The audience was not very large, but the applause was nevertheless frequent.
The Democratic county convention has been called to meet in Sleepy Eye on the 30th of July. The representation will be as follows: New Ulm: First ward 8, Second ward 7 and Third ward 6; Sleepy Eye 6; Albin 2; Bashaw 2; Burnstowntown 5; Cottonwood 1; Eden 3; Home 3; Lake Hanska 1; Leavenworth 2; Linden 2; Milford 3; Mulligan 3; North Star 2; Prairieville 2; Sigel 4; Stark 3; Stately 1.
Peter Scherer brought back from Washington with him a cane of much historic value, presented to him by Tory Olson. The cane is made of wood taken from the floor of the supreme court room laid in 1792 and the knob is carved from lignum vitae wood which was once part of the pulley used in raising the statue of liberty to the dome of the national capitol. The band is made of American tin.

PRESENTED TO THE PEOPLE.
Republican Delegates Select a Ticket for Public Inspection.
Delegates to the Various Conventions Also Selected According to Program.
A Futile Effort Made to Instruct For the Hon. Knute Nelson.
So far and No Farther With the Scheme said a majority of those Present.

The slate prevailed.
The delegation selected beforehand tallies exactly with that selected at the convention. The manipulator manipulated to his own satisfaction.
When Chairman Roos of the county committee rapped the Republican county convention to order last Wednesday morning there were about sixty delegates present. Then delegate Peterson moved to adjourn till 2 o'clock and the motion prevailed. The recess was no doubt taken for the purpose of setting up the pins.
At two o'clock over seventy were found in the room who were entitled to vote. Geo. W. Somerville was nominated for temporary chairman and Henry Dirks of Springfield received recognition as temporary secretary.
A committee on credentials consisting of W. W. Smith, A. Blanchard and F. W. Johnson was appointed and they found the following delegates entitled to seats.
New Ulm: S. D. Peterson, C. L. Roos, Jacob Nix, K. H. Helling, A. Blanchard, Ben Juni, Jacob Klossner Jr., F. Friedmann, Herman Schapekahn, C. F. Ruemke, F. W. Johnson, I. M. Olsen, E. G. Koch, A. F. Reim, D. Grussendorf and Louis Schilling.
Sleepy Eye: H. G. Hays, W. W. Smith, Hans Mo, J. M. Thompson, G. W. Somerville, A. Rinke, Lars P. Jensen, and Chas. Schoregge.
Springfield: Oscar Erickson, A. G. Anderson, Christian Enerson, Louis Gulick and Henry Dirks.
Albin: John A. Torrey and Swan Anderson.
Cottonwood: Fred Walther, Geo. Guth Henry Fortwengler, Gustav Roeder and Alonzo Nichols.
Bashaw: Frank Anderson, Peter Quantstrom and Louis Redding.
Burnstown: W. H. Rowe, Julius Wendt, J. J. Winegarden and Andrew Lee.
Eden: John C. Peterson, Ed Grimes and A. F. Walton.
Home: August Scholtz, Wm. Grimes, and Geo. Raverty.
Linden: Ed. Paulson, Gudman Anderson, Theo. Thormudson and John M. Johnson.
Leavenworth: Geo. W. Harrington, C. A. Hughes and Ed. Casey.
Milford: Peter Mach, John Krueger, G. A. Spellbrink, Julius Neumann and F. Meyer.
Mulligan: N. J. Cook, W. C. Miller and Carl Schlieff.
North Star: John Egan, James Dickson, Jacob Wigal and Henry Dorow.
Prairieville: Daniel Plath, H. J. Knudson and Thomas Foster.
Stark: A. J. Gillman with three votes.

The committee on credentials having reported, the temporary organization was made permanent and the convention proceeded to elect eight delegates to represent the county at Mankato. The following were chosen: A. J. Gillman, A. Blanchard, J. M. Thompson, John C. Peterson, Ed. Paulsen, George Harrington, C. A. Hagberg and E. G. Koch. It is currently reported that the delegation is solid for Turrell, but the REVIEW has reason to believe that such is not the case. Davis will surely have some of them.
The fine work came when the nominations were made for delegates to St. Paul. S. D. Peterson had already declined the offer of the convention to go to Mankato, but was perfectly willing, if not particularly anxious, to go to St. Paul. The nominations were made rapidly, but it was apparent from the start that the slate which had been prepared beforehand would easily be elected. Here it is and the convention endorsed it: Jos. A. Eckstein, S. D. Peterson, W. W. Smith, H. J. Knudson, Hans Mo, K. H. Helling, Geo. W. Somerville and C. L. Roos. The latter was certainly not a party to the scheme as might have been others, but his name was nevertheless put on the ticket, which was written in ink and circulated about the hall.
When the result was announced, W. W. Smith arose and offered a resolution instructing the delegates for Hon. Knute Nelson and Col. Jos. Bobleter. This was the opportunity for Mr. Roos and he quietly sprang to his feet and gave the convention a little straight talk. The delegates to Mankato had been permitted, he said, to go uninstructed and he could see no reason why the gentlemen who had been delegated to St. Paul should not be accorded the same courtesy. He had all respect for Mr. Nelson as a man and a Republican, but if he had to be instructed to vote for him he would withdraw from the delegation. This was the starter for loud applause from the anti-Nelson faction and J. M. Thompson added fuel to the flames by making a speech endorsing Roos' view and getting in a few words for our neighbor G. S. Ives. The whole matter culminated in a resolution to table the resolutions which was carried by a splendid vote. The delegation, nevertheless, with one or two exceptions will vote for Nelson in the convention.

The west end delegates feel very sore over the manner in which they were treated by the manipulators and justly so, too. They were utterly ignored by the men who had things in charge and, if the convention had not been handicapped as it was, they would not have been served so shabbily. As it is now they go home feeling dissatisfied and disgusted and may conclude to teach the bosses a deserved lesson. For the interests of Republicanism, however, they should remember that other sections of the county were treated in a similar manner and forget that they have been turned down. A few have triumphed to be sure, but the remedy does not lie in bolting. Rather stand by the party and work on the inside to place the bosses to the rear.
When the time came for the nomination of county officers, A. Blanchard presented the name of L. B. Krook for the position of county auditor and his nomination was made by acclamation. Jos. A. Eckstein was then nominated by J. M. Thompson as the candidate for county attorney and he also was unanimously chosen to make the fight against Robertson who is almost sure to be the Democratic selection. W. W. Smith proposed F. Burg for treasurer and A. Blanchard suggested Nels Anderson for sheriff. Both names were received with good feeling and were accorded places on the ticket.
Over the offices of judge of probate and register of deeds there came a contest. For the latter position A. F. Walton and A. J. Grimmer were placed in nomination. A ballot was taken and Walton was made the choice by a vote of 58 to 14. Brandt fared likewise with Grimmer. G. A. Spellbrink was set up against him and won by a vote of 48 to 25. The result has been that Grimmer accepts the situation as offered to him and retires well satisfied with the general result, while Brandt concludes to go it alone. L. G. Davis was then nominated for superintendent, Geo. Boock for surveyor, J. W. B. Wellcome Jr. for coroner and E. G. Koch for court commissioner. Over the legislative ticket there was some contest. Several were nominated, including E. G. Koch, John C. Peterson and A. G. Anderson, but Peterson won on the first ballot. He is an intelligent and representative farmer residing in Eden.
In the evening C. L. Smit, of Minneapolis, and Hon. D. F. Reese, of St. Paul, entertained the delegates and the others who were present with a sort of ratification meeting. Smith talked for two hours and devoted his attention to nearly every issue that is apt to be important in the coming campaign. He explained the banking system, the currency question, and touched lightly on the tariff bug-bear. The spirit of Americanism ran all the way through his discourse and in his arguments he was lucid and convincing. Particularly touching were his references to the organization of Francis Cleveland Influence clubs, and it made him blush, he said, when he heard that a New York lady had started one of those organizations in the hopes of having Grover elected so that she would be able then to buy her headwear and adornments a trifle cheaper than she can now. That lady, he said, when she was over to Paris and found that she could buy her hat trimmings there for less money than in New York did not visit the shops to note the haggard condition of the girls who made the lace, and when she came back to America and went into the shops and met the girls who were her equals before the law and who wore good clothes she did not realize that there was a difference and that that difference would be removed by the election of a free trade president. How different, he added, in conclusion, was the motive of that woman, from the wives and sweethearts that he knew in 1862, who went barefoot and went into the fields and husked the corn while their husbands and dear ones were in the South fighting to preserve the unity of the nation? The speech took well and was frequently applauded.
When Mr. Reese stepped upon the platform it was without the slightest preparation. He depended on his audience to give him enthusiasm and he got what he wanted. Cheer after cheer rolled up to him as he referred to the Americanism of Republican doctrine, of the Americanism of Benjamin Harrison and above all of the brilliant Americanism of the statesman of the age, James G. Blaine. Reese did not try to argue on the issues. He said that was too early. What he wanted now was enthusiasm for the work done at Minneapolis and for the success of the present, administration. Oftentimes in his hour's talk he grew eloquent and his polished sentences would cause his hearers to hold their breath to catch every word. When finished they would burst forth in hearty rounds of applause.
