Religion of Good Citizenship.
"In China there existed in the past, and there are evidences that it is coming to life again, the religion of good citizenship," says a writer in Asia Magazine. "That is to say, the Chinese theory is that a man does not need to feel the need of physical force to protect himself; he has seldom the need even to call in and use the physical force of the policeman—of the state—to protect him. A man in China is supposed to be protected by the sense of justice of his neighbor; he is protected by the readiness of his fellowmen to obey the sense of moral obligation. The ideal of Chinese civilization, therefore, is that a man can not feel the need of using physical force to protect himself because he is sure that right and justice is recognized by all his neighbors as a force higher than physical force, and that moral obligation as recognized by everybody is something that must be obeyed."

Ground Must Be Hollow.
In Lassen county, California, is a spot called Dry Lake, which is in reality almost an arid plain, with some alkali scattered here and there over it, and its area is two and a half by four miles. On one side are the Pit River mountains and on another are big pine woods, while to the west are the famous lava beds, in which the Indians hid during that last great California struggle with the savages. A winding road leads up from the valley below into the curious basin. If a horse walks on this road anywhere, even two or three miles outside the border of the Dry Lake, he can be heard for many miles up in the interior. The ground all about there sends forth a hollow sound. Reverberations can be heard everywhere. A football may be heard like a sound in a great cavern.

God's Best Medicine.
"Mirth is God's medicine," says a noted writer. "Everybody ought to bathe in it. Grim care, moroseness, anxiety, all the rust of life, ought to be scoured off by the oil of mirth. It is better than emery. Every man ought to rub himself with it. A man without mirth is like a wagon without springs, but a man who laughs and causes others to laugh, even though the days are dark and the causes for laughter are few, is like a chariot with springs in which one may ride over the rough roads and feel nothing but a pleasant motion."

The Model.
"I don't understand," said Mrs. Mul- "I remember very well that you point out your Dick as a husband. Yet now you contend is lazy." " said Mrs. Boggs, "he's a ght enough—only he isn't a model."

Panama Canal Locks.
There are few things more interesting to the average traveler than to pass through the great locks of the Panama canal. The vessel enters very slowly and as she does lies taken aboard leading to electric motors or "mules," which keep her in the center of the lock. Then the great gates at the rear swing together and the water is turned into the enclosure thus formed. Looking over the side of the steamer one sees a great bubble of water rise from the bottom, then a second and third appear until finally the whole surface of the lock is boiling. The pressure is so great that often fish sucked into the drains that lead from the Gatun lake, are drawn in and thrown several feet into the air. When the proper level is finally reached the gate ahead of the vessel opens and the "mules start forward, dragging the vessel free from the lock before she moves ahead under her own power.

Carnival Festivities.
Carnival festivities originated in the Roman Catholic countries of Europe, where they were celebrated, especially in Rome and Naples, with great mirth and freedom during the week before the beginning of Lent. Maril Gras (literally "Fat Tuesday," so called for the French practice of parading a fat ox, "boeuf gras," during the celebration of the day), or Shrove Tuesday, is the last day of the carnival. The festivities were first introduced into New Orleans in 1833, by one of its French citizens, Mr. Marigny, and for many years they consisted of promiscuous maskers roaming through the streets of the city, indulging in various kinds of amusements, fun and folly.

Oldest Crown Jewel a Sapphire.
Only a few of the early British royal jewels survive in the present regalia. The oldest of these is the sapphire of Edward the Confessor, which was originally set in his coronation ring. It was buried with him in his shrine in Westminster Abbey, but in 1101 the shrine was broken open and this and other jewels removed. The sapphire is in the cross on the top of the king's state crown. Legend has it that St. John once appeared before the Confessor as a pilgrim, and that the monarch gave him the ring, which was returned later. The stone is reputed to have the power of curing sciatica and rheumatism, but has not been used for this purpose recently.
