

WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. F. L. LESLIE, OF PENNOCK

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Leslie of Pennock celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, Monday, Dec. 24.

There have been no other deaths for more than a week. The general health of the men is far above the average.

The glass found in the rice indicates that the preparations were gone into in the minutest detail. The small particles of glass had been made to resemble in shape the rice in bulk.

Practically every taxicab and automobile and in several instances, large buses, were engaged to take the soldiers to their homes for the holidays.

Drastic measures have been taken by military officials co-operating with state and city officials in Des Moines to protect soldiers of the eighty-eighth division of the National Army here against social diseases.

To eliminate this evil, termed by Secretary of War Baker as "the greatest menace to the military forces of the country," a policy which comprehends the confinement of men and women found to be suffering from venereal diseases for such periods as may be necessary to complete a cure or for the period of health.

The Des Moines city council soon will vote on an ordinance making such confinement mandatory and plans now are being formulated for the construction of a hospital where all patients will be segregated.

Married, Monday, Dec. 24, 1917, 6 p. m., at the home of Mr. Axel Johnson, by Rev. H. C. Kishpaugh, Mr. August Peterson and Miss Margaret E. Johnson—Raymond News.

JOYS are Training.

German ruthlessness and Hun butchery have come close to the soldiers of the Eighty-eighth division of the National Army here.

The men from Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and North Dakota training here to aid Uncle Sam in establishing world democracy and the defeat of kaiserism, have been threatened with a death probably the most horrible and painful that could be conceived.

Small particles of ground glass have been discovered in certain brands of canned tomatoes and in rice which government officials purchased for the soldiers.

It has been practically established that the glass was put in the foodstuffs by German agents working in the factories where the goods were prepared for shipment.

To have the slightest amount of glass such as has been found in these two varieties of foods lodged in the stomach means a slow, torturous and painful death. The membranous lining of the stomach and intestines becomes irritated and inflamed and gradually the patient dies of a death which sometimes lingers for weeks before finally coming.

The canned tomatoes in which the glass was found are known as the "Big Brand" and are sold in quantities of one-half bushel. They have been purchased by the army. All of this brand which has been issued to regimental and separate organization commanders here has been recalled and will be discarded. Similar action probably will be taken with all rice which has been issued.

The closest scrutiny is being maintained in the preparation of all food stuffs to be served the soldiers to preclude the possibility of any glass being placed before them.

The glass found in the rice indicates that the preparations were gone into in the minutest detail. The small particles of glass had been made to resemble in shape the rice in bulk.

The fire warning of the plot came to Brig. Gen. R. N. Getty, acting division commander, from Maj. Gen. W. H. Carter, commanding the Central Department at Chicago, saying officials of the state board of health, Dr. H. L. Saylor, Des Moines city health officer, and medical officers from the eighty-eighth division.

Already twenty women found to be suffering from social diseases and being picked up by the police on the streets in Des Moines have been confined in a hospital at Des Moines where they will be treated.

This far no men have been interned at the military camp, but the policy extends to cases in men as well.

The attitude of the War Department as indicated by the message is taken with varying degrees of joy and disapproval by the men and officers. Some believe that withholding the final increments to provide the division with its full quota will greatly retard the active date when the division as a unit will be ordered abroad for service.

This view is taken because it is believed the soldiers will not have been sufficiently trained before late next summer for such a campaign.

It is the contention of others that because of inclement weather conditions, it would be of little or no use to the men report for service before next spring and that because the men now here are rapidly developing and learning the business of conducting military affairs, it will require but a short time to whip the new recruits into shape and ready to move.

Confinement in the barracks during cold weather is also conducive to the breaking out of an epidemic of contagious disease.

It is practically assured that men selected for service with the eighty-eighth division and not yet called to the colors will not have an opportunity to attend the officers' training school to be opened here about Jan. 5th. Recommendations for the division have been made by regimental commanders to a board of officers appointed to make the final selections and an announcement of the names of the successful candidates is expected soon.

The recommendations were restricted to the personnel of the enlisted men now in camp. It is not known whether such training schools will be conducted.

Soldiers successfully completing the course will be commissioned provisional second lieutenants and await the time when they will be called to active duty as officers.

The quarantine which kept members of the remount depot and Company B of the 366th colored infantry regiment confined to their barracks for more than a week has been lifted.

In the past two organizations cases of meningitis were found and a quarantine immediately invoked to prevent a possible spread of the disease. The patients were removed to the base hospital with about a dozen other men whom it was feared were what is known as carriers of the disease or persons whose tonsils were infected but who otherwise showed no outward signs of infection. The latter will be kept under observation for a time until a report can be made by the division bacteriologist who is making examinations of the men.

Private Sam G. Bonner, a negro soldier, died in the base hospital of pneumonia. He was ill for some time before succumbing to the ailment.
