

THE Famous Hinge Door, the all steel door frame, the book leg support and leg screws, together with the ground anchor and cable tightener and the King-B Roof, make the Ladder Hinge Door Wood Stave Silo, the peer of all silos in scientific construction.

ALFRED LATTERELL, Agent KANDIYOHI, MINN.

would be glad to explain to you the principle of the Hinge Door. How it is easy to climb the big steel hinge which will hold a weight of over 2000 pounds. How the door never will sag, freeze in, bind or stick, and is always in place. How the lever operated, by one hand will open and close the door. How the ensilage will keep perfectly next to the door. How the Hinge Door prevents silage from freezing in winter and drying out in summer, and how the door is always securely fastened to the silo.

Study the illustration at the left which shows three sections of the famous Ladder Hinge Door. Do not place an order for a Silo until you have talked over the proposition with our agent.

Booze Instead of Bread.

The New York Tribune gives the following figures showing the amount of food sacrificed to drink during one year: Four million people could have been supplied with rye bread for 10 days. Fifty-six million people could have been supplied with cornmeal for 100 days. Sixteen million people could have been supplied with rice for 100 days. One hundred million people could have been supplied with 18 pounds of rice each. One hundred million people could have been supplied with one gallon of molasses each. Two hundred and eight million two hundred thousand loaves of bread could have been made from the rye.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, honorary president of the National American Woman Suffrage association, has been sworn in as a special member of the Washington police force. At a reception Dr. Shaw held at a forty year's anniversary to serve as a policewoman. Superintendent of Police of the local force invited her to his office to talk over the situation, and when she appeared the regulation oath was administered and she was given a badge.

A Cause for Prohibition.

"The material ruin of tens of thousands of families," says Archbishop Messersmith, "and the ruin of tens of thousands of young men and women are being traced to the cause of the universal fact, not fanaticism, that has caused a tidal wave of prohibition to roll over the world. It is the cause of a nation that can borrow of its citizens nine billion dollars and not need to dicker with brewers, distillers or liquor dealers for money to carry on the war."

Prohibition Cities Lead the Nation in Bank Clearings.

Bradstreet's report of bank clearings in 100 cities shows prohibition cities well in the lead in the rate of increase. The list headed by Tulsa with a percent increase of 45.7, followed by Kansas City with 37.0, Oklahoma City with 33.3, Atlanta with 32.5, Richmond with 31.4, Wichita with 31.3, and St. Joseph with 31.3, which is eighth in the list.

News reports state that the Jackson Brewing company of New Orleans and the National Brewing company of the same city are being converted respectively into a distilling plant for drying vegetables and fruits and a plant for the production of denatured alcohol.

Major General Leonard Wood says: "So far as the army is concerned, the nation has been dry. The army has accomplished 30 per cent of the work we did if it had not been our men in camps were always fit and ready for work, due solely to the fact that the camps were dry."

IN REVIEW BEFORE GENERAL PERSHING

St. Remy Du Plain, January 29, 1919.

Dear sister Alma: Just sent you a postal view of this town and the church I was to service in last Sunday. There are ruins just a little ways off from this church of the old church built in 1414 which was destroyed by the Britains years back.

I received the registered letter last week and was so tickled to get it. Yesterday the 28th, was the big day for us, and feel very proud that it could be represented. We were viewed and inspected by General John Pershing, the whole 37th Division. Surely some bunch of men, estimated at about 35,000. The field was just covered with men and the inspection took place just outside of a town by the name of Alencon. They took us there in trucks and it certainly was a great trip. Three bands were playing as we marched in front of the reviewing stand where Pershing and his staff were.

We have been checked up on all the clothing we have and will be issued new stuff that we are short. We get all the clothing we need so we keep good and warm.

It has been a little cold the last week, but today the sun is shining nicely and it will soon warm up again. The winter in this country is mild compared with what it is back in Minnesota. It's hardly ever below zero so it is great for us who have to be out so much.

We have some great feeds here as we can get French fried potatoes, bread and coffee for a franc, (20 cents in American money). The Y. M. C. A. is located in next town only three miles from here so we can buy chocolates and cookies at reasonable prices.

We have no idea when we will go home, but all have hopes that we will be the lucky ones who soon will be on our way.

It is supper time so will have to hustle. With greetings to all at home, your brother, Pvt. Melvin Berg, Co. C. 136th, M. G. Bn., A. E. F. A. P. O. 763.

PACKERS' FRIENDS TO HAVE CONTROL

Mann and His Followers Work Clever Trick—Old Seniority Rule to Be Followed—North Dakota Congressmen Threaten Revolt—Minnesota Mann Supporters Rewarded—Robbins' Testimony Shocks Knute Nelson—Burleson Makes Public Ownership Unpopular.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, D. C.—Although beaten for speaker of the next house of representatives, Representative Jim Mann of Illinois, friend of the packers, by a preliminary trick has assured himself of the position of boss of the lower house of the next congress. Representative Mondell of Wyoming, standpatter, has been elected majority leader.

Under a trick rule proposed by Mann and his henchmen the Republican caucus voted by state delegations. With the big, solidly Republican states like Pennsylvania, New York and others, casting the balance, Mann was able to dictate that the old seniority rule in the selection of chairman of committees shall prevail.

This will mean that standpatters, who have been in congress so long they have become unpopular with the people, will frame all the important legislation that will come before the next congress.

Mann, it is remembered, is the member of congress who gave a big state on one occasion by the packers, on account of his friendliness, and on another occasion was given a horse.

He was also criticized, when the United States entered the European war for voting for the McElmore resolution and for declaring, after the Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine, that the men, women and children who met death were "joy riders on the Lusitania."

Other congressmen who had made statements in regard to the war much less critical than Mr. Mann's were investigated by the National Security league and branded as "disloyal." Senator La Follette, whose opposition to war never went beyond Mr. Mann's, was investigated by a senate committee. The senate, however, found it couldn't do anything with La Follette without putting Mann in the same class.

But the National Security league failed to find anything disloyal in Mr. Mann's attitude on the war, it seems. And of course his close alliance with the packers was not in the least unpatriotic.

Mann Men Rewarded. Several of the Minnesota members of congress, who held up their hands in holy horror at Senator La Follette's utterances, voted for Mann for speaker of the next house. Although Mann won't be speaker, his friends are in charge of distributing committee places. Accordingly the men who voted for Mann for speaker are to get the preference when it comes to important appointments.

Representative Volstead of Minnesota, who voted for Mann, gets the chairmanship of the important judiciary committee as his reward. Representative Stenerson, another Mann supporter, is to be chairman of the postoffice committee. Ellsworth, who switched to a third speakership candidate at the behest of the Mann forces, goes on the interstate commerce committee. Wharton of Minnesota, who voted for Mann, also made Republican whip.

Altogether the boys are pretty well taken care of. There is just a bare possibility that the distribution of all the important committee chairmanships to tried and true standpatters may be broken up. The committee assignments, determined upon by the committee on committee appointments.

Representative Nick Longworth, Alice Roosevelt's husband, is a leader in the fight against seniority rule. No one ever accused Longworth of being a progressive, but the facts are that he is not taken care of, under the rule, as well as he thinks that he deserves. Accordingly Longworth, for the time being, is an insurgent. He promises to carry his fight to the Republican caucus which convenes just before the next session of congress is called.

League Men Stick. The three North Dakota congressmen, elected by Nonpartisan league farmers, will join in the fight against seniority rule. Representative George M. Voth, who has the longest service of the League congressmen, is a member of the committee on committees. He has also won a place on the important ways and means committee. But Voth has by no means been bought off by the old Tory crowd. He is merely waiting a chance to show his stand on the seniority rule question. Representative Baer and Representative J. H. Sinclair, elected by the farmers to succeed Patrick D. Dorton in the third North Dakota district, will be with him.

Congressman Sinclair has been getting acquainted with a few of the packers' ropes in Washington and has been satisfying the anxious inquirers who have wanted to know about the of the Nonpartisan league program which the North Dakota legislature of North Dakota and the rest, has just written into the laws of that state. Sinclair is quiet, soft-spoken and steady and gives the impression of being prepared to do a lot of real work in congress without getting tired. Among the things that he is interested in are the railroad question, the question of breaking up the packers' monopoly of the food supply, and establishing better conditions in industry for the demobilized soldiers. He will be heard from when the time comes.

Robins Tells Facts. Raymond Robins' testimony before the senate judiciary subcommittee was one of the big features of the week. Robins' report on the conditions of the Bolsheviki, were wrong and that their rule constituted a menace to the orderly government of the world. The reported reign of terror, he said, was greatly exaggerated.

Failure of the allies and of the United States to support the Kerensky government properly caused its collapse and brought the Bolsheviki into power, Robins said. Before the collapse of the Kerensky government, Robins said, a British general and a French general urged him to establish a reign of terror of his own to put down the growing power of the Bolsheviki.

Robins said that it was foolish to think that any autocratic form of government ever could be re-established in Russia. He said.

You can not stamp out ideas by using force. You can not suppress the yearning and the demand of millions of men for economic betterment. You must improve the economic condition of the workers in every nation, or they will act for their own good. They have taken up the culture of Marxian socialism in every European country. The whole working class is turning toward socialism over there. Lloyd George, the ablest statesman in Europe today, dares not suppress the yearning for a better life by establishing that better life. To try to suppress these demands, to curb free speech, to prohibit the display of the red flag—all of this is of no use. The industrial wrong must be righted.

Robins' warning to the senate subcommittee, in this reference to England and France and to the possibility of an upheaval in America, was drawn in its intensity. The only man present at the hearing who was unmoved was Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, who indicated that he considered Robins a dangerous character.

Big Steal Mailed. The filibuster that marked the closing of the session of congress had one good effect. It killed the mineral lands windfall, described by its supporters as the greatest thing which really opened the way for corporations to gobble up patents on what is left of the natural resources of the country.

The session of congress closed without an action on the harvest protection bill or of adding the employment of returned soldiers, aside from granting them a flat bonus of $60 apiece. Money needed for the financing of the railroads can not be provided, this bill has been passed. It has also passed numerous other appropriation measures.

There is considerable sentiment among progressives of both houses for the reconstruction problems. But there is no evidence that President Wilson intends to call such a session. He takes the position that congress had a chance to enact its program, but it was not the time and must take the responsibility.

Postmaster General Burleson is continuing in his program of doing the utmost possible to make public operation of utilities unpopular. When the telegraph and cables were taken over by the government, David J. Lewis, a progressive fighter, formerly on the tariff board, was chosen by President Wilson to have charge of their operation. Burleson, as did Lewis, has driven Lewis to resign and go back to the tariff board.

News of Lewis' resignation, by the way, was made public only recently, although he left his job under the automatic action of the law two months ago. Lewis at that time swore his nearest friends to secrecy, "for the good of the government." However, Burleson's dishonest treatment of the telegraph employees, when he forbade the companies to continue their collective bargaining with the organized employees, and Burleson's treacherous conduct with relation to an increase in their pay, did drive Lewis to quit. One of the telegraphers' secret agents seems to have overheard a newspaper reporter's questions on the wire the other morning, for that night Burleson issued a statement, just ahead of publication of the true story, saying that he had never believed from the service" by Burleson.
