Old Ironsides.
Old Ironsides is such a cherished national treasure now that it seems incredible that it was once proposed in all seriousness to tear it to pieces for what little value could be got out of the material, remarks the Boston Post. Holmes was a law student at Harvard at the time. He was only a month more than twenty-one years old. He wrote his immortal poem with a lead pencil on a stray scrap of paper, yet it has been said:
"Probably this is the only case in which a government policy was changed by the verses of a college student." Originally Old Ironsides was one of four sister frigates, the Constitution, the Constellation, the United States and the President. Of the other three, alas, only memories remain. The Constellation was broken up, as they intended to break up Old Ironsides. One of the others rotted away at a British dock, and the fourth was lost at sea.

Curiously enough, the story of these four sister frigates is one of the least known chapters in American history. Yet it is well worth reading up—Chicago News.
She Became a Bore.
Most persons who talk about themselves are bores. A writer in the American Magazine says:
"Of the most companionable women I ever knew was so completely transformed by an operation that she unconsciously became a bore to her friends and to her family by tedious repetition of her hospital experience. Her idea of its importance was so exaggerated that she lost all sense of proportion. Truly her operation' became the alpha and omega of her existence. From it all events in her life history dated. It was her sole topic of conversation. No matter how skillfully one might steer the conversation all bark away from the dreaded topic, she adroitly brought it back. As a result she became self centered, introverted and a bore to her friends. Her efforts to entertain merely annoyed. Where she hoped to arouse admiration she created disgust, and where she sought sympathy she received only a difference."

The Hope of the Poles.
There are more Poles today in the world than ever before, and their fecundity is unrivaled. Their national feeling was never deeper rooted or more intelligent. If a Pole tells you he is in favor of autonomy under Germany to give to the Poles what they expound for, he is lying. It is only one thing, and that is independence. In this he is not like every other nation worth its salt? "Are you a patriot?" said Napoleon in 1810 to John Suladreck, rector of the University of Vilna. "Sire," answered the rector, "from my birth I have learned to love my country, and her misfortunes have only strengthened the love I bear for her." After an additional century of Poland's misfortunes her children, scattered over the whole world, would give the same answer. And there are even times as many of them now as there were then.—Century.

Very Ancient Warfare.
At the beginning of the Chino-Japanese war one of our military attaches attended a Chinese review. A Chinese regiment took the field and went through a curious performance. They carried long bamboo fishing rod things, and with these they rushed at the other, yelling wildly and making queer gestures and grimaces.
"Wha't's the game?" asked our attaché.
"This regiment," a Chinese general answered, "is one of our oldest. It is now practicing a form of assault which dates from prehistoric times. The idea is to trip the enemy with the long wand, throw water in his face and in his bewilderment at this extraordinary treatment to cut off his head."

Drawing the Line.
A London tailor made his pile and retired to a Welsh castle, where he set up as a squire. But the tailor had hardly got established as a squire when a London hatter retired and set up in a neighboring castle as a squire also. It was disgusting.
A friend, apropos of the former hatter's coming, said to the ex-tailor:
"Will you call on him?"
"Not I," was the reply. "One must draw the line somewhere."

First in Something.
According to their own account, the children were first in something at school. One was first in reading, another in arithmetic, another in sports. Bertie alone remained silent.
"Tell, Bertie, how about you?" his uncle asked. "Aren't you first in anything?"
"Yes," said honest Bertie. "I am first out of the building when the bell rings."—New York Times.

History Repeats.
Two men were once talking over their respective sons' careers at college, and one remarked:
"Tell, I sometimes feel like saying, as did Aaron in the wilderness, 'Behold, I poured in the gold and there came out this cat!'"—New York American.

Prudent Man.
"Had any luck in the stock market lately?"
"The best ever."
"How much did you clean up?"
"Not a cent. I listened to a still small voice and stayed out."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Distance Lends Enchantment.
She—Do you think it will be all right for us after we are married to settle a couple of squares away from my family? He—I was going to say a couple of states.—New York Times.

Optimism.
Wife—John, you'll have to take that ball away from baby. He hit sister on the head with it. John—Yes, dear, but you should have seen the curve the little cuss had on it.—Puck.

True glory consists in so living as to make the world happier and better for our living.—Pliny.

Leaves of the Poison Ivy.
No doubt just a picture of poison ivy is enough to cause some folks to shudder and remember the time their face and body became scarlet and swollen from contact with the leaves. How it itched and burned! Yet to rub it was only to make matters worse. A curious fact is that some persons are immune to this poison, while others must not even breathe the pollen of the plant. It is often confounded with the Virginia creeper, although the difference between this is distinct. The leaves of the latter are divided into five leaflets, while those of the former have but three, a fact well worth remembering.

Strange enough, the witch hazel plant is sometimes found growing close to the poison ivy. As with hazel extract is one of the best remedies for ivy poisoning it would seem nature was holding out disease in one hand and a remedy in another.

Heat at the Persian Gulf.
The Persian gulf and its coasts are in summer about the hottest place on earth's surface, a temperature of 120 degrees in the shade being not uncommon, while a black bulb solar thermometer has registered 157 degrees in the sun.

When one remembers that the hottest room in a Turkish bath is usually kept at about 160 degrees the appalling nature of this Persian heat will be better realized.

The greatest heat ever known in England was on Aug. 15, 1863, when a shade temperature of 95 degrees was registered. But on this day the sun temperature did not quite equal that of July 28, 1855, when 162 degrees F. was registered in the sun.

When you consider facts like these it is difficult to believe that our planet receives only one two-thousand-millionth part of the rays flung out by the sun.—London Telegraph.

Odd Titles of Newspapers.
In Columbus, says the Dispatch, there is a man whose chief joy is in a collection of newspaper titles.

There are Headlights, Flashlights, Beams, Eagles, Owls, Mirrors and Newsletters, but when it comes to Dericks, Medders, Telescopes, Flags and Sunbeams the class is limited. In Hot Springs there is published the Arkansas Thomas Cat, and other titles just as unusual as the Sledge Hammer, the Impeccable, the Silent Worker and Gail.

Frequently it is possible to tell from the title of a newspaper the state in which it is published. For instance, the Chief of Police in Oklahoma, the Ruster and the Lariat are in Texas, Big Hole Breezes in Montana and the Roundup in Wyoming.

Effect of Rats as Food.
The Lahore (India) Tribune quotes a Chinaman's explanation of the use of rats for food purposes as follows:
"Whatever a rat is to a horse's coat of hair is to the human hair. Neither fact can be explained, but every horseman knows that a regimen of carrots will make his stud smooth and lustreous as velvet, and the Chinese, especially the women, know that rats used as food stop the falling out of hair and make the locks soft, silky and beautiful. I have seen it tried many times."

Attractive Automobiles.
"So you are in the market for an automobile?"
"Yes," answered the man who likes to attract attention.
"Any particular make?"
"No; I merely want one that will make people turn round and stare at me when I pass."

"Oh, you don't need a special type for that—Get the ordinary car and exceed the speed limit."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Careful Hubby.
"Does your husband subscribe to the theory that kissing transmits germs?"
"No; he thinks that germs are mostly transmitted by money and is very careful not to hand me any."—Kansas City Journal.

Woodmen Grow Obsolete.
A steam operated sawing machine fells more trees in an eight hour day than thirty woodmen. It works close to the ground and leaves no stumps standing.—Popular Science Monthly.

Just in Time.
Plaintiff's Lawyer—You rest the case. Defendant's Ditty—You ought to. It's pretty weak.—New York American.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.
It is a well established fact that moles, warts and scars are prone to degenerate if subjected to repeated irritation, especially in the evening of life. These abnormalities should be kept under intelligent observation and if they display any activity or arouse an unusual sensation should be immediately put in the hands of the surgeon for speedy eradication.
The senile keratosis, so common on the skin of the old; the little wartlike excrescences and little scurf patches so frequent on the faces and the hands, offer peculiar advantages for the development of epithelioma. They have been called "halfway houses" on the road to malignancy. They should be subjected to no avoidable irritation and, above all, should not be "treated" with the meddlesome notion of cleaning them up. They should be handled with gloves, as it were, and gently carried along to a quietest end.
The pressure of nose glasses should be sufficient to excite such a skin (of the old) to persons of activity. The pressure of a tight husband has served to arouse the latent fury of an old and disregarded blemish. Bear this in mind, particularly old persons, and guard against any irritation of the skin.

ACT AS WELL AS WISH.
Good wishes are well, but good actions are better. Anybody can wish to live well. Almost everybody does. Even a criminal at times desires goodness, but he does not carry the wish into act, and that is why he remains a criminal. It is not a few faint wishes, but a lifelong struggle that makes us valiant.

The Spear in the Tusk.
It seems unbelievable that a savage's iron spear point seven and a half inches long by one and a half inches wide has been found all grown over and perfectly hidden in a big bull elephant's tusk. The savage had roosted up in a big tree over a spring where the elephant came for water. Then he dropped this spear, weighted to fifty pounds, so as to strike the nape of the neck and pierce the brain. Here the spear went a little to one side of the brain and into the big open funnel end of the root of the tusk, broke off and then "grew" up in the ivory like a nail in a tree. The spear was found when the tusk was carried.—Exchange.

Saturn's Obstinacy.
From the positions of the minor divisions in the Saturn's rings Dr. Percival Lowell gets evidence of a greater oblateness—or flattening at the poles—than the planet actually shows to us. This has suggested a kind of internal oblateness—the planet consisting of different layers, with the inner layers rotating faster, and thus flattening out more, than the outer.

Stage Name.
"Was I am going on the stage?"
"Well, I hope you succeed in making a name for yourself."
"That has already been attended to, my dear. I picked a really beautiful one out of a romantic novel."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Real Defender.
"Big" brother is reasonably good about defending little sister, but the real serious trouble comes when "little" sister sees some one imposing on "big" brother.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

LOOK AT THIS!
A Necktie Social will be given at the Pennock Woodman Hall, January 27th, 1917, by the Band. Ladies are requested to bring a tie and lunch for two. A good time after lunch is assured to those attending.
