan, pat two or three tablespoonfuls of butter over and near fish and when the four has browned baste often with the melted butter. Bake until brown and be sure to baste often.
