cheapest. The seed doesn't cost much, after all, in proportion to the labor put on plants, once they start. A full crop is important, and possible only with good seed.

Harold Simmons, an apple grower at Howard Lake, has averaged $3.27 per barrel for Duchess apples for three years. The cost of barrels, spraying, picking, etc., was 66 cents per barrel. The freight and commission was 69 cents, making a total cost of $1.35 to raise and market the crop. Wealthy apples cost him $1.44, and he received $3.75 per barrel. He thinks the profits from his orchard are commensurate with the care he takes. Orchard is his main work, not a side line. He does his own pruning and supervises carefully his spraying and picking.—LeRoy Cady.

Will Furnish Queens.

The Division of Bee Culture of the Minnesota Experiment Station, next summer, will help bee-keepers of the state to requeen their apiaries by sending out queen bees for breeding purposes. Francis Jager says that nearly all bees in the state at present are hybrid and hard to manage. Moreover in many parts of the state bees have been inbred for years, which makes the introduction of new blood a necessity. The queens to be sent out will be leather colored, Italian queens of choicest stock. A charge of 50 cents for each queen will be made and not more than three queens will be sent to any one bee-keeper.

Counting Costs on Farm.

Two 160-acre farms in southern Minnesota forcibly illustrate how much higher horse labor and machinery costs may be on one farm than another. The first of these farms had $425 worth of machinery and five work horses; the other $1,840 worth of machinery and seven work horses. These farms had equally good crops and each raised one colt. The annual cost of machinery and horse labor, calculated on this basis, was $564 for the first farm and $967 for the second. Each day the second farm paid $1.12 more than the first in horse labor and machinery costs alone. No farmer can afford to keep machinery and work horses that are not used profitably. Can such a leak be found on your farm?—Alva H. Benton.

—D. N. Tallman left Tuesday on a short business trip to the twin cities.

The Vinegar Bible.

A copy of the "Vinegar Bible" may be seen at Newchurch church, Isle of Wight. It is a name given to an edition of the Bible published in 1717 at the Clarendon Press, Oxford. A misprint in the title of the twentieth chapter of St. Luke was made to read "Parable of the Vinegar" instead of "Parable of the Vineyard."
