CHAPTER III. A Vital Shock For Reginald.

THE home in which Allan Rutledge lived was in an imposing building in one of the best residential districts in Bronson. Reginald rang the bell and was greeted by the minister himself, who was evidently awaiting him, and who warmly welcomed him.

"This is my young son, Abraham," said the minister, introducing Reginald to a young boy of about three years of age. "He is a little fellow, but he is called after a great man. He is a namesake of Abraham Lincoln."

Reginald noticed Allan Rutledge regarding his little son with tear-moistened eyes. "My hope and prayer for my boy," he said earnestly in answer to the other's look, "is that he will be worthy to bear the name of Abraham Lincoln."

"He will be a noble man assuredly if he acquires a character like the noble Lincoln," responded Reginald, becoming serious. "Do you know that it was the life of Abraham Lincoln which first gave me a glimpse of what democracy means and of what life really is."

They were interrupted by a lady entering the room carrying a baby in her arms. She was a gracious looking woman, quite young in appearance, with light flaxen hair and lustrous blue eyes.

"Come in and meet the young Englishman I have been telling you about, Mr. Nelson, this is my wife," said Rutledge.

"I am pleased to meet you, Mrs. Rutledge. What a lovely baby you have!" he added, looking with admiration at the child in his mother's arms.

reply to the archbishop," continued Reginald after a pause. "He plainly told him that a religion which demanded seventeen hours a day for organization and left no time for a single thought about starving and despairing men and women and children had no message for this age."

Allan Rutledge changed the subject again by speaking of his native state of Iowa. The minister saw that the young man now felt entirely at home with him and he asked him seriously, "Will you help us in our work of the Centre church, Mr. Nelson? We need young men like you and the time for you to begin church activity is now."

"But I am not a member of the church," he replied hesitatingly. "We will see about your membership later. Meanwhile, do you think you could sing in the choir regularly? Miss Joy, one of our prominent young members, suggested your name to me today. She seems to have taken quite an interest in your welfare."

Reginald blushed and answered quickly, "You know I met Miss Joy Graham on the boat coming across the Atlantic. She has given me an invitation to the choir herself. I think I can join the choir."

It was an animated scene to which Reginald Nelson was introduced in the Graham home. The tourist club was composed of about forty young people of both sexes.

Two of the older young men were standing aside in a little alcove and after Joy Graham had introduced him to her, one of the two, whose name was George Caldwell, inquired of the other: "Who is that young man? He has the look and bearing of an English lord."

"Fahaw," answered the other, whose name was Roland Gregory, "he's nothing but an ordinary immigrant. Miss Joy happened to meet him on the boat coming across the Atlantic and she is going foolish over him. I will have to stop it."

These two young men, Roland Gregory and George Caldwell, were the leaders among the young people in the social circle connected with the Centre church. Both of them were about twenty-five years of age and mature for their years.

"Excuse me, Mr. Nelson," said young Caldwell, addressing the immigrant, "but here is Miss Derwent, one of our young ladies who has just come in. She wanted to meet the lion of the evening."

the matter, Mr. Nelson?" With an effort Reginald controlled himself, steeled his walk and answered, "I felt dizzy for a moment."

Reginald Nelson thought that the walk to the dormitory of the Normal school was never going to end. Fortunately Vivian Derwent kept up a chatter of conversation, doing almost all of the talking until she left him.

He walked home slowly and meditatively. "What a fool I am to care whether Joy Graham is engaged or not!" something within him seemed to say. "I have only known her for two weeks. What's the matter with me? This American atmosphere has taken me off my feet."

"My God, Joy Graham engaged! No hope for me at all," another voice seemed to answer in despair. "I never knew until tonight how bad a fool I was. I cannot bear to think she belongs to another."

"Reginald Nelson, come to your senses," the first voice responded. "What are you doing? Here you come out to America to do something for your fellowmen. You leave home, friends, prospects, behind you. Once in America you begin mooning like a schoolboy over the first pretty face you see. For shame, Reginald Nelson!"

But the second voice would not be downed. "Engaged to be married," it wailed.

Wendell, 9; Herman, 0.

Next Sunday the Minneapolis Traffic Club baseball team will play the locals at the ball park. The visiting bunch are one of the fastest teams in the twin cities, having beaten the fast Bloomington team last week, by a score of 9 to 4.

On the following Sunday Kandiyohi and Willmar will play in this city, and this game should be the best of the year. It is expected that Morris will be here the 22nd to play off their postponed game. Benson is unable to play here as they have their schedule filled up, thru September 5th. It may be just as well for them that they have.

Atwater and Kandiyohi battled to an eight inning tie, at the latter place last Wednesday evening, the score being 3 to 3. Each team made four hits, and each pitcher was backed well in the pinches. Atwater led by a three to one score until the last half of the sixth, when "Peck" Kietly hit a clean home run, scoring Peterson ahead of him. This was a dandy drive, over the center fielder's head, and Peck was home easily ahead of the throw. Outside this inning, Haroldson was very effective, and the home team could do little with him. Atwater scored one in each of the first three innings. In the first round with two down Arneson was safe on an error and after he stole second, scored on Buck Johnson's safe drive past second. Nordstrom was safe on Monday the 9th, second, was sacrificed by Ronning and scored on Harris's single. In the third, Lipsit singles and stole second. He took third on a wild pitch and scored Arneson's out at first. After the inning Gordhamer had the Atwater batters at his mercy, and they made but one hit in the last five innings. Arnold Negeard, playing second for Atwater pulled the most sensational play of the game, when he separated Bill Johnson's grounder with one hand and threw the runner out at first. Peck Kietly and Bill Johnson played with Kandiyohi, while Buck Johnson and Obbie Nordstrom helped the Atwater bunch. All the Willmar men did good work.

Voice Changes Hands. Yesterday's Murdock Voice contained an announcement that that paper has been sold by E. C. Detunck to Miss Mary McIntyre, 1. Left on base, Under Mr. Detunck's management the Voice has always been an excellent country weekly, has at all times boasted for Murdock and is no doubt entitled to much of the credit for the material progress made by that enterprising little city in recent years.

A deal was closed last week where by Chas. W. Holmberg purchased the 160 acre farm from Chas. Mattson, known as the Pete Hanson place. The consideration was in the neighborhood of $10,000. Mr. Mattson purchased the farm less than three years ago for $7,200, which shows there is still money to be made on land in this country to the man that invests right.—Atwater Press.

Remington-UMC —the Deliberate Choice of the Great Body of American Sportsmen. Nowhere else in the whole field of sport do you find the like of the strong public opinion in favor of Remington-UMC. This Remington-UMC public opinion has been growing for ninety-nine years. Partly it is due to the achievements of Remington-UMC in the design or construction of Arms and Ammunition. But back of these achievements stands the fact that your American is the most practical-minded sportsman in the world —and the most loyal to the arms and ammunition that give him the service he knows he ought to have. He it is who is holding up the hands of the Remington-UMC dealer—making the Red Ball Mark of Remington-UMC the Sign of Sportsmen's Headquarters in your town.
