He left Saturday morning for Minneapolis where he met his wife and daughter who returned from a three weeks' visit with Mrs. Lindblad's sister in Chicago.

If Useless, Quit. "Oh, stop whining. Is whining going to mend matters?" "I suppose not." "Then if not, whine not."—Exchange

Sennit.

In Polynesia and the Pacific islands generally the outer husk of the coconut is braided into strands of uniform texture, known to the natives as sennit and used by them for a variety of purposes. The framework of their houses is held together by braided sennit, and the strakes of their boats are united by it. It is the staple from which string is made to bind the axle blades to its handle and to tie the different parts of their implements securely together. In short, whatever things are nailed or screwed or pegged or glued in other lands are tied together with sennit by the south sea islander.

A Mystery of Paris.

One hundred thousand dollars was offered in 1894 for the recovery of an American schoolboy, Webster Conkling, who mysteriously disappeared in Paris. The boy, fifteen years old, was on his way to the St. Lazare railway station in Paris in company with one of his schoolmasters. The master lost sight of the boy for an instant and, turning round, found that he had disappeared as though the earth had swallowed him. Conkling's mother, a wealthy widow, began by offering $5,000 for his recovery and then increased the reward to $100,000. The money was deposited at Monro's bank in the Rue Serbe, but never found a claimant.

Stupid Fish.

Professor Harold Russell, the London zoologist, always rejected the popular yarns about the wonderful things fish will do when put to it. He says they are deaf, dumb and virtually color blind. When the calcareous stones are taken out of the ears of fish they lose all sense of equilibrium and roll about as if crazy. Most fish hunt their food by only defective sight, but the eels by even more defective smell. A conger eel, with which Professor Russell experimented devoured with the same avidity fish doled with cheese, anchovy, camphor, spirits of turpentine and a liberal dose of iodoform.—Manchester Guardian.

Avoiding the Obvious.

More and more does one meet with the tendency that people have of avoiding the obvious. It becomes little short of criminal to be simple and direct. We know a miss. Let's call her Quiet Charlotte, because she is never quiet. This unusual person was telling us of something she had read which she could not understand. Upon reading it we found that it was quite clear. Said Quiet Charlotte, "I saw that, of course, but I thought that there was something hidden in it or something else."—New York Globe.

Pope's Favorite.

Pope deemed the "Essay on Man" his most polished production, but was so fond of revising his poetry that the printed copy contained almost one marginal note for every line. If his wishes had been fully carried out the second edition would have had so many changes as to be practically a new work.

Straw was employed by the Egyptians for making boats (Genesis 31:12). It was chosen for making the ship to make them convenient and prevent cracking.
