CONSIDER THESE VITAL POINTS—

DESIGN EXCLUSIVE AND PATENTED

NOW is the right time to bargain for a good heater to keep warm this coming winter. All signs point to a cold winter, therefore you should remember that there is nothing made in the line of heaters, that will or can compare with the Genuine ROUND OAK MOIST-AIR Heating Systems, and it is admitted by all makers of heaters and stoves that they cannot give such value for the money as the Round Oak people are giving, as they are giving you Comfort, Style, and the greatest money saver in coal that was ever made. THE HOGLUND HARDWARE, the Sole Agents at Willmar, Minn., will during the month of September make a special price and an allowance of 10% on all heaters bargained for this month, and with every heater sold we will give you everything that belongs to a heater, FREE, that is, stove-board, coal hod and pipes. We will also allow you a good price for your old stove, if you have one to trade in, and you can make monthly payments on the ROUND OAK. You will not feel the payment, but you will always feel warm at a Very Small Cost.

The HOGLUND HARDWARE

HAPPY SISSETON EDITOR.

The editor took a recount of his family Thursday noon just to see if we were all home, and we'll be gunned. The intruder arrived at 12:15 Thursday from Storkville. Now it is a rule in our house that all new arrivals must be weighed, so that we will not get cheated when we settle up with the freight agent. The little Miss tipped the scales at just ten pounds, after we had dusted her with talcum, etc. She seems to have a full sized appetite, however, is fully equipped with self starter, light hair top and a good "honking" apparatus, 1917 model. We have made up our mind to keep her, the high cost of living notwithstanding.—Sisseton Standard.

"THE PUBLIC BE DAMNED."

The above heading might be criticized as it fits the attitude of the food trust towards the public, and the words coined by Vanderbilt are particularly applicable at this time.

"The Public Be Damned," is a tremendously vital photoplay which is to be shown at Dreamland Friday and Saturday of this week, the last two days of the county fair. The picture takes up the food supply of the United States, and handles the subject in the most absorbingly interesting and thorough manner.

Throughout the country, the world in fact, the people rich and poor, cry "Give us food, test we perish." Our nation is at war. Our Allies look to us for food. The struggle of the ages will be won or lost on the American farms.

Meanwhile the American people bend to the soil—the crops are more bountiful than ever. But still the cry "Food, food, give us food." And far across the waters, the echo reverberates, "Food, give us food, test we no longer have strength to withstand our enemies."

Why is this so? There is food a plenty,—but the Food Trust—the most criminal combination of America's business history, is grinding the common people and the farmers both in its insatiable desire for profits.

Herbert C. Hoover, Food Administrator of the United States and chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, publicly assailed the Food Trust before the United States Senate, stating: "In the last five months $250,000,000 has been extracted from the American consumer in excess of normal profits of manufacturers and distributors."

The photoplay will be shown at Dreamland Friday and Saturday of this week, with matinees at 3:00 in the afternoon and performances at 7:30 and 9:00 evenings.

BEAUTIFUL KITTY GORDON.

The illustrious English beauty, Kitty Gordon will be seen in the first of the photoplay features produced by her own film corporation at Dreamland Thursday afternoon and evening of this week.

The subject chosen for the first of Miss Gordon's new venture is a most happy one, being that sprightly and thrilling novel, "Vera the Medium," by the late Richard Harding Davis, for years one of America's proudest literary possessions and famed throughout the world as a war correspondent. In "Vera the Medium," Miss Gordon appears as a girl that should be every one.

PRUDENCE.

Edmund Burke has left us in no possible uncertainty as to what he deems the paramount virtue of the man of affairs. "Prudence," he declares, "is not only the first in rank of the virtues, political and moral, but she is as well the director, the regulator, the standard, of them all."

When Time Hung Heavy.

Today, when there is such a premium on time, one finds it hard to realize the condition portrayed by William Wistar Comfort in the Bookman: "In its day and for two or three centuries later 'The Romance of the Rose' was the most popular work composed in medieval Europe. It consists of about 23,000 eight-syllable verses in the old French original. That forms a very considerable poem. A poem in two volumes would be sufficient in our day to rebuff most readers. But think of copying out in longhand such a poem!

"Time was something to be killed by our ancestors, and hands were found to copy this endless poem almost 200 times. That is to say, we have nearly 200 French manuscripts of the 'Roman de la Rose,' and that does not account for all those that must have been lost in the course of 600 years. However, the figures give us some idea of what medieval literary popularity was."

Two Men and a Problem.

When Lord Rayleigh, the great scientist, was a student at Cambridge the examiners set among other problems one which they based on an article in a German mathematical periodical supposed unlikely to have penetrated to Cambridge. Only two men solved it. Mr. Strutt (Lord Rayleigh) and another. The examiners asked the other man about this problem. "Oh," he said, "I take the mentioning the name of the periodical, and I was very glad to find that, thanks to an article in the last number, that problem came out quite easily." When Mr. Strutt's turn came they expected a similar answer, but he astonished them by replying, "The fact is, gentlemen, that I sometimes contribute to — and I could not help feeling greatly flattered that you should have thought my little problem worthy of a place in this examination." He was awarded the prize.

The Scale on a Map.

Distance on a map is measured by its "scale." By laying a rule on a government map and ascertaining the number of inches between two points the number of miles between them can readily be calculated. Nearly all maps are drawn to a scale representing one, two, three or more miles to the inch, as the inch is the common unit of measurement in the United States by which the eye is accustomed to judge distances on paper.

A scale of 1:32,500, needed in the well known United States geological survey topographical maps, denotes that one inch on the map represents 62,500 inches on the ground, which is the approximate number of inches in a mile. Therefore the scale is, almost exactly, one inch to one mile. A scale of 1:125,000 is approximately two miles to one inch, and a scale of 1:1,000,000 represents sixteen miles to one inch.

Pantheon and Parthenon.

The Parthenon, or what is left of it, stands upon the Acropolis of Athens. The most famous building on earth was erected under the administration of Pericles about B. C. 442. Its present ruinous condition was caused by the explosion of a bomb during the war between the Venetians and Turks in 1687.

The Pantheon at Rome was built by Agrippa in B. C. 27 and, unlike the more beautiful temple at Athens, is still in a fair state of preservation. The Pantheon is, of course, well worth seeing both for its own sake and on account of its historic interest, but it does not hold the fame belonging to the incomparable building on the Acropolis.

Campior Laurels in Japan.

There is a stringent law in Japan that when one campior laurel is cut down another must be planted in its place. The tree is hardy and long lived, attaining to an enormous size. It is covered with a small leaf of a vivid green color. The seed, or berries, grow in clusters, resembling the black currant in size and appearance. And the wood is employed for every purpose, from cabinetmaking to shipbuilding.

Sliced Hair.

Tommy, a bright little three-year-old, had just made his first visit to the barber's and was very dissatisfied upon his return.

"I don't like my hair curled in this way, all in little curls," he said.

"How do you wish it?" queried mamma.

"Why, I want it like Uncle Tom's. I want it in two slices."

Slow Work.

"How's your boy Josh doing in the army?"

"First rate," replied Farmer Comstock, "although his mother's a little disappointed. She speaks about the slowness of Josh's promotion every time she sees in the paper that the same old general is still holding his job."—Washington Star.

Looks Like Discrimination.

"I don't see why Cupid should discriminate against any particular trade or profession."

"Didn't know that he did or was supposed to."

"Then why do they say that love laughs at locksmiths?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The maritime provinces of Canada.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island—have a combined area of 51,596 square miles and a population of 967,955.

There are 845 languages and dialects in use among the blacks of Africa. Only a few of the languages have been reduced to writing.
