FIRE NEAR PAYNESVILLE.
Last Saturday afternoon while Horace Sheldon was absent from home his workshop caught fire, destroying it and the machine shed next to it. All the work tools, about 50 bushels of barley, binder, sleigh, buggy and drill are almost a total loss. Mr. Sheldon estimates the damage at about $1,000, with no insurance.
Just how the fire started is not known. There had been a fire in the stove during the forenoon and at 12 o'clock apparently everything was all right. The supposition is that a defective chimney caused the fire. The section crews from the Soo and G. N. gave valiant aid, and prevented the fire from spreading to other buildings about the farm. Had it not been for their timely aid the damage would no doubt have been much greater.—Paynesville Press.

THE 1917 FARMERS ANNUAL WILL BE HELD

To Be Given Out at the Farmers Institute at Willmar Next Week.

The Minnesota Farmers' Institute Annual No. 30, for 1917, is largely devoted to the idea of food production. It contains carefully written directions for the planting, cultivating, harvesting, storing and marketing of each of the standard farm crops, and special chapters on the garden, the orchard and small fruits. Insect pests and how to deal with them; weeds and how to eradicate them; plant diseases and diseases of domestic animals, and their remedies, are each treated by experts in the several lines. One chapter is devoted to the feeding of the dairy herd, another to the feeding of poultry—both considering especially the problems presented by the present war prices of feeds. "The best methods of canning all kinds of fruits and vegetables are carefully explained and illustrated. Useful recipes and tables covering a variety of subjects help to make the volume a helpful farmers' hand-book.
A supply of these books will be on hand at the sessions of the Farmers' Institute to be held in the Court House at Willmar on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 11 and 12. The books will be distributed free to those attending the sessions, and should be additional inducement to many of our farmers to attend.

The rooms were artistically decorated. The candelabra, which was similar to that of a Swedish "ljus krona," held eighty candles, representing Mrs. Lyon's age. Over each end of the table hung two other candelabras holding candles representing the ages of the daughter and grandson. The candles were lit during the serving of the delicious spread prepared under the direction of Mrs. Lyon. Her son gave a toast and presented her with a gift from them all. Tri Mu Class Has Annual Banquet

Henry, Christ Laws Will be Sessions.

All arrangements are complete for the meeting of the Farmers Institute at Willmar on Friday and Saturday, January 11 and 12. The local committee have secured the use of the court room of the Kandiyohi County Court House for the general sessions, and the following speakers, representing the State Farmers' Institute Department will be on hand Friday morning to commence work at 10 o'clock: Forest Henry of Dover, Minn., well-known to many of our people, will have direct charge of the Institute sessions. John Christgau, of Dexter, a life-long practical farmer will be "first assistant," and Mr. J. A. Miller, an expert on building construction and the use of building materials, will complete the corps for the work of special interest to the men. These three men will take up subjects that are of special interest to our farmers—dairying and increased production of dairy products; pork and corn raising; crop rotation; clover growing, etc. The practical guarantee of high prices for all farm crops for the next few years makes it important that these matters be fully discussed and that each farmer study how he can make best use of the labor supply available to help in raising larger crops.
Mrs. Bertha Dahl Laws of Appleton, who was at Willmar a few years ago, will conduct a special demonstration on "Meat Substitutes," in the School Home Economics Laboratory Friday afternoon. This demonstration will be of interest to women who are trying to follow the wishes of the Food Administrator in observing meatless days and cutting down consumption of certain kinds of meat on other days of the week. On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Laws will lecture on other lines of home economics work, making two very interesting sessions especially for the ladies. Each morning she will give a talk at the general sessions of the Institute that will be of interest to men and women alike.
The new Farmers' Institute Annual No. 30, on Food Production, will be distributed free at the close of the morning session. This is a strictly up-to-date book on this subject, every article written with reference to wartime conditions and prices.
Sessions will commence promptly at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Everyone should be on hand at the commencement of the work. There are no collections or charges of any kind.
