LIFT YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS
Tells how to loosen a tender corn or callus at it without pain.

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least one a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poisoning are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called frezzone, which at the moment few drops are applied to any corn or callus the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off with the finger.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST INCUBATOR MADE buy nothing but a CAPITAL See one in operation, and read testimonials at W.M. CHASE & CO.

The Other Side of the Question. Editor Willmar Tribune: Will you allow space in your paper for an answer to the series of articles written by J. O. Lewis, published in your paper last summer. The articles were published under the heading "How to Build Up or Tear Down This Community."

First, it was stated that it is stock from bankrupt firms and fire damaged and culled goods by manufacturers that we get when we patronize the "Mail Order Houses." It is also stated that these same Mail Order Houses own and control factories and contract to sell the entire output of other factories. Well when we can save about one-third on the cost of an article, I think we have a right to keep that money stays right at home where it belongs.

If the home merchant sold goods just as cheap as the mail order houses, there would be no need for Mr. J. O. Lewis to write his article about the Mail Order Houses. He certainly doesn't give the people credit for intelligence. But he is out too late with his warning as we that have given the mail order houses a trial are satisfied with what we get, we do not at least pay a high price for culled goods or competition goods, if you like to call it that, as we are liable to do when trading at home.

Mr. Lewis says in part: "There can be no question but that all of our people are in duty bound to patronize our home merchants, because if they do not, the merchants should band themselves together and refuse credit to those who patronize these mail order houses, and further refuse to employ members of families who do this or refuse to buy the wares of these people." Wouldn't they find living hard? Well, my friends, they find living very hard as it is, that's the reason the Mail Order Houses get so much trade.

It is the wares of these people, or daughters as clerks or employees in the stores? Why should we be in duty bound to support or patronize the home merchants. Has the merchant the same interest in us as the mite has to a chicken?

I remember the time when you could bring butter and eggs to town and receive a cent in cash. You had to trade for it all or get a due bill and trade for it some other time. In 1905, I intended to get some cash for my eggs. Consequently I wrote to a commission firm in Minneapolis and this is the reply I got: Minneapolis, Minn., Apr. 4, 1905. Dear Sir: Your letter of the 3rd was received. If you are a merchant or in any mercantile business, I would be pleased to receive your shipment and will give you all the information you desire to help you in shipping to the best advantage, but we do not solicit our business direct from the farmers as we are having deals confidently with the merchants and do not wish to antagonize their interest by dealing with their customers. You will appreciate the position we are in and we trust you will reply immediately so that we will know how to answer your further communications. Yours truly, Wm. Nelson.

Well, there was no further communication. The farmers were headed at every turn. But thank God, that storage plant was erected in Willmar. Not by any local merchant. I don't think the merchants welcomed it. In the fall of 1915, I had 90 pounds of onions to sell. I went to three stores but they had all the onions they needed so they did not even look at the onions. Let us support the home merchant when he takes an interest in our welfare and let us donate to institutions and worthy causes with our own hands but the wares of these people? No! Wouldn't they find living hard? Well, being a woman I have more to say but as it is getting too lengthy, I'll stop. This is written by one of the many, my head wives out in the country.
