WEIGHTS AND MEASURES HAMPERED THE ALLIES

San Francisco, July 30.—Congressman Florentino LaGuardia of New York, former major in the Air Service in charge of fliers on the Italian front, has thrown interesting light upon the difficulties faced by the United States in co-operating with its allies in the world war. Major LaGuardia has telegraphed the World Trade Club of San Francisco, an organization representing 500 leading manufacturing merchants, pledging his support to the campaign that the organization is now waging for the world wide adoption of the metric system of weights and measures, now used by all the world except the United States and Britain.

In his wire Major LaGuardia points out that the world war showed the imperative need of standardization of weights and measures. He advocates the metric system, which is used by all the world except the United States and Britain. "I still have unpleasant memories of the difficulty we experienced during the war," he writes, "of the loss of time, the confusion, owing to different systems of weights and measures used by various allies. We lost more time in translating specifications and more errors were caused on this account than by anything else."

The World Trade Club is receiving similar testimony from a great many persons who had experience with the difficulty caused by our present weights during the war.

ENEMY OF WHEAT FIGHTS FROM AMBUSH

The common barberry is making war on the grains of Minnesota's farms this summer from hidden places. The black stem rust of wheat has appeared and the government and state agents working from University Farm, who have been carrying on a campaign for the eradication of the common barberry plant which distributes the spores which cause the rust, have traced many of the infections of this summer to barberry plants growing wild in the woods over the state.

Barberry scouts have found this year more than 14,000 plants. Of these 9700 have been found in the country and 6100 growing wild. Wild specimens of the common barberry have been found in 15 counties and it is believed that much of the rust infection this year is spread from the common barberry plants ambushed in the woods.

DREAMLAND.
Clean, wholesome, humane, symbolic, and elevating, Select Pictures' special attraction, "Ruling Passions," written and directed by Abraham S. Broner, a charming and red-hot play which comes to Dreamland Theatre on Thursday, July 31st, affords one of the most interesting screen entertainments ever seen in this city. The story is exceptionally well written, and every scene is so finely developed that the audience feels that he is eavesdropping at an intimate struggle in human life.

Edwin Arden, who is featured in this production with Julia Dean, has the part of John Watson, a wealthy broker. Mr. Arden seems to breathe his part, while Miss Dean, as the wholesome nurse, brings to the part of freshness and glowing womanliness that is a joy forever.

All those who see "Ruling Passions" will agree that it is one of the strongest photo-dramas ever shown on any local screen.

On Friday dainty, winsome Olive Thomas will be featured in Love's Prisoner, a charming and red-hot play where virtue defies vice and love captures a detective.

Mae Murray's latest Universal Special attraction, "The Delicious Little Devil." An entertaining story of New York's night life, with a big climax and diverting touches of comedy throughout.

"The Delicious Little Devil" is a story of a girl of the tenements who invents an unsavory past in order to please the night life, with a big climax and diverting touches of comedy throughout. She gets the place and reveals in luxury for a while, but soon—in a literal sense—her past finds her out. At Dreamland, Saturday.

TO REGISTER CARS SOLD AFTER JULY 1

Register of Deeds To Record All Sales of Automobiles in Compliance With New State Law.

All changes in automobile ownership after July 1 must be registered with Register of Deeds Lundquist. The new law may be found in session laws supplement sent out lately, Chapter 510, its purpose being to make the selling of stolen cars within the state next to impossible.

Some of the Features.
The bill provides for the signature of both the vendor and the purchaser to the registration of the transfer, and after July 1 all applicants for auto licenses must submit a copy of the registration of their automobiles to secretary of State. Licenses will not be granted unless such papers are submitted. Neither can a car be transferred after that date unless the vendor of the car has a registered title to it. All cars in the state will have to be registered unless they are here only temporarily. The law defines temporary cars as cars in the state for a period less than thirty days.

Motor Number.
Registration calls for the motor number, model and make of car, from whom purchased or obtained and date of transfer. Three copies are made of the registration. The original is given to the registrar and the other two to the owner of the car. If the owner makes application for a license one of the copies is sent by him to the Secretary of State with written application for license.

Severe Penalties.
The state provides for severe penalties in case of changing the motor or license numbers and filing of false papers. Such violations are considered felonies and are punishable by ten years imprisonment. Other violations of the act are punishable by fine of not less than $25 or more than $100, or between 30 and 90 days in the county jail. The law is aimed at the selling of stolen cars.

BUTTER PRICES LIKELY TO KEEP HIGH LEVEL

The outlook for low-priced butter this year is not promising, says A. J. McGuire, director of the agricultural extension division, University of Minnesota. The average price of New York extras in April was 64.33 cents; in May 68.31 cents; in June, about 6 cents less than in May.

In July, however, prices advanced. This, Mr. McGuire believes, points to sustained prices for the rest of the year.
