OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Under whip and spur of the Republican organization and with the active assistance of many of the Bourbon Democrats, the Each-Cummins railroad bill, as revised in conference committee, was driven through the house on February 21 and passed the senate two days later.

Members who voted for the bill are still explaining. They are finding it necessary to write more letters of explanation every day. Many of them have lost their appetites, and some of them find it difficult even to sleep.

They are worried because, for the first time in many years, the opposition to a reactionary bill passed by both branches of congress is organizing a nation-wide fight, in every voting precinct, to punish those who passed the measure.

Former soldiers and sailors in the labor ranks speak of this as the "railroad bonus bill," thereby calling attention to the fact that while 4,000,000 ex-service men have thus far been denied any bonus legislation, the handful of railroad stock investors have been given generous sums from the treasury, along with the return of full authority over the lines of interstate commerce.

On the "black list" which the 2,000,000 organized railroad workers and their industrial and political allies will bring to the attention of the voters in every corner of the country, are the names of all members of house and senate who voted in favor of this railroad bill, or were paired in favor of it, or were absent and not voting unless on account of sickness.

Trembling in fear of the day of judgment are such stalwarts as Steenerson, Knutson, Newton, Volstead and Anderson of Minnesota, of whom the first-named was declared by President Welch of the Minnesota Society of Equity to have pledged himself to vote against the bill.

George P. Hampton of the Farmers' National council is chairman, and Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is vice chairman of the farmer-labor congressional committee.

C. E. Gustafson, president Nebraska State Farmers' union, president All-American Farmers' union, active commissioner: H. L. Blinn, president Iowa state union, American Society of Equity; R. W. H. Stone, president North Carolina Farmers' union; William Bouck, master Washington state Grange; Grant H. Stearns, president National Gleaser Federation; C. D. Reiser, president National Farmers' association; J. C. Lamborn, president Illinois State Farmers' union; J. W. Lewis, secretary-treasurer organization committee of the United Farmers of America; W. M. Burlingame, president Montana state union, American Society of Equity; H. A. Fuller, member of executive committee, Minnesota state union, American Society of Equity; John Morris, master Colorado Farmers' union; H. F. Samuel, Idaho; Ed C. Lanzer, Texas; R. L. Cummings, Maine.

Benjamin C. Marsh of the Farmers' National council is secretary of the new committee. It was Marsh who went into the West and got the farm organizations to send committees here to demand that which has been achieved in open, notorious and continued violation of the law.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS ABOUT STATE MEETING

COUNTRY EDITORS MUST FIGHT OWN BATTLES "100 per cent Americanism" was the theme of a two-day convention of the Minnesota Editorial Association in Minneapolis last week.

The writer attended the annual meeting of the Minnesota Editorial Association held at the West Hotel in Minneapolis on Friday and Saturday of last week. Plans for the meeting had evidently been made by a bunch of those "keep the party loyal" fellows who used that slogan to keep their places on the state's pay roll in the election of two years ago.

Somebody in authority it appears lacked the knowledge that the members of the Minnesota Editorial Association are in the first place about as much American as it is possible to be; and that in the second place they are in very close touch with conditions in their own communities, and as a consequence where there has been need of Americanism, it has been in progress several years among the rural editor.

The Minnesota Editorial Association at its annual meeting in Minneapolis last week adopted a set of resolutions which ring true to Americanism. One of the resolutions pledges support of the American Legion and other organizations of the kind which are the result of the recent of the Minnesota State University to investigate the charge that socialist doctrine is being taught in some of the departments of the institution.

The country editors for the most part appear to be able to deal with their own problems, and as a rule they have to deal with them alone, unless some outside agency sees profit for itself in assisting.—M. J. McGowan, Swift County Monitor.

SAW NOTHING BUT CHICKEN AND A GOOD TIME The editors of the state were able to break bread with The Tribune hosts last Friday night and to emerge from the West Hotel without having their moral or mental integrity impaired, their political opinions assaulted or their state association in any way compromised.

ONE EDITOR WAS TREATED The Socialists and the Nonpartisan League were flayed right and left and from beginning to end at the editorial convention in Minneapolis last week. The thing was overdone and it grew tiresome.—C. Berghuis, Clara City Herald.

SOME DIFFERENCE IN BANQUETS, TWO, OLD BOY Vic Lawson of the Willmar Tribune shudders at the awful consequences that may result from the entertainment furnished the country editors last week by the Minneapolis Tribune. He says the object of the entertainment was to boost stand-pat reactionary policies under the guise of Americanism, and he being the case he did not feel that he could fraternize with his brethren of the press this year.

A SCANDAL WORKERS UNION It is hard to conceive of any greater lack of patriotism, loyalty or Americanism than that displayed by the class to whom during the past 35 months nothing about the class of privilege of the United States or the individual who occupies it, has been respected.
