P. J. Dreis, father of Mrs. F. W. Hauenstein of this city was defeated in his independent candidacy for treasurer of St. Paul, but can nevertheless claim the satisfaction of doing a great deal to defeat the gang favorite. He received 2,680 votes.

Railroad accidents were numerous in this vicinity this week. At Sleepy Eye a young man, named Smith, was trying to move a car with a crowbar and suddenly the car commenced to move. The crowbar slipped from its hold and in some way the young man had his leg broken and one of his feet dislocated.

The Don C. Hall Dramatic Company played "Rudolph the Cripple" and "Enoch Arden" at Union Hall on Wednesday and Thursday evenings to very slim houses. Contrary to the advance reports, the company is no better than when here before, and the entertainments were therefore lacking in sufficient merit to make them take with the public. The plays are too heavy for the troupe and their production in this manner can only be successful where the towns are small and the visits of shows, like good fortune, are few and far between.

The Milwaukee Theatre Company played to a crowded house at Turner Hall on Sunday evening and easily sustained their reputation for high-grade entertainment. Every member of the troupe is a thoughtful player, every role a study and every act a success. The players move with ease, they know their parts and understand the art of natural grace and unaffected bearing. The people find nothing to criticize and much to please in such productions, and therefore fill the house at each appearance.

H. L. Blethen made a trip up the road last week, visiting Springfield, Lamberon and Tracy in the interests of boilers and engines.

The lecture, delivered by Mathilda Fletcher at Turner Hall on Thursday evening was a disappointment to many. Barring the earnestness with which she advanced her ideas, she could hardly be called eloquent, and her whole argument, which was intended to sustain revelation and at the same time give the lie to the doctrine of evolution, was hampered by the fact that she demanded proofs from the negative side of her question and advanced only theories in defense of her own. The ideas of thinkers like Darwin can not be so easily refuted in a single discourse, and Miss Fletcher, to judge from her lecture here, is certainly not equal to the task. Moreover, whether there be any reason in evolution or not, its opponents should not treat it from the commonly accepted and ridiculous standpoint, but should make an effort to meet the more advanced line of thought on the subject and then puncture it if they can.

The Park committee was instructed to have trees planted and sidewalks laid on State street as in their judgment seemed best; also to place crossings at the proper places.

The water-works committee reported that a contract had been entered into with S. Swanson of Minneapolis to sink a deep well for $2.95 per foot and that a contract had been executed by the mayor and clerk.

The clerk was instructed to notify the mayor that the council desires a communication from him relative to the appointments for the offices of city attorney, marshal and water-works superintendent; the first two not having been confirmed.

A petition from the Evangelical Lutheran Church Society was presented by C. F. Ruenke requesting permission to take gravel from Outlot 94 belonging to the city, with which to improve their cemetery. The petition was referred to the committee on graveyards and parks with power to act.

County Politics.

County politics have already been set agog and it beats everything to note how early the candidates are commencing to feather their nests. Many men, thus far untried, are listening to the music of some gentle bee and the conventions are holding forth promise of unusual interest. For instance there are sections of the county where Auditor Krook is being opposed without much reason, and, notwithstanding he has made an auditor of whom Brown county might be proud, there are those who have imaginary grievances and who, out of their own mind, are hatching reasons for a new man that are paltry to say the least. Burg and Grimmer are both candidates for re-election, and while no one has manifested a desire to enter the field against Burg, the office of the register will not go a-begging. A. F. Walton and L. G. Vogel are being mentioned for this position in Republican circles and among the Democrats frequent mention is heard of Fred Pfander and Schramm. For the office of probate judge, Ernst Brandt still seems to have a clear field, but among the opposition there is division. Some say Bertrand and others whisper Steinhauser. Coming down to the position of sheriff, there is a belief now that Anderson will be his own successor. Nevertheless there are men in his own party who would like to hold down the job and Albert Kiesling and K. H. Helling are often spoken of in this connection. The Democrats seem to lean towards Schmid. Whom the Republicans will nominate for attorney is still a question. Perhaps Somerville, perhaps Eckstein. Thompson is hardly considered anxious to make the fight again. The Democrats, no doubt, will again stake their chances with Robertson. Over the other offices there is not much discussion and the present incumbents will in all probability be allowed to hold over. Humphrey, however, says he doesn't want to be coroner. This will mean the nomination on the Democratic ticket of J. C. Rothenburg.

Henningsen & Kiesel Dissolve.

The important business move of the week in New Ulm consisted in the dissolution of the partnership existing between Messrs. Henningsen & Kiesel as proprietors of the City Drug Store. The change leaves Mr. Henningsen as the sole owner and the business will hereafter be successfully conducted by him alone.

Mr. Henningsen has been the business manager of the store since April of last year and in that time has manifested a superior order of business talent and tact. As sole proprietor we can safely predict a continuance of success.

Later.—Dr. Strickler has an interest in the store and the firm name will be Henningsen & Co.

LIND ROASTED THE BOSSES.

He Does not Believe in Dictation by Self Appointed Leaders.

At the close of Senator Davis' speech in the State convention on Thursday, there were loud cries for "Lind!" This brought the Second District congressman to the platform and for a period of five minutes there was nothing but applause.

He explained that he was only recently back from Washington and in no position to make a speech, especially so soon after the eloquent and elegant speech of Senator Davis. He referred to the one thing, however, done by the Fifty-first congress which Senator Davis omitted to mention, and that was the passage of a free text book bill. The Republican party believed it was just as important to defend America labor and industries from cheap foreign competition as it was to give a child the means to become fitted and capable to discharge the duties of citizenship under a free government.

The Republican party, he said, has never been defeated when it has been loyal to its principles, and if the Republicans in this state are true to those principles they cannot lose next fall. I don't believe Minnesota is a doubtful stater. If it is lost next fall the fault will be yours and mine. It will be the fault of those who assume to be the leaders of the party. I do not know much about these Twin Cities, but in the section from which I come the people are strong Republican, and the same can be said of the northern district and the Red River valley. The great majority of the people of Minnesota are Republicans.

We must have a perfect organization. Party organization is necessary, but I do not believe in dictation or bossism. There is no man so great as to be greater than his party, and the man who assumes to be dictator to Republicans in this or any other state is an enemy of his party.

If we want to make certain of victory next November we must all exercise our individual judgment in preparing for the next state convention. We cannot afford to have our tickets made up anywhere by any person but ourselves. There is nothing in the shape of offices I want, further than to be one of you on the floor down there. You have my gratitude for the honors conferred upon me in the past, and my services are at your disposal in the future. But there must be no dictation. The action of those people who met about six weeks ago and kindly selected delegates to represent us in the next national convention was indelicate and indiscreet. It would have tickled me exceedingly, if after traveling 1,500 miles to be present here to-day, to have been allowed to have had a voice in the matter and to advise with the delegates.

Col. King of Hennepin—If Mr. Lind will allow me to correct him, I would like to say that there was no such meeting held as the one he refers to, nor were any delegates named or selected by anyone.

Mr. Lind—I am glad to hear you say so, but I read the account of the meeting in the Minneapolis Tribune.

Col. King—In the name of the Almighty God, Mr. Lind, don't hold us responsible for everything that appears in the Tribune.

Everybody yelled and Mr. Lind smiled a broad Second district smile and returned to the charge.

The choice of delegates made at that real or alleged meeting was wise. It was a fine choice but it was not delicate. If there is any Republican pleased and satisfied with that choice it is Lind of Brown county, and he is ready to do yeoman service with the rank and file of the people. The strength of the Republican party in this state comes from outside these two cities, and without reflecting on either one of them I must say that no party can afford to do injustice to the people outside. The speech made by Senator Davis is a good text book for the campaign.

In Probate Court, Special Term, April 19th 1892.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob Kolb, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Auguste Kolb, administratrix of the estate of said deceased, setting forth that no personal estate has come to her hands, as such administratrix the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; and a description of the real estate, excepting the homestead, or which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be her granted to sell all of said real estate at private sale; and it appearing by said petition that there is no personal estate in the hands of said administratrix to pay said debts and expenses of administration and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, and expenses to sell all of said real estate.
