

FIFTY PHEASANTS ARE LIBERATED

State Commission Has Sent First Birds to Monongalia Reserve.

Last week the Minnesota Game & Fish Commission shipped fifty pheasants that have been propagated by the state to New London. Peter Broberg, president of the Monongalia Game Protective association received the birds, and after feeding the same, they were turned loose along the north edge of the woods in the new game reserve. They soon scattered and it is expected that they will soon be accustomed to their new locality and thrive in their new home.

The shooting of pheasants and partridges is absolutely prohibited in Minnesota for three years, and they will always be protected by the law with in the game reserves. Anyone found interfering with or killing them will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law's penalties.

Mr. Broberg has been securing options from the owners of the lands north of Lake Andrew with the idea of submitting the question of a State park to the next legislature.

THIS SECTION ASKED TO FEED STOCKERS

Editor Hughes and Mr. Cumberland Address Township Committees.

The meeting of township officers and committee members called by County Director William A. Rice last Saturday night, was a fine success. Over seventy-five came, and there were two speakers from the State Commission instead of only one. Mr. Hughes, chairman of the Marketing Committee and W. W. Cumberland, manager for the committee, explained the marketing situation, both in the state and nation. A general market clearing house for the handling of semi-perishables, like potatoes and vegetables of that character, is about to be established in Minneapolis, so that the smaller producer may get a fair value for his stuff rather than depend on the commission men alone. The coal situation at present is bad. See other article in this paper about the coal question. As to stock, it was suggested that farmers continue marketing their stock that is ready, but that the agents or stockman purchase other stock at South St. Paul that is forced onto the market by bad crop conditions farther west and north, bring it back here and distribute it a few head to each farmer so as to feed it through the winter and prepare it better. They said the stock situation was very bad and getting worse, and farmers with feed ought to take the unit stock and put it in better condition. Freight cars will be hard to get within the next thirty days. All shippers are warned to try and get any extra things moved as soon as possible, for war stuff, farm implements are needed in each village to co-operate between the farmers and the markets and help in every way possible. Farmers are advised to order all the farm machinery they need for next year NOW and sign an agreement with the dealer to take it when it comes. It will take over six months to fill orders even then. Ask your dealer.

Mr. Rice said that after the rush of fall work was over, if township desired meetings at which things could be explained to the farmers, there were speakers who would be glad to go out. Marketing committees are appointed in each village to co-operate between the farmers and the markets and help in every way possible. Farmers are advised to order all the farm machinery they need for next year NOW and sign an agreement with the dealer to take it when it comes. It will take over six months to fill orders even then. REVIEW OF LOCAL COAL SITUATION

Coal Dealers Must Have Co-Operation to Deal With Situation.

There is no surplus of anthracite coal in the county; there are orders in for more coal than the dealers can supply. One dealer has orders for over fifteen cars, and has secured eight so far. There is no coal in the bins, that is, hard coal. At Duluth the capacity of the docks is 1,000,000 tons a month, and only 300,000 is arriving. Running full capacity for now until the lakes freeze will not supply the shortage. Freight all the way from the mines adds upwards of $1 to the price, but dealers are loath to order for fear people will not stand for the increased price. It does not take long for a dealer to get $25,000 or $30,000 on his books, which he often is obliged to carry for months, because people forget that while their bill may be only $50 or $75, in the aggregate it means thousands of dollars for his dealer to advance. Many still owe for last year's coal. There is a limit to any dealer's ability to advance your coal money for you.

The first way in which to relieve the situation for this county is for everyone to pay the coal man all they owe him. The second is to give him your order for all your bin will hold, paying cash even if you have to borrow it at the bank, and asking him to order it sent by rail all the way. It will be over two months from now before such orders can be filled. The third is to assure him that you will gladly pay the price, just so he gets it for you. When he has orders enough for a carload he can and probably will be glad to order.

The wood situation is far worse than the coal. Be prepared by ordering now. Don't be surprised at any price. Go see your local dealer NOW.

—Christ Birkeland, who has been employed as carpenter at Maynard returned home Saturday. He left on Monday to do repair work on an elevator at Raymond.

—O. A. Hedlin, the Minneapolis real estate hustler, was in the city Friday enroute on a trip inspecting farm properties.
