There are about an equal number of cottages for teachers in the rural schools in other districts of the county. Our plan for these buildings is not uniform, but in all cases except one the cottage is a part of the main building. Our object in making the cottage a part of the main building is to economize in the matter of cost of construction and to enable this little household to be used in connection with the instruction of the children in domestic arts. As a general rule the cottage part of the main building costs us about $600, and in addition thereto we are at an outlay of $300 for furniture. The buildings the Osseo Society of the Seminary, at the chapel last Thursday evening. The play was a rural comedy-drama in two acts and was a huge success. The attendance was the only thing lacking to an otherwise thoroly enjoyable evening. The action of the play took place in the farm home of Deacon Caleb Evans, the character being played by The project to unite Traverse and Knute Anderson, who carried it thru in Big Stone lakes by a canal to provide good shape. His appearance and makedrainage for Red River people and the deacon's wife, was very good. Ella Samingson, as control the headwaters of the Minne- part. The characters which took the best with the audience, as is always the case, in a play of this kind, were Priscilla Prim, the squire's sister and nousekeeper, and Ebenezer Ham, the country boy. The former was played by Myra Ruddy, and her acting, appearance and manner of speech made a decided hit with the audience. Russel Curran, as Ebenezer Ham, lived up to the reputation he made last year, as a comedian. His makeup was immense and his acting the part was extremely good. The songs introduced by Helga Berg and Russel Curran in the second act were very good, both having to respond to encores. Between the acts Miss Berrum rendered a vocal solo.

Browns Valley Gets Train Service. Sam Gordon has won his long waged fight for better train service on the Browns Valley branch. The service there has been abominable for years past, requiring three days and two nights to make a trip to the cities and return. Pleading with the company was of no avail therefore Sam and other good citizens appealed to the Railroad and Warehouse Commisson The commisson last week granted their request giving them a night train with a sleeper, to leave the Valley at eight o'clock in the evening and returning early the following morning The freights each way will handle the day time passenger traffic. Now if Sam and his townspeople can secure that new depot that they are demand ing and are well entitled to they will have accomplished something worth while.
