A TALK WITH A WILLMAR MAN

Mr. Martin Knutson of 602 15th St. Tells of an Interesting Experience.

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Willmar man:

"I always have a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them highly," says Mr. Knutson. "My experience with them has taught me their value as a genuine kidney medicine. My back and kidneys were giving me considerable trouble. Many times I had to lay off work on account of the pains thru my back and kidneys, and I had to get up during the night to pass the kidney secretions. As soon as I found out about Doan's Kidney Pills I got a couple of boxes at Carlson Bros. Drug Store. After using them, the trouble left."

Pure Prattle

For sometime past you have had opportunities to read many hectic advertisements published by one of our competitors, in which an attempt was made to establish the fact that all gasolines except one were "untrue." That these alleged "untrue" gasolines were "kerosenish" mixtures—that to use such a gasoline meant disaster—all of which was a smoke-screen intended to stem the inevitable—until the time when would be made known, and this is the time. The manufacture of gasoline has been developed from a hit or miss process—which gave only what the crude had to give—to a scientifically developed practice which takes from the crude whatever naphtha products the consumer requires.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in its manufacturing practices has kept pace with the advancement of knowledge. It has grasped every new development that has been proved worthy by exhaustive test and has incorporated it into its refining practices, and has given the resulting benefits to the public.

Of all the refinements which have come out of the scientific laboratories during the past 30 years, the most significant, the most far-reaching and the most useful has been the world-famous Burton Process, now acknowledged to be the most successful process yet devised for transforming the heavier fractions of petroleum into those highly volatile compounds which are needful in the manufacture of good gasoline.

When the process was first devised, it was referred to as a "cracking" process because it resulted in the breaking up of heavier compounds and converting them into other more volatile compounds.

The Burton Process has been in successful operation in the refineries of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) for the past nine years, during which time this Company has manufactured and sold upwards of two billion gallons of cracked gasoline. That the gasoline made by this process is as efficient as that made by ordinary distillation of crude is attested by no less an authority than the Bureau of Mines, which stated in a Department of Interior Bulletin: "There is reason to believe, instead of being inferior, the cracked gasolines are really superior for use in automobile engines as regards both mileage and power obtainable."

The observations and experiments of our own research men confirm these findings.

All motor gasolines manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are made at least in part by the Burton Process. This is one reason why our Famous Red Crown Gasoline has won so favorable a reputation for uniformity, purity, economy and efficiency, for, because of this process, we have been able to control the quality of the necessary boiling point fractions and to have always ready the stocks from which to manufacture a gasoline of standard specification. Red Crown has long been the peer of gasolines. Now comes its companion—also a product of scientific refining—
