Invention of Much Worth.
The special oxyacetylene blowpipe applied by French engineers to cutting steel under water is claimed to have greatly simplified the salvage of torpedoed vessels. A blowpipe is mounted in a small diving bell, from which the water is expelled by compressed air, and the blowpipe pressures of air and acetylene, greater than under ordinary conditions, are regulated according to the depth at which the work is being done. In trials made, ship's plates have been cut under 27 feet of water. Besides the use of the apparatus on sunken vessels, it can be employed in repairing locks, and probably in other underwater work.

Soldiers Feel Wounds They Inflict.
Dr. Arthur Macdonald of Washington, honorary president of the international congress of criminal anthropology, tells in the Medical Record some of the oddities noticed in nervous soldiers. For instance: One "who bayonets another in the face may develop a hysterical tic in his own face; one bayoneting enemies in the abdomen may have abdominal contractures in himself. Hysterical blindness may follow from seeing horrible sights; hysterical deafness when the cries of the wounded are unbearable."

And he adds that in some of these cases the only relief is a real word.

Quotations.
"Do you approve of quotations in speeches?"
"Decidedly. Most speeches would be improved by introducing more quotations and leaving out all the original material."

THRIFT and HAPPINESS

If you are a thrifty person you are happy. When you are earning more than you spend, when you produce more than you consume, your life is a success, and you are filled with courage, animation, ambition and good-will. The habit of thrift proves your power to rule yourself.

Loving labor and thrift go hand in hand, and if you have no surplus saved up, you are a plaything of chance, a leaf in a storm. The surplus gives you the power to dictate terms.

Cultivate the habit of thrift, and the earlier you begin the better. And no matter how old you are, or how long you have lived, begin the day to save something by starting a savings account, at this Bank, no matter how little.

We pay 5 per cent on savings accounts.

"JUST CALL ME ON THE PHONE"

Well-Known Feed Merchant Is Enthusiastic Over Tanlac.

Among the thousands of business men all over the United States and Canada who have given their unqualified endorsement to Tanlac for the good it has done them, none is more enthusiastic than the statement of Charles P. Wick, a member of the firm of Wick Brothers, dealers in Feed, Flour and Fuel, living at 5716 Grand Avenue, Duluth, Minn. His testimony follows:

"I am in better shape now than I have been in eight long years," said Mr. Wick. "My stomach got out of order eight years ago and I started down hill. Food began to sour in my stomach after each meal and it got so that I just couldn't digest anything. I ate. Meat I hardly dared look at, for it upset me so that I would be in pain for hours after eating it. No food tasted right to me and I lost my appetite and could only mope along on some kind of light diet, which wasn't enough to keep up my strength. My nerves got all torn up and I would be restless at night and couldn't sleep. I tried almost every day I would suffer for several hours with a headache.

"I am here to tell you that Tanlac is a wonderful medicine, for it has put me on my feet again. My meals can't come too often now, as I can eat and enjoy almost any thing that is prepared for me. A great big steak looks good to me now, for I know I can eat it and enjoy it and not have to suffer afterwards. The headaches are a thing of the past, my nerves are as steady as a rock and I can just sleep like a healthy child at night. In the morning I get up feeling fine and go all day long without feeling a sign of the old troubles that kept me down for so long. I am glad indeed to tell what Tanlac has done for me, and anyone who doubt the statement may just call me on the phone, Cole 108 and I'll gladly tell them just what I have said here."

Tanlac is sold in Raymond by Albert Kleinhuizen, and by one leading druggist in every town.

"Fair and Warmer"
Castle and Gall will present the extraordinary farce success, "Fair and Warmer." Avery Repwood's topmost achievement in mirthmaking at the Willmar Opera House on Friday, Sept. 26th.

This delectable bubbling farce, with unaccountable laughs in its three acts, ran so long and so profitably in New York that before the end of its first six months it had been heralded all over the country as the farce hit of its decades, and demands for its out-of-town presentation had poured in to insure its welcome when Castle & Gall should send it on tour. It duplicated its success at the Cort Theatre, Chicago, during its six months' capacity engagement there. New York critics held a tournament of adjectives over "Fair and Warmer," each striving for emphasis to describe how funny it really was. These reviews were echoed in the out-of-town press, so that "Fair and Warmer" needs no further introductions.

Castle & Gall present it here with an admirable company of farcers, and new scenic investiture.

OBSERVATIONS FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT AMENDED IN FIVE WAYS BY THE LOWER HOUSE

Changes Aim to Eliminate Red Tape—Wholesale Grocers Find Packer Witnesses Controlled or Afraid—Largest Livestock Association Wants Regulation—Farmers' Council Warns of Attempts to Divide—Houston Takes Tile Manufacturer for Assistant—Sinclair Still Fighting for Drouth Aid Bill—Baer Asks Improvement in Northwest Rail Service.

Washington, D. C.—By a vote of 108 to 7 the house on September 10 passed the bill amending certain sections of the federal farm loan act so as to eliminate red tape in the working of the farm loan association. Little opposition to this bill is expected in the senate and an effort will be made to have it ready for the president's signature by his return to Washington the end of this month.

As amended by the house the federal farm loan act now carries the following changes:

1. The appointment of an assistant registrar in each land bank district is provided, this official to have authority to receive applications for loans in the absence of the registrar.
2. It is provided that on approval of a loan the applicant is automatically a member of the farm loan association to which his application is made. His name does not have to be voted on by the association.
3. The provision that all three members of the loan committee of a farm loan association shall be required to make a joint appraisal of the land of an applicant is eliminated. The report of the land bank appraiser is all that is necessary for this valuation.
4. It is provided that advance amortization payments may be made in denominations desired by the loan holder.
5. The minimum farm bond is fixed at $100 denomination, on the ground that bonds of smaller denomination are regarded, not as an investment but practically as currency.

Packer Witnesses Exposed.
In a letter sent to Senator Gronna, chairman of the senate agriculture committee, this week the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association, gave a sharp rebuke to the statements of the packer press agents in Washington that out of 90 witnesses who have testified before the agriculture committee on the Kenyon and Kendrick licensing bills, 88 were opposed to these measures.

In this letter Lewis H. Haney, director of the research bureau of the Wholesale Grocers' Association, asserts that the packer witnesses available to the Kenyon and Kendrick bills are of three classes:

1. The paid employees of the big packers.
2. The packer subsidized witnesses.
3. The witnesses who are afraid of the big packers.

Asserting that a majority of the 88 have appeared before the senate committee at packer expense, according to his information, Mr. Haney requests that the committee "call Mr. Brooks of Swift & Co., put him under oath, and ask him how much money the Big Five packers have spent or have become obliged to pay to date in railroad fares, hotel bills, etc., for the devoted 88 witnesses."

Stockmen Want Regulation.
A vigorous and active propaganda machine built up in Washington by the packers has been trying to create the impression that livestock producers are opposed to the enactment of the Kenyon and Kendrick bills for packer control. The fact in this case is that the American National Livestock association, one of the largest organizations of livestock producers in the country, has heartily indorsed the packer control legislation.

Commenting on the packer campaign of misrepresentation as to the stock raisers' attitude, William Kent, formerly a member of the United States tariff commission and now chairman of the national marketing committee, says:

"The packers have badly overplayed the game of trying to scare the American people into thinking that livestock producers will go raising stock after the Kenyon bill goes through. The indorsement of the regulatory legislation by the American National Livestock Association shows that the producers realize that they need the protection of this legislation just as the consumers do."

Try to Divide Farmers.
A strong appeal to the farmers of the country to unite with labor in the battle against the common enemy of monopolistic control, and to repudiate those self-styled "farm leaders" who are now attacking labor as being responsible for the high cost of living, is made by George P. Hampton, managing director of the Farmers' National council.

"The seriousness of the farm situation," Mr. Hampton says, "requires most careful consideration of the economic factors of production. It is most unfortunate that some farm leaders have seized upon the present situation to attack labor as responsible for the high cost of living. Such action necessarily plays into the hands of the privileged classes of the country which have always striven to drive a wedge between the farmer and the other labor forces of America. It is a testing time for American farmers. The predatory interests are working overtime to divide the farmers and to get them to go off on false leads."

Pointing out that nothing fundamental can be done in solving the cost-of-living problem and its accompaning industrial unrest until there is state ownership and democratic operation of natural resources, Mr. Hampton continues:

"The natural resources of America, basic raw material for all industries, are largely monopolized in private ownership, while the United States congress is attempting practically to give away its resources yet remaining under public ownership." (A reference to the infamous oil and mineral leasing bill recently passed by the senate.)

A Strange Farmer.
There is a new assistant secretary of agriculture in Mr. Houston's private cabinet and if any farmer in the United States knows more about him than the department of agriculture has so far been disposed to make public they know more than any of the farmer representatives now in Washington.

The name of the gentleman is James R. Riggs, and he succeeds the lamented Clarence Ousley, who recently graduated from the department of agriculture to the post of first vice president of the Navy league and editor of its publication, "Sea Power." From this lofty position Mr. Ousley is now urging the United States to build the biggest navy in the world and damn the expense.

The office of information of the department of agriculture tells the world that Mr. Riggs "is a farmer by heredity," as proof of which it states that "his grandfather Hezekiah Riggs, was born on a farm in Loudoun county, Va., in 1791. A few significant hints about the present Mr. Riggs are, however, allowed to escape. For instance, the department admits:

"While devoting his energies primarily to farming operations, Mr. Riggs has found time both for other business enterprises and for public affairs. For a number of years he was active in the development of the coal, oil and gas industries of his section. For 12 years he was president of a trust company. Since 1912 he has been engaged in the manufacture of drain tile."

The Drouth Aid Bill.
Secretary of Agriculture Houston has definitely and finally refused to give any support whatsoever to the Sinclair drouth relief bill.

At a conference between Houston and the Nonpartisan congressman this week the secretary of agriculture reiterated his "sympathy" with the problems of the drouth-stricken farmers of the Northwest, but asserted that it was not for him to attempt to influence congress in this matter. Without the indorsement of the secretary of agriculture the Sinclair bill, carrying an appropriation of $5,000,000 to loan for seed grain and feed purchase, will not be favorably reported from the appropriations committee.

Former Congressman Lever, now a member of the federal farm loan board, who is an enthusiastic supporter of the Sinclair bill, accompanied the North Dakota congressman on his visit to Houston.

In the course of his conversation with Sinclair and Lever, Secretary Houston observed that a hasty visit he made to Montana a year ago this month had shaken his faith in the farming possibilities of that state. This is but one of a number of recent statements indicating that the department of agriculture would prefer to have many northwestern farmers go out of business rather than give them aid in solving their problems.

Railroad Sabotage.
Due to urgent representations made to the railroad administration by Representative Baer of North Dakota, there is now some assurance that sufficient cars for grain and other food product shipments will be henceforth available in the Northwest. The car service section of the railroad administration has promised Mr. Baer that all available "empties" will be rushed to shipment centers of North Dakota without delay.

There is evidence that the recent abnormal car shortage in the Northwest is not altogether due to natural causes. There are a number of powerful forces that will stop at nothing to discredit government operation of the railroads, and the favorable reception given to the Plumb plan, providing permanent government ownership of the roads, in Nonpartisan territory has awakened much anxiety in these quarters. Steps seeking to discredit government operation, as part of the propaganda to have the roads returned to their private owners, are now to be taken in the Northwest, it is understood.

After the Sinn Fein party in Ireland had won a political victory, the English government decided that it was necessary to abolish this political party by government proclamation and force of arms. Yet England pretended to advocate self-determination for all peoples.

With all our talk about the Shantung agreement, we might remember that England has 37 per cent of Chinese territory on about the same terms as Japan has for this particular slice.

Why do the heathen rage against the Victorian epoch? Men who lived through a great part of it found it exciting, interesting, amusing and sometimes terrible. Tallestrand once said that nobody could understand the real delights of society unless he had lived before the French revolution. Similarly, what young person, or near young person, of today can experience the delights of the time when it was possible to begin at ease the first chapter of a volume of Dickens or Thackeray, to wait impatiently for George Eliot's new novel or even to bear the shock of Robert Buchanan's famous review of Swinburne? There were, too, the terrors occasioned by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe when her fierce Puritan friendship induced her to print the confidences of Lady Byron! Our eyes were turned towards England, it is true, yet Hawthorne and Emerson were not only discussed, but read. Among the lesser lights there were Gail Hamilton and James Fields, whose very satisfying literary essays were great features of the Atlantic Monthly. People really did not spend their time in singing "Juanita" or in reading "Ouida" on the sly, nor did all the women dress in the magentas and solferinos in which contemporary satirists clothed the ladies of the middle periods of Victoria and Eugenie. The Crimean and Civil wars, so microscopic to the careless young, the Franco-Prussian struggle which preluded the chaos of 1914, were events that kept our minds from stagnating; and there were doers and thinkers in Europe worth our constant consideration.—Maurice Francis Egan in Yale Review.
