ODDITIES OF VISION.

Peculiar Optical Effects and the Yellow Spot in the Eye.

If one places a pinhead up close to and directly in front of the eye the head of the pin appears transparent and things may be seen as easily through it as through a sheet of isinglass, the head appearing simply as a large round cloud. If it is placed somewhat closer no pin or head can be seen at all.

If one goes into a very dark room and puts a lighted candle near the side of one eye very pretty and peculiar effects are observed. A tracery, forming a regular network, can be easily detected, and this is merely the shadow thrown by the candle on the retina of the eye of the small capillary blood vessels between the retina and the candle.

If one looks to the side of a dim star in the heavens the star appears a great deal brighter than direct vision makes it appear. This is because the light in the direct view falls on what is known as the "yellow spot" or point of keenest vision. As this is not put directly behind the front of the eye the side glance is necessary. Some people can see stars that way that they cannot perceive at all on direct vision.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

DO YOUR VERY BEST.

Be Earnest and Thorough and You Are Bound to Succeed.

There is a feature of Dickens' character which cannot be too often or too seriously insisted upon, and that is his intense earnestness and thoroughness in everything he did. He said to me more than once:

"My dear boy, do everything that you best. If you do that neither I nor any one else can find fault with you, even if you fail. For myself, I can honestly say that I have taken as great pains with the smallest thing I ever did as with the biggest."

In giving advice to a young author he said on one occasion:

"If you want your public to believe in what you write you must believe in it yourself. When I am describing a scene I can as distinctly see what I am describing as I can see you now. So real are my characters to me that on one occasion I had fixed upon the course which one of them was to pursue. The character, however, got hold of me and made me do exactly the opposite to what I had intended, but I was so sure that he was right and I was wrong that I let him have his own way."

Whatever he did either in work or at play he always gave his very best. He hated slackness or half-heartedness in any shape or form.—Harper's Weekly.

Futility of Argument.
Plato defined man as "a two legged animal without feathers." Diogenes, who heard this, plucked a cock. "This is Plato's man," said he. But never you think the old timer lacked a "come-back." He added to his original definition the words, "With broad flat nails." Such is the futility of argument.—Springfield Republican.

Judge Gilbert Hears Will Contest Case at Glenwood Last Week.

Judge Gilbert of Willmar presided at the hearing on the petition for the allowance of the will of Mrs. Kinney Jones at the court room in Glenwood Tuesday. Mrs. Jones by her last will gave all of her property to Miss Helen Kinney, a sister of K. J. Kinney, Mrs. Jones' second husband. A contest was instituted by Gilbert, John and Judd Hayford and Mrs. Elizabeth McCann, brothers and sister of the deceased, who alleged that Mrs. Jones was mentally incompetent to dispose of her property at the time this will was drawn. After all of the evidence had been submitted Judge Gilbert announced that he would take the case under advisement and that he would file his decision in a short time.—Glenwood Herald.

Joke on Englishman.

A good one on the Englishman: A. C. Soltau made the remark that other night that he would rather shave three Germans than one Englishman. The next morning one of our English citizens called at the shop to inquire the reason why, and was told that he would receive forty-five cents from the Germans and only fifteen cents from one Englishman.—Brooklyn Review.

One Thing Apparent.

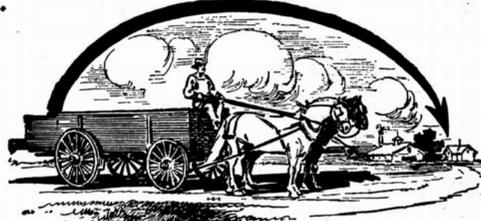

There were so many changes made in the school laws last winter that it puzzles the average board of education to know just what is meant by the complex condition of affairs. There is one thing, however, that all can understand and that is that the legislature cut down the appropriation for school purposes.—Madison Independent.

This Year's Crops Make These Improvements Possible

A number of farmers in this part of the state have been waiting for just such a year as this to make improvements that were badly needed.

- New homes
- new barns
- more fences
- modern hog houses
- machine sheds
- more live stock

These are only some of the actual necessities I know of on many farms. Already the prospect for a good year's crop brought some farmers in to figure on the work they must do soon.

I want to see others just as soon as they can come in.
