RENVILLE GIRL GETS $50,000 VERDICT FROM MILWAUKEE
Marion Johnson, daughter of Auditor Johnson of Renville county was awarded a verdict of $50,000 in her personal injury suit for $50,000 against the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. P. R. Co., after the case was tried before a Yellow Medicine county jury last week. Davis & Michel, Marshall, were attorneys for the plaintiff and Attorney Freeman, of Olivia, represented the Milwaukee.
In her claim for damages the girl alleges that she was thrown to the floor of the car just after boarding the train at the depot in Minneapolis. The fall was due to a sudden jerk made by the train she claimed, and also to the fact the floor of the car entry was slippery because of the ice and snow on it.
This is one of the record verdicts for this county so far as size is concerned, the only equal being the verdict in the Otos case. According to those conversant with the case there is but little doubt but what the railroad will appeal unless a substantial reduction is accepted.—Granite Falls Tribune.

TOOTHBRUSHES.
The toothbrush, now an indispensable article of toilet, is but little older than the American republic itself. Not even Lord Chesterfield used one, for, writing to his son in 1754, he said: "I hope you take great care of your mouth and teeth and that you clean them every morning with a sponge and tepid water with a few drops of arbutus water dropped into it. I do insist upon your never using those sticks or any hard substance whatever which always rub away the gums and destroy the varnish of the teeth."
In "Henry Esmond" Thackeray made Lord Castlewood spend "a tenth part of his day in the brushing of his teeth and the oiling of his hair," and in doing so the novelist committed a double anachronism. Not only was the toothbrush unknown, but during the first half of the eighteenth century all fine gentlemen wore wigs and had no use for oil on their hair.—New York Sun.

THE ESSENTIAL INVENTION.
"What shall we invent?" inquired the eminent scientist.
"The first thing," replied the chairman of the meeting, "is to invent some way of keeping a secret."—Washington Star.

ANTIQUE.
Antiquity! thou wondrous charm, what art thou, that, being nothing, art everything? When thou wert thou wert not antiquity—then thou wert nothing, but hadst a remoter antiquity, as thou callest it, to look back to with blind veneration, thou thyself being to thyself flat, jejune, modern! What mystery lingers in this retroversion, or what half Janus are we that cannot look forward with the same idleness with which we forever revert! The mighty future is as nothing, being everything; the past is everything, being nothing! Charles Lamb.

TRYING EXPERIENCE.
"How was the play?"
"Rather dull."
"You didn't have any tense moments during the performance?"
"Oh, yes. A man weighing not less than 250 pounds climbed over me twice to go out and pull himself together for the next act."—Exchange.

STRANGE PROOF OF HEREDITY.
So far as his work is concerned we remember a rascally poet named Richard Savage for one solitary line—that in which he speaks of the "tenth transmitter of a foolish face." It catches the notion of heredity and suggests the sort of wonderful family likeness of which one has just been told to the Royal Society of Medicine.
The first Earl of Shrewsbury, who died in 1455, was born with a physical peculiarity—the little finger and the finger adjoining on each hand had only one joint, the first two bones being united. The same abnormality affected all the toes except the big ones. Today in a direct masculine descendant of the first earl the same extraordinary formation persists. It was transmitted to him by his father and to his father from his grandfather and has come down unchanged through nearly 500 years, passing through fourteen generations.—London Standard.

DEFINING A WIFE.
The pretty schoolteacher had asked her class for the best original definition of "wife," and the boy in the corner promptly responded, "A rib."
She looked at him reproachfully and nodded to the boy with dreamy eyes, who seemed anxious to say something.
"Man's guiding star and guardian angel," he said in response to the nod.
"A helpmeet," put in a little waxen haired girl.
"One who soothes man in adversity," suggested a demure little girl.
"One who makes a man hustle," was the next suggestion.
"And keeps him from making a fool of himself," put in another girl.
"Some one for a man to find fault with when things go wrong," said a sorrowful little maiden.
"Stop there," said the schoolteacher. "That's the best definition."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.
